OPEN CONVENTION ROOSEVELT'S AIM

Delegates Themselves Actually to Frame Platform and Select Candidates.

THIS WITHOUT BOSS AID

Majority of 100 Figured by the Colonel and His Friends in a Final Conference—Candidates Discussed.

Special to The New York Times.

OYSTER BAY, Sept. 22.—For the first time since the system of boss rule developed in American politics there is a prospect that New York State is to have a genuinely open and free State Convention when the Republicans assemble at Saratoga next week.

At the close of a day of conference here to-day Col. Roosevelt made his first prediction as to the outcome of the fight between himself and his friends on one side and the Woodruff-Ward-Wadsworth-Barnes-Sherman combination of bosses on the other.

It was that his side would win by a majority of probably 100. Having made that prediction, the Colonel went on to express some views as to the character of the convention that is to be held. He pointed out that the fight he has been making is against boss rule, and it would be of no value to overthrow one set of bosses merely to establish another set, whether he or anybody else were in the new set. What he is seeking to secure in the convention is real and genuine representation of the people who do the rank and file work at the polls. He regards it as a step toward the effective re-establishment of honest, representative government.

"What we want to get at," he said, "is what the bulk of the decent people of the State really want."

If there is any realization on the part of the bosses of the fact that this is what Col. Roosevelt is after it is no wonder that they are making the fight of their lives to prevent him and his followers from obtaining control of the convention.

Col. Roosevelt went on to amplify what he had said as quoted above by pointing out that no conferences held now at Oyster Bay or anywhere else could determine what the convention desired. It remained for careful consultation and consideration among the delegates themselves when they shall have all reached Saratoga to furnish the information on which the conclusions must be based.

No Primary Plank Drawn.

The direct primaries declaration which is to be made in the platform furnishes the best illustration of what Col. Roosevelt means. He himself has no set conviction as to any particular form which that plank should take. Nor have any of the men with whom he has been in most frequent consultation since his fight began. They say frankly that they must wait until they have opportunity at Saratoga to consult with all the other delegates and to find out what is waned by the people whom each delegate represents. When that has been ascertained the next step will be to endeavor to construct a primaries plank which will come as close as possible to declaring for what the majority of the people represented want. In other words, the effort is to make the platform really representative of the demand of the people.

So it is with the question of the nominee for Governor. Col. Roosevelt and the men who have been advising with him have no special suggestion to make on this point. They want to find out first what the delegates desire, and in doing that they want to discuss the qualifications and disqualifications of any and all the men who have been or may be suggested for the post. They have been doing that very thing ever since Col. Roosevelt entered the fight. The more they talk over different men the more points of advantage and disadvantage are brought out, and as these points are discussed at Saratoga they expect the field to be narrowed down.

So far as Col. Roosevelt is concerned, it was made absolutely clear to-day that there will be not the slightest attempt on his part to enforce any special view of his own on any delegate or on the convention. He expects to run for the temporary Chairmanship against Vice President Sherman and to be elected. Then he will make a speech which will be along the lines of that of last Saturday at Syracuse and what he said during his Western trip. He regards it as entirely proper and legitimate in that public manner to give any advice and urge any course he sees fit upon the convention as a whole, and he will do so with all his customary vigor and directness.

Conferees in High Spirits.

The Colonel put in a good deal of this afternoon in consultation with a delegation of Republican leaders from this part of the State. There were Lloyd C. Griscom, President of the New York County Republican Committee; Herbert Parsons, Mr. Griscom's predecessor in that place; Otto T. Bannard, the Republican candidate at the last Mayoralty election; F. J. H. Kracke, naval officer of the Port of New York and a Brooklyn leader; Congressman William M. Calder, and Congressman William W. Cocks of the Nassau County district, in which Col. Roosevelt lives. These all told Col. Roosevelt that the news they had received from different parts of the State regarding the election of delegates to the State Convention indicated that the progressive Republicans would be in a majority of about 100 when the whole 1,015 were assembled.

The Colonel and all his callers were openly elated over the doings in Schenectady yesterday, when there was a sudden uprising of the progressives that overthrew the Barnes organization in the county convention and elected a solid progressive delegation to Saratoga. Up to then Mr. Griscom had not made any large predictions as to the majority by which he expected the progressives to control the convention, although he had steadfastly claimed that they would control. But when all the information available was totaled to-day it was agreed by all present that the majority would be at least a hundred.

It was pointed out that it might be considerably more, for there was a suggestion that when the vote on Temporary Chairmanship is taken, all the delegations should be polled. It is as plain as a pikestaff that voting individually on a roll call will be a very different proposition with a considerable number of the delegates from voting county by county, where the Chairman simply announces so many for Roosevelt or so many for Sherman. The permanency of a roll call

SHOOTS AT AUTO PARTY.

Police Puzzled by Tale of a Fight in a Speeding Motor.

The story of a strange shooting affray, followed by a struggle in an automobile and the sudden disappearance of the motor and its fighting occupants, spread through the uptown theatre district late last night. The police and detectives from the West Fifty-second Street branch of the Detective Bureau are puzzled, but early this morning were trying hard to get some trace of the vanished automobile.

Policeman Brady of West Forty-seventh Street Station House, was walking along Eighth Avenue toward Forty-sixth Street last night when he overheard several men talking about a shooting, which had occurred in the neighborhood. Brady began to make inquiries. The men told him that Mrs. Margaret Hadley, of 262 West Forty-sixth Street, could tell him all about it so Policeman Brady went there.

Mrs. Hadley said that about 9:30 o'clock she was in her apartments on the second floor when she heard a shot in the street. Looking out the window she saw an automobile containing several persons, speeding east. She says that the license number was quite plain.

"Standing on the pavement just below my window was a young woman who is known in the neighborhood as 'Gladys,' said Mrs. Hadley. "I don't know her last name I called to her and asked if any one had been shot. She told me that a man had been standing on the sidewalk when an automobile stopped. The man pulled out a revolver and fired at some one in the car, then sprang into the car himself and began to struggle with one of the occupants. There was a woman in the car, Gladys said. All of a sudden the automobile started off, the men still struggling. It went through Forty-sixth Street and disappeared. That is all I know about it."

Policeman Brady went to the station house and reported. The Fourth Branch of the Detective Bureau in West Fifty-second Street was notified, and two detectives were sent out to investigate. Mrs. Hadley repeated her story to them.

At an early hour this morning the detectives were still looking for the young woman known as Gladys. An effort was also being made to find the owner of an automobile bearing the license number Mrs. Hadley says she saw.

The audiences of the Gaiety and the Globe Theatres heard the story of the shooting as they left the theatres, and there was much speculation as to what had really happened.

CHANLER REVOKES

That "Irrevocable" Power of Attorney Given to His Bride.

Robert Winthrop Chanler, the husband of Natalima Cavalieri, the opera singer, took yesterday the first step he has made personally in his own behalf since it was announced he had deeded his entire real estate to her, and had made her his attorney to collect rents and income to the amount of $20,000. Chanler broke his long silence to revoke the power of attorney to Cavalieri, which the antenuptial indenture referred to as "irrevocable."

This step is taken as indicating possibly a new attitude by Mr. Chanler in the controversy over the marriage settlement. All previous attempts to set aside the ante-nuptial agreement have been made through third parties, such as creditors and Mr. Chanler's first wife, Julia Chamberlain Chanler. It has been freely reported that Mr. Chanler was still devoted to his bride, and for this reason was unwilling to take any steps to set aside the agreement.

The announcement that Mr. Chanler had taken this step was made through his personal attorney, Sidney Harris, who declined to add to it.

IDEAL STUDENT DIES INSANE.

Royce Entered Harvard at 14 and Was the Wonder of His Instructors.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., Sept. 22.—Christopher Royce, son of Prof. Josiah Royce, died to-day at the Danvers Insane Hospital, a victim of overstudy.

Royce, who was 28 years old, had been confined in the Danvers Institute since January, 1908 when his father petitioned the Probate Court at East Cambridge for a guardian for him on the grounds of his insanity.

Christopher Royce was was one of the most precocious students who ever matriculated at Harvard University. He entered at the age of 14, and from his first recitation until his graduation he was pointed out as an ideal undergraduate student.

He early showed a marked proficiency in mathematics, and his work was the wonder of his instructors and professors.

Graduating in 1900 he entered the graduate school of Applied Science and began to delve more deeply into the abstruse problems of the higher mathematics. Sallies into the field of astronomy naturally followed.

Having covered the astronomical field in 1903 Royce became interested in music and did good work in that field.

FALSE BOTTOM IN HER TRUNK

Customs Agents Seize Mrs. Scharf's Baggage and Will Confiscate It.

Mrs. Jedda Scharf of 305 Grand Street, Brooklyn, who arrived as a second-cabin passenger on the Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse on Tuesday, vainly tried to explain to Surveyor Henry and Special Deputy Surveyor Smyth in the Custom House yesterday why there was a false bottom in her trunk, where goods were hidden, and also about some jewelry which women Inspectors found concealed in her clothing. Mrs. Scharf's declaration amounted only to $15.

"A cousin of mine packed the trunk," said Mrs. Scharf. "I didn't know what he put in, but he may have placed a board over some things to keep them from being crushed." She said she did not understand how to make a declaration.

The Surveyor ordered all of her effects seized, appraised, and sold at public auction. Mr. Smyth said the woman would not be prosecuted criminally because she did not understand English and could not make out the declaration.

Miss Clara F. Laplace of New Orleans, whose baggage was held up when she arrived on Wednesday on the Friedrich der Grosse, due to her failure to declare more than $100 of her $700 worth of effects, was ordered to pay the penalty of full value for the goods with duty added, amounting to $605.

LUSITANIA TRIED FOR A NEW RECORD

Comes Close to Best Mark, Arriving with More Passengers Than Ever Before.

KERMIT ROOSEVELT ABOARD

He's Not Engaged to Miss Rutherfurd or Anybody Else, He Says—Sir Alfred Mond Comes to Lecture.

Bringing more passengers than she has ever brought across the Atlantic since she went into commission, the Cunard liner Lusitania arrived last night. Although she was abeam the Ambrose Channel Lightship at 6:37 P. M., it was nearly 11 o'clock when she landed her passengers. The fleet of tugs had trouble in getting the big vessel alongside her pier in the swift running tide.

The trip of the Lusitania came near being a record breaking one. Her time of passage was 4 days, 13 hours and 26 minutes, as against her record over the short course westward of 4 days 11 hours and 42 minutes. Capt. Charles was confident at the beginning of the journey that he would do so, and early reports received from the vessel inspired the officials here with the belief that she was on a record making run. She maintained an average of 25.40 knots, and a final burst of speed would have brought her ahead of her record time. The days' runs were: From Daunts Rock to noon Sunday 00 knots, to noon Monday 647 knots, to noon Tuesday 627 knots, to noon Wednesday 631 knots, and to noon yesterday 632 knots.

Every cabin on the big liner was taken and her steerage was filled to capacity. She had 503 first, 457 second, and 1,154 third class passengers.

Among those who arrived on the Lusitania was Kermit Roosevelt. He has acquired a slight brown mustache and a green hat. He stood alone on the pier after the vessel berthed. There was no one there to meet him, and as soon as he could get his things together and have them examined by the customs officers he started for Oyster Bay. The visit of Kermit Roosevelt to Paris revived a rumor that he was to marry Miss Margaret Rutherfurd, the daughter of Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt.

Mr. Roosevelt denies most emphatically that he is engaged to marry or that his mind is even bent in that direction.

"The story," he said, "is without foundation, and I do not know how it started. I have no intention to marry and I am not engaged to Miss Rutherfurd. In fact, I hardly know Miss Rutherfurd.

"I have been abroad six weeks, and I have had a good time. Now I return to enter Harvard next week. My mind is on my studies."

Young Mr. Roosevelt did not seem to mind his wait on the pier, and he said that he had not expected any of the family to meet him in New York.

Last week on the arrival of the Mauretania Miss Ethel Roosevelt was at the pier, expecting her brother on that vessel.

On his first visit to the United States Sir Alfred Mond, M. P., arrived on the Lusitania. He is Treasurer of the Free Trade Union of England, and while on this side he will lecture on the subject of free trade in Ottawa, Montreal, and Toronto. Sir Alfred is head of the Mond Nickel Company of London and many other corporations. He will go from New York to Sudbury, Ontario, to inspect the company's smelting plant there. He spoke enthusiastically on the subject of free trade.

"There is very little sentiment in England now against free trade," he said. "The desire for protection has been killed by the revolt against the tariff in this country and in France, Austria, and Germany. In France the high cost of living has had its effect, as it has in other countries.

"In Austria they have had to suspend the duty on meats, and in Germany there are protest meetings in many cities against the duty on food stuffs. The German Socialists are winning on a free trade issue.

"A study of the American tariff law has proved instructive in England. You collect the duty on a few of the big articles, like sugar and wool, and it costs more to collect the duties on other articles of small consumption than is brought in as revenue on these articles. The American tariff is practically prohibitive."

Among the many Americans on the Lusitania was J. Sergeant Cram, Tammany leader Murphy's closest political friend and adviser. With Mrs. Cram he has spent the Summer in Continental Europe. He is one of the delegates to the Democratic State Convention at Rochester.

"I am not in perfect touch with the political situation," he said, "but I read the news from Maine and it was the best news that I heard on the other side. It is an index of conditions."

Mr. Cram was told that the sentiment in the State was toward Gaynor as Democratic nominee. He turned smilingly to a friend and said: "What have I been telling you all the time? He is a good man. I saw that it looked like Gaynor, and he will make a good run."

Some one remarked that the Democrats could win in the State with any man.

"No, I don't think so," was his reply. "Never forget that there are slips between the cup and the lip. I believe, however, that we will win in the State."

Joseph Beecham, father of Thomas Beecham, the English impresario, was aboard. He said that English people do not take Hammerstein's venture in London seriously, and they are waiting to see what he is going to do. They believe he will not succeed.

Miss Fannie Ward returns after a season at the Palace in London. She will open on Oct. 2 at the Fifth Avenue Theatre.

Other arrivals were Capt. and Mrs. R. L. Aldercorn, Mr. and Mrs. Charles O. Arnold, Dr. and Mrs. Charles F. Blandel, Mr. and Mrs. G. P. Bissell, Prof. Hugh Black, Mrs. Robert Bruce Brown, James A. Burden, Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Cary, Mr. and Mrs. Sidney V. Colford, Jr. Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Devereux, W. B. Dickerman, Judge and Mrs. Edward Gray, Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Guthrie, the Right Rev. C. H. Kiasotving, Bishop of Texas; Mr. and Mrs. Samuel D. Lit, Col. W. Gordon McCabe, Mr. and Mrs. Horace Pettit, Mr. and Mrs. V. Gilpin Robinson, W. W. Rutherford, Mrs. Charles Boughton Wood, and Percy Wyndham.

ST. MARY'S LAKE EMPTIED.

Westchester Residents Fear Illness, as Fish Were Left to Die.

The residents of Harrison in Westchester County propose taking immediate action to force the owners of St. Mary's Lake to fill the lake with water, as it has just been drawn off, leaving thousands of fish to die, and it is feared the exposure of the mud bottom may result in much illness. The owners of the lake say the water was drawn off, so that the bed of the lake could be cleaned, as the Inter-Urban Water Company was to draw upon the lake for part of its water supply hereafter.

It is said that there is carp in the lake, too, weighing from fifteen to twenty pounds each and at the present time these fish are buried in the mud and that in time they will come to the surface and die. Many other kinds of fish have been left dry.

SOUND BOAT SINKS DISABLED LAUNCH

Five Men Thrown Into the East River When the Priscilla Runs Them Down.

ALL SAVED, ONE BADLY HURT

Engine on the Eva Went "Dead" and Occupants Failed to See Steamer's Approach in the Darkness.

While the gasoline launch Eva, owned by the Rev. Dr. A. S. Biddle and his son, A. G. Biddle, of 624 Montgomery Street, Jersey City, was being taken up the East River by the clergyman's son last evening with Policeman John H. Weiss of 1,005 Home Street, the Bronx, who was planning to buy the launch; his son, Wentworth Weiss; Weiss's cousin, Frederick James, and James Riddle of 33 Newark Avenue, Jersey City, as passengers, the engine suddenly went dead just off Clason Point.

A strong tide was going out, and while the five occupants of the launch were hailing boatmen on the shore for help the launch was carried, unknown to them, into midstream. All were so busy talking to the boatmen on shore and tinkering with the disabled machinery that they failed to notice that night was coming on and that they had lighted no lamp on the launch.

Suddenly the Fall River Line steamer Priscilla, bound upstream to the Sound, swept swiftly toward the small boat. Before the occupants of the launch noticed her the large steamer was directly upon them. The Captain of the steamer had not seen them in the darkness. Cries of warning came from the boatmen on the now distant shore, but it was too late. The steamer shot to starboard of the little launch, but the overhang struck the top of the cabin, splintering it, and capsizing the launch. The 25-foot boat was tossed like a feather out twenty feet from the steamer, and its five occupants spilled in the water.

All escaped the paddle wheel and the strong inward surge that followed in the wake of the Priscilla, but the launch was smashed to kindling wood. The crash of the collision was heard on shore, more than a quarter of a mile away. Immediately several boats put out to the rescue. Foremost among them was Cornelius Quinn, owner of a boathouse at Clason Point. He jumped into the motor boat Elk, owned by Edward J. Gilligan of the Clason Point Inn. With him were four or five helpers. They put on full speed and soon reached the five men, who were floundering in the water, numbed with cold. The Priscilla, which had stopped after the accident and prepared to lower a boat, continued up stream, seeing that the men were all saved.

The worst sufferer by the accident was Riddle, who was partly unconscious when rescued. He seemed at first to have suffered internal injuries. All five men were taken aboard the motor boat and a call sent by the watchers on shore to the Fordham Hospital, three miles away. Instead of landing them at Clason Point, however, Quinn decided to make for South Brother Island, which was only half a mile away. There all the men were taken to the Morrisania Yacht Club and revived, warmed, and furnished with dry clothing. All except Riddle were later able to leave for the Clason Point shore, and thence to proceed to their homes in this city and New Jersey.

Riddle was found to be seriously hurt, and he was removed to the Riverside Hospital on North Brother Island. There it was said he had suffered from shock and submersion, and that several ribs may be found to have been broken.

The Eva was a new gasoline launch thirty-five feet long with a three-quarter deck and a hunting cabin. It had been moored for the Summer at the foot of Cyprus Avenue and the Harlem River until Weiss negotiated for it several days ago.

FOUND THE BISHOP'S WALLET

Negro Porter Picked It Up on the French Line Pier and Owner Got It.

Two touring automobiles in which were several priests who attended the Eucharistic Congress at Montreal and were on their way back to France drove on the French line pier yesterday morning a few minutes before the sailing of the steamship Lorraine for Havre. A minute later Detectives Moody and Leeson of the Central Office saw B. J. Jackson, a negro porter, pick up a wallet.

The porter did not try to hide the fact that he had the wallet, and readily consented to having its contents examined when the detectives approached him. In the wallet were found 400 francs, a money order for 10,000 francs, $90 in American cash, and a steamship ticket for Havre made out in the name of Mgr. Fouche, Bishop of Orleans. The detectives found the Bishop aboard, and their information was his first intimation that he had lost anything.

The Bishop gave the porter $5 for his honesty. When the Bishop heard that Detective Leeson's wife and daughter had died recently he said he would offer up a mass for them on the Lorraine to-day.

HAMILTON WILL FLY IN CHICAGO RACE

Noted Aviator Notifies The Times That He Will Positively Compete in the Great Contest.

HIS ENGAGEMENTS ARRANGED

Man Who Flew to Philadelphia and Back Had Feared His Contracts Might Prevent His Starting.

Charles K. Hamilton announced yesterday that he would certainly start in THE NEW YORK TIMES-Chicago Evening Post $25,000 aeroplane race from Chicago to New York. Hamilton made a formal entry two months ago, but his outside engagements made his entry conditional. Recent events have changed the situation, and he has now notified THE NEW YORK TIMES that he will positively compete.

Hamilton has been in the West for several weeks giving exhibitions on the Pacific coast. Since his remarkable flight from New York to Philadelphia and return, when he created a new record for continuous flight, he has occupied a high place among the aviators not only in the United States but in Europe. He has been in great demand throughout the country for exhibitions, but in common with other prominent aviators he believes that the Chicago-New York flight is the most important event in the aviation world and will bring to the winner of that contest the reputation of achieving the most remarkable performance ever accomplished by an aeronaut.

No event in the history of aviation has stirred the followers of the science as this one. Two years ago the performance of flying from Chicago to New York inside of seven days would have been considered an impossibility, but the recent development of the aeroplane has demonstrated that the flight is comparatively easy with favorable weather conditions. It was not until Curtiss made his famous flight from Albany to New York that the aviation world was awakened to the possibility of the aeroplane. Since that time Hamilton has surpassed all previous records in this country by making his famous trip to Philadelphia and return. This event marked a new era in the history of aviation, and opened up the possibilities of continuous flights for long distances.

In Europe long flights have been made, notably that of Moissant, from Paris to London, and also a long-distance flight in France, where nearly 300 miles were covered by aviators under most adverse conditions. The flight from London to Manchester, in which Paulhan, the French aviator, and Grahame-White, the English birdman, competed, proved that the possibilities of the aeroplane for long-distance flights has only begun to be demonstrated.

The recent performances of Grahame-White at the Boston aviation meet, and the performances of Glenn H. Curtiss and other aviators in different parts of the country, have emphasized the fact that the accomplishment of a flight from Chicago to New York, a distance of more than 900 miles, is feasible.

Hamilton will soon start from the Pacific Coast for Chicago, and will take part in the preliminary flights which will precede the start of the race from Chicago to New York. In a telegram from Sacramento, Cal., Hamilton notified THE NEW YORK TIMES and The Chicago Evening Post that he would leave on Sept. 25 for Chicago with his 110 horse power Hamilton plane for the long flight. He will also take to Chicago a smaller machine, which he will use at the preliminary meeting there for fancy flying.

Among the aviators who have made formal entry for the race from Chicago are Charles Foster Willard, J. D. McCurdy, Eugene B. Ely, Tod Shriver, James Radley of England, and Dr. William Greene of Rochester. Several other noted aviators intend to enter the contest, but have not officially signified their intention of taking part in the competition.

Special to The New York Times.

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Sept. 22.—"I will leave here on Monday next to take part in the Chicago-New York aeroplane race arranged by THE NEW YORK TIMES and The Chicago Evening Post," said Charles K. Hamilton to-night. "I feel in fairly good shape now after my accident, thirteen days ago, at the State Fair, and will be in good condition by Oct. 1, when the Chicago meet opens, preliminary to the start of the race on Oct. 8. After making flights here on Saturday and Sunday next I will have demonstrated that I am all right for the Chicago trip."

Hamilton still goes about with a cane, as a result of his 100-foot fall before 100,000 persons at the State Fair, on Sept. 9, when he lowered the world's record for a mile-circular flight, making the course in minute flat.

"The 'Hamiltonian,' my big biplane, is in good shape now for the long trip expected of me between Chicago and New York," he added. "I will use a 70-horse-power motor for exhibition purposes and a 110-horse-power for the long flight. I expect to get away with the $25,000 offered by THE NEW YORK TIMES and The Chicago Evening Post."

Hamilton says a 900-mile flight could be made without stopping, but he does not believe this will be necessary. About 200 or 300 miles, he thinks, will be good enough for one trip without alighting. He expects to make from 50 to 55 miles an hour, but with a competitor close at hand the pace may be made faster.

Hamilton is still suffering from a bad back, and says he is able to stay in the machine now for only a few hours at a time, but at the rapid rate at which he has been getting over the injuries of two weeks ago he expects to be in good physical condition for the daring flight. He says he could only stay in the air possibly two or three hours now.

"I was afraid after I had this fall," he said, "that I could not make the Chicago-New York race, but after a little more rest I will be all right. This trip will be the longest yet attempted, but I see no reason why I should not make it."

Bishop Sellew Tells Methodists That Its Spirit Is In Decay.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, Sept. 22.—Bishop Walter A. Sellew of Jamestown, N. Y., in his address to-day to the Pittsburg Conference of the Free Methodist Church, in session at Vandergrift, sounded a warning to Protestants and declared that Protestantism was in decay. He said in part:

"My heart is greatly grieved at spiritual conditions as they exist generally in the world. I am not at all optimistic. I have tried to be, but I cannot be. The spirit of Protestantism in the United States is in decay. At the Catholic Eucharistic Conference of the world held recently in Montreal 300,000 persons slept out of doors. Mrs. Sellew and I despaired of securing a bed, but finally succeeded in finding one. Protestantism is dying out and will soon be a thing of the past.

"At the World's Missionary Convention held at Edinburgh one prominent man said that in ten years from now delegates from the Catholic Church would have seats in our missionary conventions and would be welcome. No one had backbone enough to oppose the idea except a few who weakly inserted "noes."

MAY LOCK OUT 430,000 MEN.

German Metal Workers to Stop If Shipbuilding Strike Continues.

BERLIN, Sept. 22.—The Metal Workers Employers' Association met to-day and voted to lock out the organized workmen in the trade on Oct. 8 unless the striking shipbuilders return to work before that day. The organized metal workers have been making contributions for the support of the idle shipbuilders, and to-day's action is designed to influence the latter to return to work on pain of losing one source of financial assistance.

To-night the employers' association gave to the press a statement in which it was said that 60 per cent. of the working force of the entire metal industry would be locked out on Oct. 8 and remain locked out until the differences with the shipbuilding yards were adjusted and sympathetic strikes were declared off. The statement estimates that 800,000 workmen will be affected, but The Tageblatt puts the number at 430,000.

ROOSEVELT WON'T ANSWER STORERS

His Published Letters, He Says, Make a Record on Which He's Content to Stand.

WHAT HE SAID AS ROOSEVELT

And What He Said as President Are Quite in Different Categories, and Should Not Be Confused.

The publication yesterday of Mrs. Bellamy Storer's letter to The Springfield Republican reopening the old controversy as to Theodore Roosevelt's alleged activities as President in behalf of the elevation of Archbishop John Ireland of St. Paul to the Cardinalate did not in the least disturb the equanimity of the Colonel. He was busy with political conferences at Oyster Bay most of yesterday, and had small time to consider the new attack from Mrs. Storer. When it was called to his attention at the close of the day he simply laughed and refused to be drawn into any renewal of the discussion which raged so hotly about four years ago. For once he joined the standpatters, and the only thing he would say was to refer to the correspondence which he himself published in December, 1906, following the publication of the pamphlet prepared by Mr. Storer and sent to all the Cabinet and members of the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations.

"Four years ago," said Col. Roosevelt, "all the letters from me to the Storers and from them to me were published. These make the record against which no recollection of verbal conversations can stand. The letters must speak for themselves. The record made by them is incompatible with the idea that I was constantly saying something entirely different to the same people to whom the letters were written."

No Question of Veracity.

Col. Roosevelt declined to consider that any real question of veracity had been raised by the letter of Mrs. Storer, even in her quotation of letters to her from Archbishop Ireland, in whom the prelate quoted a conversation with President Roosevelt, reporting the President as having told him in explicit terms of having directed Mr. Storer to go to Rome and say to the Pope that Mr. Roosevelt would be personally gratified at the promotion of Mgr. Ireland. The Colonel merely replied to this suggestion that what he had said before covered it entirely, and reiterated his declaration that the record made by the letters must stand against any recollection of a verbal conversation.

It was pointed out yesterday that as a matter of fact, examination of the whole correspondence will show that the trouble between Col. Roosevelt and the Storers arose from the effort of the ambassador and his wife to give to personal and private utterances of the President an official status. Mr. Roosevelt constantly drew a distinction between his saying as a personal friend of Mgr. Ireland that he would be delighted to have the Archbishop made a Cardinal, and his saying any such thing in his capacity as President.

When he wrote as President or whenever he talked about it he was always careful to declare that he could not interfere in such a matter. His letters to the Storers, quoted in the letter to Secretary Root of Dec. 9, 1906, constantly warn them that as President he could do nothing in the matter, and that they must not represent him as interfering in any way. At the same time they frequently express his feeling that he would be glad to see Mgr. Ireland promoted.

Wish as a Private Citizen.

There is no doubt that Mr. Roosevelt, when President, did say to Archbishop Ireland very much the same thing. He probably said it several times, for the Archbishop was a rather frequent caller at the White House, and this was a subject likely to come up often. Mr. Roosevelt has always talked freely with his friends, and has trusted them not to make an indiscreet use of what he said. The membership of the Ananias Club is composed largely of those who have in one way or another violated this trust. And that is what happened to the Storers.

There was no reason why Mr. Roosevelt should not say to Monsignor Ireland what he was writing to the Storers, that he would be pleased if the Archbishop were made a cardinal, and it is not surprising that Mr. Storer should have received the impression that the President was willing or even desired, to have him say as much to the Pope. The indiscretion would begin with any attempt to give an official meaning or status to such a conversation, and right there the trouble developed. From Mr. Roosevelt's point of view the distinction is perfectly clear and easily to be seen, although the Storers and most other people seem not to have recognized it.

It was pointed out yesterday that in the light of that distinction no question of veracity is raised as between Mr. Roosevelt and Archbishop Ireland by the publication of the prelate's letter giving in quotation marks his recollection of what President Roosevelt had said to him. And the same distinction covers the whole correspondence with the Storers.

The Utterance While Governor.

Of course, what Mr. Roosevelt said and said about the possible promotion of Mgr. Ireland when he was Governor of New York comes in an entirely different category to what he might say and do after he became President. As Governor of New York he had nothing to do with National affairs, and it might be entirely proper for him then to do and say what it would be improper for him to do or say as President. He pointed that fact out to the Storers in some of the letters he wrote them after the situation had become strained. It appeared to him that they were using, or endeavoring to use, what he had said as Governor as if it were to have the same force as coming from him as President. That increased his indignation at their indiscreet use of remarks which he had freely made to them after coming to the White House.

But it is not likely now that any effort on the part of Mrs. Storer or anybody else will succeed in drawing the Colonel into a renewal of the controversy. He is convinced that the published correspondence makes a complete record which cannot honestly be controverted, and he will not attempt to add anything to it on his own account.

OMAHA, Neb., Sept. 22.—Archbishop John Ireland, who arrived in this city this morning from St. Paul with Cardinal Vannutelli and his party, declines absolutely to make any comment upon the letters which Mrs. Bellamy Storer furnished to The Springfield Republican, and which were printed in that paper to-day, reopening the Storer-Roosevelt-Ireland incident of 1906.

At the residence of Bishop Scannell, when the report containing the latest letters made public by Mrs. Storer was shown to the Archbishop, he read it carefully and then remarked quietly:

"Please say that the Archbishop says he has nothing to give out on the matter. Say this and nothing more."

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Sept. 22.—Mrs. Bellamy Storer is in France, whence her letter was mailed to The Republican here.

DON'T KNOW COL. ROOSEVELT

Cardinal Vannutelli Says He Had Hardly Heard of Him at Home.

Special to The New York Times.

OMAHA, Neb., Sept. 22.—Cardinal Vannutelli, Papal Legate to the recent Eucharistic Congress in Montreal, is visiting Bishop Scannel of the Catholic Diocese of Omaha, and to-night held a public reception attended by thousands of Catholics and non-Catholics.

This afternoon Cardinal Vannutelli was asked his opinion of Col. Roosevelt.

"Col. Roosevelt? Ah, yes," answered the Legate with a shrug. "That 's your ex-President. I do not know Mr. Roosevelt. I never met him in my life. In fact, I do not think I ever heard of him except a very few times. I scarcely knew who he was until I came to this country."

BARNES ATTACKS ROOSEVELT.

His "Hold on the Unthinking Mob Made Him All the Greater Danger."

ALBANY, N. Y., Sept. 22.—Before his selection to-day to head the twenty-eight Albany County anti-Roosevelt delegates to the Republican State Convention William Barnes, Jr., in an address to the First Assembly District Convention, said that the traditions and history of the Republican Party "has been assailed by an individual who seeks to control its policies and its candidates by appeal to passion." He pledged himself and associates to do what they could to keep the party "in the path of true Republicanism."

"In selecting delegates from this Assembly district to the State Convention," said Mr. Barnes, "we are about to name men who are to face a crisis in the history of the Republican Party in this State more serious than many imagine. The main issue cannot be lost sight of by those who are seeking to commit the Republican Party to doctrines antagonistic to its past and a menace to its future usefulness as the conservative force in the Nation. Our duty is plain."

Other delegates include Mayor James B. McEwan, United States Circuit Court Judge William J. Wallace, ex-Deputy Attorney General Danforth E. Ainsworth, and Charles R. Hotaling, Sergeant at Arms of the Senate.

In a bitter editorial in The Journal to-night Mr. Barnes says:

"President Stryker of Hamilton College in the convention of the Republicans of the Second Oneida District yesterday, was hooted for declaring that Mr. Roosevelt was a menace to the country. Other men will be hooted many times in the future for making the same expression. This very fact is proof of President Stryker's statement. Mr. Roosevelt's hold on the unthinking mob because of his attractive personal qualities and his force, in fact his very faults, made him all the greater danger. But the time will surely come when every citizen of this State, and of the Republic, will suffer from the possibility that Mr. Roosevelt may again occupy the White House, and from that official station promulgate that kind of doctrine which he clearly showed in his Western speeches to be in his thought.

"The Republican Party of the State of New York, at Saratoga, will either rebuke Mr. Roosevelt, or it will not. If it does not his mad following will increase, and one constitutional barrier after another will be broken down. The spirit of unrest which he has fostered will express itself in ways not now even dreamed of, and try as he may, if he has the power and attempts to do so, he will not be able to extinguish the fire which his own words have kindled."

Mr. Barnes had no comment to make to-day regarding the suggestion that United States Senator Elihu Root might be selected as compromise candidate for the Temporary Chairmanship of the Republican State Convention. He intimated, however, that he believed this question had been disposed of when the State Committee selected Vice-President Sherman.

Speaker James W. Wadsworth, Jr., who was in Albany to-day, thinks the Old Guard will win in the fight for control of the State Convention, but that it will be a close vote. He declares that he will oppose any plank pledging the party to direct nominations, while favoring primary reform along the lines of the Meade-Phillips bill. Speaker Wadsworth said he had not yet decided whether he should again run for the Assembly from Livingston County.

Ward Won't Help Roosevelt.

William L. Ward of Port Chester, the Republican National Committeeman, when asked yesterday about a report from Oyster Bay that he might support Col. Roosevelt at the Saratoga Convention, said: "The delegates to the convention from Westchester County were elected to support Mr. Sherman for Temporary Chairman and they will do so in the convention."

NAMES CAMPAIGN COMMITTEE

Citizens' Union Prepares to Take a Hand in the Political Struggle.

The Citizens' Union became an active factor in the political situation last night by the selection of a Campaign Committee at a meeting held at its headquarters at 41 Park Row with instructions to organize an independent movement to bring about the nomination of "honest and capable men" to serve in the next State Legislature.

William Jay Schieffelin, President of the union, was elected Chairman of the committee, the other members being Everett V. Abbot, Robert S. Binkerd, Julius Henry Cohen, Hamilton Holt, Raymond V. Ingersoll, Arthur C. Ludington, Arnold B. MacStay, Henry Moskowitz, William W. Niles, William L. Ransom, Allan Robinson, E. Platt Stratton, Gustave W. Thompson, and Bartley J. Wright.

Lewis Denies Asking Murphy to Quit.

TRENTON, N. J., Sept. 22.—Vivian M. Lewis, Republican candidate for Governor, denied to-day that he had asked Gov. Franklin Murphy to resign from the State Committee. Mr. Lewis said he had specifically requested him to stay and work in the committee, which ex-Gov. Murphy says he will gladly do. It is likely that the committee will this week name ex-Gov. John W. Griggs, W. M. Johnston, and William Summer as members-at-large of the committee, and United States Senator Frank O. Briggs as chairman.

Political Rival Offers Ridgway a Job.

Ernest C. Hinck, Republican candidate for Mayor of Montclair, N. J., has informed Erman J. Ridgway, whom he defeated at the primary election, that he will appoint him a member of the Mayor's advisory board if successful at the polls. It will be non-partisan. Edward E. Gnichtel, Republican candidate for Mayor of Newark, announced yesterday his platform, in which he pledges himself to support home rule, closer economy, better transit facilities, stricter enforcement of Public Service Corporation agreements, and the necessity of a new city charter.

Parties Renominate Justice Hirschberg

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Sept. 22.—Supreme Court Justice Michael H. Hirschberg of Newburg, now sitting on the bench of the Appellate Division for the Second Department, was renominated to-day by the Republicans of the Ninth Judicial District for another term of fourteen years. After the Republican Convention the Democrats met in the same courtroom and indorsed the renomination of Judge Hirschberg. This means that his name will be on both tickets.

LEADING DEMOCRATS FOR DIRECT PRIMARY

OSBORNE OUTLINES PLANKS

Would Base Platform on Tariff, Direct Nominations, Self-Government, and Home Rule.

ALBANY, Sept. 22.—Prominent Democrats who have been mentioned as possible Gubernatorial candidates to-night went on record as favoring direct nominations. They included Thomas M. Osborne, Martin H. Glynn, Representatives William Sulzer and James S. Havens, and ex-Justice D. Cady Herrick. Their views were made known at a mass meeting under the auspices of the progressive Democrats of New York State.

Mayor Gaynor failed to reply to an invitation asking for an expression of his views on the question. Mayor Fuhrmann of Buffalo and Justice Gerard of New York did not respond to invitations to address the meeting.

Mr. Glynn and Mr. Osborne spoke at the meeting, but the others were unable to attend and sent letters of regret, explaining their attitude.

"The principle of direct nominations," said Mr. Glynn, "is in line with true Democracy. Distrust of the people is the argument of all opponents of this principle. It is the cry from the high peak of educational attainment on which stands Jacob Gould Schurman to the lowest levels of political life, habited by the ward heeler phonographing the ideas of his boss.

"Thomas Jefferson said, 'I am not among those who fear the people,' and so say all the advocates of the principle of direct nominations. The people want not alone the power to elect their public officials. They also want the right to name those from whom their selections may be made.

"The bosses raise the cry that direct nominations will destroy representative government. That is false; it will destroy our present hodge-podge system of misrepresentative government, and that is why the bosses oppose it.

"If the people cannot be trusted in direct primaries they are unfit for trust under our present election system, and the bosses should be allowed to do all of the voting by themselves. To listen to the opponents of direct nominations one would think that the people were fools and had no brains."

Mr. Osborne made an attack on the tariff and on bossism. "No less destructive than the protective tariff to the Democratic principle," he said, "is the corrupt and corrupting influence in State and Nation of the so-called 'bosses.' Intrenched in power by means of tribute levied upon tariff beneficiaries and public service corporations these arrogant dispensers of patronage and directors of legislation have swelled the public expenditures by enormous sums for extravagance and waste, while legitimate and necessary expenses of Government are often unduly curtailed."

"Upon the support of the four great issues—the tariff, direct nominations, self-government, and home rule," said Mr. Osborne, "I should rest the platform which, following the method and much of the language of the Saratoga Declaration, I should word as follows:

"1. A reversal of such policies and methods pursued by the Republican Party in State and Nation as have contributed to the rapid and considerable increase in the cost of living.

"2. No subsidies to special interests either directly or through protective tariffs.

"3. Conservation of natural resources; so that what belongs to the whole people shall not be granted to favored individuals.

"4. No Federal interference in the rights of the States or in private business by means of a Federal corporation tax.

"5. Election of United States Senators by direct vote of the people.

"6. A constitutional amendment, properly and carefully drawn so as to preserve the rights of the States, authorizing the levy of a Federal income tax.

"7. Wise and business-like economy in governmental expenditures.

"8. The widest application of the principle of Home Rule to all municipalities.

"9. Personal registration and enrollment in every political subdivision of the State.

"10. A system of direct nominations of candidates for pubic office.

"11. Reform in our ballot laws so that each elective officer shall be the separate, deliberate, and intelligent selection of the voters.

"12. A continuation and perfecting of the policy of State oversight and regulation of public utilities.

On the opportunity which presented itself to the Democratic Party, Mr. Osborne said:

"It is our duty to speak out boldly in a platform of liberal principles and progressive policies; and selecting as leaders those in whose character and good judgment we have confidence, to await the word of advance.

"It may be said that in truth there is only one issue—that of special privilege; but that issue takes different forms. In the Nation it takes the shape of a fight against the iniquities of the tariff; in this State it takes the shape of a struggle for direct nominations.

"The moment we name these issues we are faced by an apparent embarrassment; we find that there is already a Richmond in the field, who has attempted to appropriate pretty nearly all the issues that can be fought over for the next generation. A certain mighty Hunter before the Lord has seen fit to annex not only the tariff question and direct nominations, but the Ten Commandments and the Golden Rule as well.

"His present position seems to be somewhat like that comic opera hero of Gilbert and Sullivan who was a 'fairy down to the waist, but whose legs were mortal,' and while his upper half was a 'Tory of the most determined description, his legs were a couple of confounded radicals." He was therefore sent to Parliament as a Liberal-Conservative."

THINKS GAYNOR WILL RUN.

Herman Ridder Takes That View After a Talk with the Mayor.

The impression that Mayor Gaynor will receive the Democratic nomination for Governor at the State Convention to be held at Rochester next week increased yesterday despite the fact that the Mayor himself continued to refrain from announcing his position.

Herman Ridder, owner and publisher of the Staats-Zeitung, one of the most enthusiastic Gaynor men in the city, went down to St. James on Wednesday for the express purpose of endeavoring, if possible, to induce the Mayor to say he would accept the nomination. He said yesterday:

"I found the Mayor still in doubt as to whether he should fill out his term as Mayor or not. He is hesitating between his duty to the people of the city and the call of the people of the State. The Mayor feels his obligation to the city strongly. He is still undecided what he will do. He did not indicate to me whether he would accept the nomination or refuse it, and I did not attempt to advise him on the subject. I simply wanted to find out how he felt about the matter. I did tell him, however, that I believed that he would be the strongest possible nominee that the party could name.

"I was agreeably surprised to find him in such excellent health. His recovery and his present condition is simply amazing, in view of the fact of what he has gone through."

Mr. Ridder showed clearly that he believed the Mayor would be the nominee, and that he will accept the nomination.

Before leaving for up-State yesterday afternoon State Chairman Dix announced that the State Committee had decided upon Alton B. Parker for Temporary Chairman of the convention. The Permanent Chairman has not yet been selected. Mr. Dix also sent this telegram to each member of the State Committee and all the County Chairmen before leaving town:

It is of vital importance that in every county and legislative district in the State, the strongest possible nominations be made for Legislature, Congress, and all local offices. Act with deliberation. Strengthen the party and serve the people by nominating in your various local conventions candidates of conceded character and ability.

Indications point to nominations at Rochester that will sweep the State. Nothing can be more conducive to a great Democratic victory that will include a Democratic Legislature and a Democratic Congress, than the nomination by local conventions of popular and unassailable candidates.

This year every county, every legislative district in the State is Democratic or debatable, if Democratic conventions do their duty and give the people clean and capable candidates.

The arrangements for the Democratic convention have all been perfected and everything is running along more smoothly than in years. The State Committee will meet for reorganization at the Whitcomb House in Rochester on Wednesday afternoon.

OLLIE JAMES FOR SENATE.

Kentucky Congressman Announces He Is Candidate to Succeed Paynter.

FRANKFORT, Ky., Sept. 22.—Congressman Ollie James to-day formally announced himself a candidate for United States Senator to succeed Thomas H. Paynter.

He says he will not be a candidate for Speaker of the House, but is for Champ Clark.

PARKER'S NEPHEW LOSES.

John M. Schoonmaker Deposed as Democratic Chairman in Ulster.

Special to The New York Times.

KINGSTON, N. Y., Sept. 22.—As the result of the recent fight in Ulster County for control of the delegates to the State Democratic Convention at Rochester next week, John M Schoonmaker, nephew of Judge Alton B. Parker, was to-day, by a vote of 20 to 12, deposed as Chairman of the Ulster County Democratic Committee, a post he has held for the past five years. Mr. Schoonmaker's failure to secure re-election surprised Parker men, who found themselves outnumbered in the County Convention that preceded the organization of the new County Committee, but nevertheless believed they would be allowed to remain in control of the county organization. James Jenkins, a Kingston lawyer, succeeds Mr. Schoonmaker.

In addition to making nominations to-day's convention adopted resolutions introduced by Commissioner Eugene A. Patten condemning the county Republican organization for lining up with the Old Guard at Saratoga.

THINK HEARST WILL RUN.

Politicians Convinced That He Will Take the Field Against Gaynor.

It was announced last night that the Independence League will hold a State Convention in this city on Oct. 5. The State Committee of the League is also making arrangements to hold local conventions, judicial, assembly, congressional, senatorial and county, throughout the State between Oct. 6 and 14.

This undoubtedly means that Mr. Hearst intends to enter the campaign this Fall in earnest, despite any previous statement he has made to the contrary. It is generally believed among the local politicians that if Mayor Gaynor is the candidate of the Democratis Mr. Hearst will do all that he can to injure him even if he has to go to the extent of inaugurating a State campaign of his own in the name of the League.

It has been estimated that this will cost him in the neighborhood of $100,000. Bets were being made last night that Mr. Hearst will nominate himself for Governor and indorse the rest of the Republican ticket.

VOTED FOR THE DEMOCRATS.

The primary results of North Bergen Township, N. J., tabulated yesterday by Deputy County Clerk Edward Griffin of Hudson County, showed that Henry C. Jaeger and Charles J. Morris, who had no opposition for nomination on the Democratic ticket for Freeholders, ceived in the Republican ballot box 221 votes each, while the vote polled for the Republican nominees was 87 for James Martin and 88 for John Place.

Charles Dietz, Democratic nominee for Mayor, received in the Republican box 219 votes to 92 for Ruff, who was voted for by the Republicans. Robert Wiencke, voted for by the Democrats for Collector of Taxes in the same township, is credited with 220 votes in the Republican box, against 91 for Edward W. Cox, Republican.

For Councilmen on the Democratic ticket Henry Andes, Edward Beck, and Charles Heinrichs all received more votes in the Republican primary box than the Republicans who were voted for for similar nominations. The result is that the Democrats have received the Republican indorsement and the Republicans will have no nominee to vote for on Election Day.

A TRUCE IN OHIO ARRANGED BY TAFT

President Induces Burton to Suspend Fight on Cox and Take Stump for Harding.

URGED PARTY'S DIRE NEED

President Also Promises to Send Spell-Binders and Perhaps Secretary Nagel to Give Help in the Campaign.

Special to The New York Times.

CINCINNATI, Sept. 22.—A temporary cessation of the fight of Senator Theodore E. Burton of Cleveland on George B. Cox of Cincinnati was secured this morning at the conference in Cincinnati between President Taft and Senator Burton. The upshot is that Senator Burton will decline to go to Los Angeles to speak before the American Bankers' Association, and will devote his time to stumping the State of Ohio for Warren G. Harding of Marion, candidate for the Governorship on the Republican ticket by Cox's aid.

In their talk this mornig at the home of Charles P. Taft in Pike Street President Taft and Senator Burton discussed the whole Ohio situation. They were together for more than an hour. President Taft first showed his visitor his brother's collection of paintings, then retired with him to the library. It is understood from friends of Senator Burton that they not only touched upon the State situation, but included the wrangle which has been going on for several weeks between Burton and Cox over the failure of Burton to live up to the agreement he is said to have made with Cox.

President Taft urged harmony. He told Senator Burton that the situation in Ohio demanded the Senator's attention, and that every Republican in Ohio must get out and hustle if the party was to win.

It is not asserted that the President's efforts have entirely removed from Senator Burton's mind the sting of Cox's "pinhead" characterization. But it does assure the elimination of any personal strife existing between Cox and Burton during the campaign. The Senator declined to discuss the matter, but gave assurance that he is ready to devote himself wholly to the party's interests.

Further President Taft promised some of the Ohio Republican leaders to-day that he would ask several speakers of National prominence to take part in the Fall campaign. The President said that he also might ask Secretary Nagel of the Department of Commerce and Labor to make a few speeches in the State.

Mr. Taft heard reports of the progress of the campaign not only from Senator Theodore Burton but from Lewis C. Laylin, Chairman of the Republican Executive Committee, and Malcolm Jennings, Secretary of the same committee. In the forenoon Mr. Taft held an almost continuous reception at his brother's home, talking with many of his old friends.

Among these callers were Dr. C. W. Dabney, President of Cincinnati University, who was Assistant Secretary of Agriculture at Washington when Mr. Taft was Solicitor General and Theodore Roosevelt was Civil Service Commissioner. It was at that time that the three became friends.

Mr. Taft lunched with J. G. Schmidlap and afterward had Mr. Schmidlap as his opponent in an eighteen-hole golf game at the Cincinnati Golf Club. This evening the President dined at the home of Representative Nicholas Longworth. Mr. Taft will remain in Cincinnati till Saturday afternoon, leaving then for Washington, where he is due early Sunday morning.

NEW HAMPSHIRE DEMOCRATS.

Convention Adopts Platform Demanding Tariff Reduction.

CONCORD, N. H., Sept. 22.—The party convention provisions of the new direct primary law in New Hampshire were tested for the first time to-day, when the Democratic State Convention was held in this city. Under the new law, the candidates of both the Republican and Democratic parties for State and county officers and congressmen were made at the joint primaries held Sept 6. The only thing left for the party conventions, therefore, was the adoption of party platforms.

The Democratic platform which was unanimously adopted to-day demands:

"Immediate downward revision of the tariff in the interests of the consumer; parcels post; adoption of the Federal income tax amendments, the election of United States Senators by the people; the elimination of one-man control of congress as expressed by Cannonism; effective trust regulations, conservation of natural resources, and the passage of the White Mountain Forest Reserve Bill."

Regarding State issues, the platform calls for economy in State expenditures, effective abolition of the free pass, legal and just freight rates and revision of laws so as to equalize tax burdens.

Clarence E. Carr, party candidate for Governor, addressed the delegates, after which the convention adjourned.

record has always had peculiar terrors for the organization politician when he wants to vote for what he knows to be an unpopular proposition, and if a roll call can be had on the Temporary Chairmanship at Saratoga it is bound to have its effect in enlarging the Roosevelt majority.

The talk about a nominee for the Governorship to-day brought out a new name that has not been suggested before. It was that of Elias Mann, Mayor of Troy. A good many of the men who have talked with Col. Roosevelt about the convention desire to name an up-State man for the Governorship. In addition to Mr. Mann, the names of Senator Harvey D. Hinman of Broome County, Senator Frederick M. Davenport of Oneida County, Dr. Jacob Gould Schurman, President of Cornell University, and Frederic C. Stevens, Director of State Highways, have been suggested. From the New York district there are Henry J. Stimson, prosecutor of the Sugar Trust, Congressman Cocks, and Conogressman Bennet. Controller Prendergast has also been mentioned, but he is out of it by his own definite declaration.

So far only one suggestion for the Lieutenant Governorship has been made. It was the name of Samuel B. Donnelly of Brooklyn, who now holds the office of Public Printer at Washington. He is a union labor man, who took a prominent part in the printers' organization, and sided with President Roosevelt against Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor.

None of those present at to-day's conference would admit that the discussion of these names had developed any preference for any particular man. They all agreed that the question was one which could be determined only by the delegates at Saratoga.

Which was only saying again that it is to be an open convention—the most tremendous innovation in Republican politics—or Democratic, either, for that matter—in New York State in half a century or more.

After the conference the attitude of the Roosevelt forces toward the Taft Administration was outlined by Mr. Bannard.

"In my opinion," said he, "the Saratoga Convention will adopt a resolution strongly indorsing the Administration of President Taft. In accordance with the President's expressed wish, no mention will be made of any renomination in 1912. No opposition to an indorsement of the Administration will come from delegates friendly to Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Griscom."

Mr. Bannard's statement, coming directly after the conference, was taken as a plain indication that Mr. Roosevelt had agreed with the others on this programme.

Mr. Griscom said he had brought good news to Sagamore Hill.

"I reported to Col. Roosevelt," he said, "that there had been several accessions to our ranks, among them delegates from Dutchess and Montgomery Counties. There may be more. Col. Roosevelt will be temporary Chairman. There is no question about that. We shall have a majority of more than 100 delegates."

CAYUGA FOR ROOSEVELT.

Sereno E. Payne Heads Delegation Instructed to Support the Colonel.

Special to The New York Times.

AUBURN, N. Y., Sept. 22.—The Cayuga County Republican Convention was held to-day, and the presence of many insurgents brought forth from the organization a resolution indorsing Theodore Roosevelt for Chairman of the State Convention, as follows:

Resolved, That while we deprecate the contest now being waged within the party for the factional supremacy, and urge the sinking of such differences in the interest of party harmony and success, we believe that a majority of Republicans in this county indorse the selection of Theodore Roosevelt for Temporary Chairman, and we request our delegates to the State Convention to cast their votes for him.

A delegation of eleven headed by Congressman Sereno E. Payne was named, and to the surprise of the insurgents nearly all were recognized as anti-Roosevelt men.

CORTLAND, N. Y., Sept. 22.—The Republican Convention of Cortland County unanimously indorsed Hughes and Roosevelt to-day, and instructed its delegates so to vote at the Republican State Convention at Saratoga.

GLOVERSVILLE, N. Y., Sept. 22.—Former Representative Lucius N. Littauer will head the Fulton-Hamilton Assembly district delegation to the Republican State Convention, which was instructed for primary reform along the lines advocated by Theodore Roosevelt at to-day's convention at Johnstown. Alden Hart of Gloversville was nominated for member of Assembly by acclamation.

ELMIRA, N. Y., Sept. 22.—Seymour Lowman of Elmira was nominated to-day as the Republican candidate for State Senator to suceeed Benn Conger in the Forty-first District, comprising Chemung, Schuyler, Tioga, and Tompkins Counties. The candidate was instructed and agreed to stand for primary reform as advocated by Hughes, Taft, and Root. In the Assembly last year Mr. Lowman voted against the Hughes Primary bills.

ON TO SARATOGA.

The Old Guard to Arrive First—Griscom Going by Motor Boat.

The leaders in this city of both the "Old Guard" and "Progressive" camps of the Republican Party were striking their tents yesterday preparatory to marching on Saratoga for the final fight. William Barnes, Jr., of Albany, leader in fact of the Old Guard, will be first to arrive at the seat of war. He will take a morning train for Saratoga from his home in Albany to-day.

State Chairman Woodruff, Col. Lafayette B. Gleason, and Col. Michael Dady of Brooklyn will leave the city about noon to-day. They will be joined up the Hudson by that other pillar of the Old Guard, William L. Ward of Westchester, the New York State National Committeeman.

The Progressives will not arrive on the battlefield until later. Chairman Lloyd Clement Griscom of the New York County Committee got the blue and gold banner of the organization out of the moth balls last night after his return to town from Oyster Bay and brushed it up preparatory to starting early to-morrow morning. He will march upon Saratoga with it in probably the most unusual way that a leader ever approached that scarred political battlefield.

With Ogden Livingston Mills he will go up the Hudson in the motorboat Tarpon, which nearly drowned Col. Roosevelt in his trip across the Sound from Oyster Bay to New Haven to meet President Taft. They will stop off at Staatsburg, where they will meet Earl Dodge, the owner of the Tarpon. Both he and Mr. Mills have been elected delegates to the convention. From Staatsburg the three will motor across country to Saratoga, arriving late Saturday.

The office staff of both the County and State Committees will leave for Saratoga to-morrow afternoon, and the local delegations will begin to depart on Sunday and Monday. Col. Roosevelt will arrive at the scene of battle on Monday afternoon.

It is understood that no effort has been made yet to draw the Old Guard platform. The leaders are waiting until they find out which way the wind is going to blow before they act.

MRS. J. E. MARTIN FINED.

Caught Speeding Her Auto in Flushing—Borrows $20 from Her Chauffeur.

Mrs. James E. Martin, widow of James E. Martin, Jr., who died in France of typhoid fever about two and a half years ago, and whose father-in-law, James E. Martin, Sr., was killed in an automobile accident in Broadway, Flushing, on Christmas Eve, 1905, was arrested near the scene of the accident yesterday charged with driving her car at more than twenty-five miles an hour. She was accompanied by her chauffeur, Mills Fogelgreen, and was on her way from her country home in Great Neck to Manhattan.

Bicycle Policeman McEvoy, who made the arrest, took his prisoner to the Flushing Police Court before Magistrate Fitch.

"If the officer says we were traveling more than twenty-five miles an hour," she said, "I suppose it must be so, but for the last five years I have been going through Flushing at about the same rate of speed as to-day, and this is the first time I have ever been arrested."

"I have but one thing to do," replied the court—"find you guilty and impose a fine of $20."

After ransacking her meshbag in search of money Mrs. Martin exclaimed:

"Oh, Judge, I've got only $17. Can't I sent you the other $3 to-morrow. I will surely do it."

The Magistrate explained that he couldn't do this, but he offered to parole her until to-day, when suddenly Mrs. Martin turned to her chauffeur and said:

"O, Fogelgreen! Have you got any money? Loan me $3."

Without a word the chauffeur pulled out a good sized roll from which Mrs. Martin took $20, returning to him the balance. She then marched out of court and continued her journey.

Mrs. Martin is a daughter of the late William Vail Brokaw, from whom she is said to have inherited $1,000,000. Her city home is at 803 Fifth Avenue.

STATE HOTEL MEN ORGANIZE

Empire Tours Association Formed to Exploit Auto Routes.

COOPERSTOWN, N. Y., Sept. 22.—At a meeting of hotel keepers of New York State at the O-te-sa-ga Hotel, on Otsego Lake, it was decided to organize an association to exploit the best routes for automobile tourists in the State, with a guarantee of first-class accommodations at the end of each day's run.

Loren T. Johnson of the New Woodruff House, Watertown, N. Y., and J. D. Price of the O-te-sa-ga sent out the call, and at the meeting William E. Leffingwell was elected Temporary Chairman. He outlined the objects of the meeting, and introduced Luke J. Minahan, who outlined the methods of the New England Hotel Men's Association, a similar organization.

The name of Empire Tours Association was decided upon, and an election of officers resulted as follows: President, William E. Leffingwell; First Vice President, J. D. Price; Second Vice President, F. W. Rockwell; Secretary, Loren T. Johnson; Treasurer, M. M. Kelly. A motion to appoint a committee to draft a constitution and by-laws was passed. The subject of tours was brought up, and E. R. Mixer of the Automobile Blue Book was requested to submit routes and maps.

NO AID FOR BRICKLAYERS.

Other Trades Will Not Assist Them in a Strike Here.

Complications have developed which were not foreseen when the strikes of the bricklayers were called on the contracts in this city of F. T. Nesbit & Co., which caused the lockout order of the Mason Builders' Association against ten of the Bricklayers' Local Unions in New York. The lockout goes into effect on Tuesday.

The masons' laborers, of whom there are two, and sometimes three, to every bricklayer employed on a building, are involved, too. They were "pulled out" by the Walking Delegates of the bricklayers when the bricklayers were ordered to strike on the Nesbit contracts, and as they were guaranteed their present wages of 37½ cents an hour for eight hours' work on week days and four hours on Saturdays by the agreement between the bricklayers and the Mason Builders' Association, which both have violated by the strikes, they will be in the same position as the recalcitrant bricklayers if they still stay out on Tuesday.

It was also learned yesterday that the bricklayers will receive no aid of any kind from the other building trades. The New York Building Trades Council, which takes in all the building trades but the bricklayers, will meet to-day and take up the matter, but it was said last night that the council will not lift a hand in support of the bricklayers.

X-Scientists Call a Physician.

When Thomas Hansen, 7 years old, and his sister, Nordis, 6 years old, were taken sick last week at 81 Zabriskie Street, Jersey City, their parents, Hans Hansen and wife, declined the services of a physician. Dr. Craven of the City Health Board called and found that his information that the children had diphtheria was true. He told the parents they must employ a physician. The Hansens are Christian Scientists, but Dr. Craven's notice that if they did not call a physician the children would be placed in the isolation hospital they sent for Dr. Henry E. Woefle. Now Hansen and four of his children have diphtheria.

Grahame-White Consults with Ryan.

Allan A. Ryan, Chairman of the Committee of Arrangements of the International Aviation meet at Belmont Park, Oct. 22 to 30, and Claude Grahame-White, the English aviator, who distinguished himself at the recent Boston meet, dined last night at Delmonico's. The question of Grahame-White's participation in the International meet was discussed, but no arrangements were made. Another conference will be held to-day.

MAKES AEROPLANES IN A PRISON CELL

Harry Britton, Life Convict, Thinks He Has Discovered a Great Aviation Secret.

HOPES TO FLY SOME DAY

Puts the Dead Weight at the Lowest Possible Point, and Says It Will Steady the Machine.

Harry Britton, 60 years old, gray-haired and courtly, with a civil engineer's training and a criminal's long record in the taking of other people's money by confidence games, is in the Queens County Jail, Long Island City, wondering whether his lawyer will succeed in commuting his life sentence—wondering now and then only, for his mind, educated to mechanics in college, trained to quickness by a life of crime, is at work on the fascinating problem of aerial navigation. And not fruitlessly, say his keepers. He has already applied for two patents.

It is worth while getting an idea of Britton before knowing about his work. Last Winter he stood before Judge Humphrey in a Long Island City court charged with grand larceny in that he had taken $55 from a woman. The complainant said she had answered an advertisement which said that a man wanted a governess to go to California to take care of his sister and her two children. She met the suave and convincing defendant, arrangements were made, and she turned over $55 with which to buy her railway ticket to California, whereupon Britton disappeared. She complained quickly and the police found him.

It was stated in court that the courtly old prisoner with the cold gray eye had done the same thing in other States, and records of six terms he had served in other prisons were brought in. He had served two terms already in this State. Though the charge was only grand larceny, Judge Humphrey, holding that he was an habitual criminal, sentenced him to life imprisonment. His lawyer appealed on the ground that sentence could be based only on the ground of the charge in the indictment, which had not charged that he was an habitual criminal. Britton is awaiting the result of the appeal, and has been since last Winter.

Since then he has constructed two aeroplane models as large as his cell permits, embodying in them what he believes to be a principle which other aeroplane makers have not used. He calls it the deadweight centre, and says that it is the use of this principle that makes sleeping cars so steady on the track. According to his explanation, it is getting as much weight as low down in the centre of the machine as possible. His model has the aviator's seat a considerable distance below the level of the planes, and not on a level with them, as is the case with most of aeroplanes.

Britton has in his cell now an improved model embodying his principle of deadweight centre, he says. He talks about it in a monotone, choosing and enunciating words with the exactitude of a machine. He said yesterday that his first two models had already been sent to Washington for the purpose of obtaining patents, if possible.

The inventor cannot have the advantage of watching fleets of aeroplanes at their trials in the air; much less can he enjoy the thrill of rising from the ground in the midst of a network of machinery, conquering gravity with wooden propeller and canvas sheets. But the brick walls and the steel doors cannot stop his mind, and often, he says, he sends that down to Garden City and to the other aeroplane fields he reads about, and in his imagined aeroplane of the proper size he flies with Curtiss, Hamilton, Harmon, and the other airmen.

New York to take part in THE NEW YORK TIMES-Chicago Evening Post aeroplane race from Chicago to New York. He will take part also in the international meet at Belmont Park.

John B. Moissant, the young Chicagoan whose flight with a passenger in a monoplane from Paris to London gained him a prominent place in the aeronautical world, will be unable to compete in THE TIMES-Post race, as he had hoped to do. The two machines he is to take with him to America will not be ready in time for that contest.

HARMON FOR CHICAGO RACE.

Declares Twenty Men Could Make the Flight to New York.

Special to The New York Times.

DAYTON, Ohio, Sept. 22.—Clifford B. Harmon, the well known amateur aviator, to-night spoke enthusiastically in favor of THE NEW YORK TIMES-Chicago Evening Post plan for a New York to Chicago aeroplane race. He declared the idea is so far feasible that there are twenty aviators now sufficiently skilled to make the contest successful.

Mrs. Harmon, who is the youngest daughter of Commodore E. C. Benedict, the banker, handled a balloon to-day throughout the trip and made what is probably the first landing to have been accomplished by a woman in America. The trip was of about three hours' duration and was ended at New Madison, about fifty miles northwest of Dayton. She displayed a surprising amount of skill in the handling of the big balloon, unassisted by her husband.

SHRIVER IN A HIGH FLIGHT.

Airman Goes Up 700 Feet at Mineola Aviation Field.

Special to The New York Times.

AVIATION FIELD, HEMPSTEAD, L. I., Sept. 22.—Tod Shriver went aloft again here to-night. He maintained the highest altitude he has ever reached, staying in the air twenty-one minutes. Shriver has been having trouble with his engine. His efforts were rewarded by a perfect performance this evening. When he left the grand stand he flew directly southeast.

When over the Meadow Brook Clubhouse he was 700 feet in the air. The aviator continued at this height, flying over the Parkway and taking in a part of Uniondale before he turned to come back. He flew directly over the grand stand and across the stand of the Queens-Nassau Agricultural Society, which 5,000 persons had just left at the close of the trotting events. Shriver continued until he reached the Nassau County Court House before making his way back.

WELLMAN SHIP NEARLY READY

Big Dirigible Balloon Will Soon Be Sent on Her Trial Trip.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 22.—After seven weeks of toil by a force of thirty mechanics and fitters, the Wellman-Vaniman Transatlantic airship is now within a few days of completion. To-day Engineer Vaniman turned the motors for the first time, and the many spectators watched the huge twin screws revolving in the air.

Thousands of visitors have flocked to see the great airship this week, and the common verdict is that expressed by Gen. Black, Civil Service Commissioner at Washington, who said it was one of the most wonderful sights he had ever seen. Interest in the craft constantly increases and many photographers from New York and other cities and the artists and special writers of scientific and technical journals are almost daily in attendance.

Mr. Wellman and Mr. Vaniman have received many letters and cablegrams from aeronauts in all parts of the world wishing them success in their daring venture of crossing the ocean in an airship from which news will be sent by wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES, The Chicago Record-Herald, and The London Daily Telegraph. It is a curious fact that visitors are so impressed with the magnitude and mechanical perfection of the machine that they express a greater degree of confidence in the success of the voyage than the responsible men of the enterprise are willing to voice.

All that Mr. Wellman and Mr. Vaniman say is that it is a great scientific experiment and venture, and that one never knows how an experiment is going to turn out. They are nevertheless working with all possible energy for an early start.

Everything is being carefully tested out and a trial trip of a few hours is to be undertaken as soon as possible, probably early next week. After the trial a start for Europe will be made as soon as weather conditions are reported favorable by the United States Weather Bureau. The bureau now compiles each day the barometric gradients for the whole Northern Hemisphere, and is able to forecast the probable winds two or three days in advance.

Prof. Willis Moore, Chief of the Weather Bureau, has promised Mr. Wellman daily and if necessary hourly telegraphic forecasts of wind and weather over the North Atlantic. Should the conditions prove favorable a start is expected before the end of the coming week.

WRIGHT FLIES OVER DAYTON.

Aviator Is Cheered by Immense Crowds —A Perilous Feat.

Special to The New York Times.

DAYTON, Ohio, Sept. 22.—Soaring at an altitude of over half a mile, Orville Wright to-day made the first aeroplane flight in this country over a densely populated Western city, and the first flight which the people of his home city in any considerable numbers had witnessed.

The start was made from the Wright testing grounds, eight miles east of Dayton, at 4:50 o'clock this afternoon, and at 4:55 the machine was seen in the eastern sky by 100,000 watchers, who were ranged along the banks of the rivers. Wright steered for Mad River and followed that stream to its junction with the Miami.

HIGH PURPOSES BACK OF RAILWAY BRIBES

Traction Trust Gave Lavishly So as to "Put Men in Office Who Couldn't Be Bought."

ROGERS AS A BENEFACTOR

Picked Good Legislators for the People, He Thinks—Hates to be Deemed a Lobbyist—More Memories Lost.

The people of New York have been sadly misinformed about the grafting of their Albany representatives. it was avowed yesterday before the Legislative Investigating Committee in the Aldermanic Chamber of the City Hall. Instead of being a corruptor of legislators and a purchaser of legislation the Traction Trust through its benevolent lobbyist, G. Tracy Rogers, was performing a highly patriotic work.

In every county, town and hamlet, there would be some good man nominated for some high office. Always also there would be some bad man nominated to run against him. Looking upon the scene from afar, the Traction interests saw their duty and did it without stint. Money would elect the good men, and keep the bad men down and they gave it—gave it freely—and were positive that no man to whom they gave it used it to sully his own life but always to save the Republican party, or the Democratic party, as the case might be.

Briber and lobbyist? G. Tracy Rogers, weighty and round of figure and bland in manner, repudiated the terms. He wasn't willing to leave the witness stand while "accelerator" might be coupled with his name. He wished to be known—and was willing to make a full explanation so that there should be no doubt about it—as a man who in his humble way worked "to put men into office who couldn't be bought and couldn't be bribed."

In this disinterested patriotic service for the general welfare Mr. Rogers spent between May, 1900, and June, 1903, the sum of $82,475 which Lawyer M. Linn Bruce was able to trace for the committee through the fragmentary Traction records in his possession.

"And it is my belief," he added as he announced this total of disbursements to legislators, "that it is only a drop in the bucket."

In this conclusion Mr. Rogers heartily agreed with the committee's lawyer. He said it was only a drop in the bucket, as Mr. Bruce believed, and that much more than that went into patriotic service performed by the street railroads.

When Raines Called for Cash.

To-day brought out an interesting communication from J. W. Cunningham to G. Tracy Rogers in which he spoke of his personal opinion of the late Senator Raines, after their first meeting.

Senator Raines had called at the brokerage firm of Ellingwood & Cunningham to receive some money on account of the stock sales negotiated there for the important Legislative committee chairman.

"I had a very pleasant chat with Senator Raines," the head of the brokerage house confined to the chief lobbyest on the day of the Senator's visit, "and I found him interesting. I'm glad to see he's one of our kind."

What may prove to be the beginning of an insurgent movement within the committee occured late in the afternoon when Lawyer Bruce seemed to be leading the inquiry away from past and dead legislators toward members and employes of the present legislature.

The trading account of Archie Baxter, clerk of the Senate, was especially noticeable as a subject into which Mr. Bruce did not go deeply.

"How's that—how's that?" put in Senator Wagner, a very little man, who has been almost hidden in his seat beside the ample form of Assemblyman Merritt, the committee's chairman. "I'd like to know about that Baxter matter," he suggested once or twice after inquiry concerning him had been dropped.

Mr. Bruce said that to-day he would probably have Mr. Baxter on the stand, along with ex-Senator, now Congressman Malby, and ex-Senator Allds to question them about their respective trading accounts. At least they had been "invited," but he was not sure they would come.

J. W. Cunningham, who seemed to have been the active partner of the brokerage firm which dispensed Traction money and had stock for sale in abundant quantities to the right people without margins, together with clients willing to take the stock at four times the market price, was a refractory witness in the afternoon. He demonstrated to the satisfaction of Mr. Bruce that loss of memory on special topics was by no means solely a political failing.

A Blank on Political Accounts.

When business deals were mentioned that had nothing to do with the Legislature Mr. Cunningham could remember them down to the minutest detail. But as soon as Senators and Assemblymen and their trading accounts were mentioned his memory would suddenly lapse until he could not even recall whether signatures on letters addressed to them presumably by himself were really genuine.

Both Mr. Cunningham and Mr. Rogers were assured when they were through testifying that their showing on the stand had not been creditable, and that in the face of the evidence brought out it left much to be explained if the men wished to escape from the obvious conclusion concerning their frankness. Both were silent under the invitation to have a final word, stating that they wished their testimony to stand as it had been drawn out.

W. W. Cole, who was to have been the day's first witness, begged to be excused until to-morrow, as he said he had not yet completed the contemplations to which Lawyer Bruce had assigned him on Wednesday as a process in memory-refreshment. He hadn't much hope for to-morrow, but Mr. Bruce told him to retain his contemplative mood and see if his memory couldn't develop a few retentive qualities.

C. Tracy Rogers decided he could stand Lawyer Bruce's grilling as well one time as another, and began to smile back as the questions were put to him.

"Now tell us why you paid that $82,475 we have traced on your books," suggested Mr. Bruce.

The witness replied at length explaining why the railroads went into the lobbying business and what they expected to get out of it.

"I found that something had to be done," he said, "and I went to Albany to see about it. I advised the association that campaign funds ought to be raised and distributed so as to result in the selection of the best men for the Legislature."

For the People—and Railroads.

"The best men for the people or for the railroads?" suggested Senator Wagner.

"For the people—for both," replied Rogers, amid general laughter. The audience at once warmed up to a situation they began to regard as whimsical.

Q.—Did you want fair treatment and feel you had to buy it? A.—All the corporations and the railroads contributed.

Q.—But why did you contribute all this vast sum to a very few legislators; tell me what you expected to get for this money? A.—I told you.

Q.—Let us hear it again? A.—To elect good, square, honest men that couldn't be bribed and couldn't be bought.

Q.—How about Archie Baxter? (from Assemblyman Foley.) A.—I never gave him a cent in all my life.

Q.—Why did you contribute so much to Bedell? A.—I told you.

Rogers said he used to meet Democrats in the Hoffman House and fix them up with little sums that they required to swing things their way in some counties. In this way he had disbursed about $5,000, he thought, but he couldn't recall a single one of the assisted candidates or the counties from which they came. A legislative manual opened at the page showing the list of members failed to refresh his memory.

Q.—Were any of the Democrats elected? A.—Yes, some served on the Railroad Committee.

Q.—Who were they? A.—I forget—I want to forget.

Q.—Why? No answer.

The legislative manuals were produced again. "Oh, what's the use of trying to remember," said Rogers. "If I did give 'em the money they'd come up here and deny it."

Rogers was shown a letter to Senator (now Congressman) Malby, inclosing $500 for his campaign. He remembered that.

"Yes," said Mr. Bruce; "I observe that you have a way of remembering things to which I have the documentary proofs."

Goodsell Supplied Information.

Mr. Bruce showed Rogers some names privately, stating to the committee that, as he didn't know them, he wasn't sure they had ever been in politics. One had a credit of $50,000 from Rogers, and the witness at once said he was a life-long friend who had helped him over a bad season with a loan of $50,000 and that repaid it. The explanation was accepted, and Mr. Bruce refused to make the name of the lender public.

Senator Goodsell's manner of helping the traction interests appeared in a letter:

April 1, 1904.

Dear Mr. Cunningham: I hope you will see Goodsell and that Goodsell will be successful in getting some information for us, as that will encourage him to seek this source of information again. Yours,

C. TRACY ROGERS.

The witness denied that part of the $80,000 spent went to Goodsell for such information rather than for strictly campaign purposes.

J. W. Cunningham was asked to explain what he knew of Rogers's work while he was a silent partner in the brokerage firm of Ellingwood & Cunningham. He said he had no more idea of what Rogers did than any other person present in the room.

Asked about the disappearance of 40,685 checks, two blotters, and two ledgers from the firm's papers, these documents vitally affecting the case under investigation, he had no explanation to make. The committee had found what fragmentary documents were on hand in a barn in Montclair, N. J.

This letter from ex-Senator Malby was read to the witness:

Ogdensburg, Nov. 2, 1892.

Ellingwood & Cunningham, New York.

Dear Sirs: Your esteemed favor remitting $500 received and contents noted. Permit me to thank you and our mutual friend for the kindness. Yours,

GEORGE R. MALBY.

The mutual friend, Mr. Cunningham thought, might mean Mr. Rogers, who was very close to them both, he said.

The committee's sessions will be resumed this morning for an hour, after which they will be discontinued for ten days over the convention period.

HELLO GIRLS WORK HARD.

Texan Investigator Urges the Public to be Patient with Them.

Special to The New York Times.

AUSTIN, Texas, Sept. 22.—Joseph Myers, State Commissioner of Labor, has finished an investigation of the conditions surrounding the employment and work of women telephone operators in Texas. In his report he says their duties are arduous and their salaries exceedingly small, the average in this State being $22.80 per month. Commissioner Myers's statement follows:

"If the telephone user would investigate the nerve-racking duties of the operators they would be more patient. Considering the strain and stress of their task they do remarkably well and should not be upbraided in the manner so commonly resorted to. They sit at the switchboard an average of nine hours per day, serving perhaps 185 subscribers. The number of calls per hour that an operator efficiently may handle varies from 230 to 275, and they have been known to handle as many as 450 calls in an hour.

"The rooms in which operators have to work are in many cases poorly ventilated, and the little breeze they get comes from electric fans. In some operating rooms artificial lights are necessary. Exceptions are in the exchanges in Dallas, Fort Worth, and a few other places.

"Based on the reports from 105 telephone exchanges located in eighty-two different counties the average earnings for 1909 of 1,475 operators were $273.65 each, or an average of only $22.80 per month.

"The qualifications required of telephone operators are fairly exacting. One telephone company requires good eyesight, hearing, alertness, memory, voice, and enunciation. In addition to this a young woman operator is required to have patience, tractability, and a good disposition.

"At the larger exchanges the highest age limit at which an operator may enter the service is 25 years and the youngest 16. One large company reports having 2,235 applications during the year and only 1,400 were accepted. The reasons for rejecting so many were because they did not come up to the requirements.

"Many of these girls have no homes, and the meagre wages they receive compel them to live in little rooms and do their own cooking and washing after their hard day's work at the switchboard. They have little time to enjoy life and little opportunity to improve their social, moral, and educational conditions."

GIRL WAS NOT KIDNAPPED.

Found Asleep In Grandfather's Home —Police Seek Black Handers.

Special to The New York Times.

STAMFORD, Conn., Sept. 22.—Relatives of Anna Salwato, 4 years old, told the police to-day the girl had been kidnapped. Subsequently she was found asleep in bed at the home of her grandfather, Baldassare De Marco.

The little girl is a favorite of her grandparents and her uncles, Anthony and Lawrence, who live at 103 Pacific Street. Her parents are dead. Uncle Anthony said that about the middle of August he received a "Black Hand" letter demanding $200 before Sept. 1. Unless he paid it he was told Anna would be stolen. He paid no attention to the letter, and the first week in September he received another, in which the time to pay the money was extended to Oct. 1. The letter said:

We know you have said you do not fear "The Black Hand," but unless you place the money where you are told we will show you that we are not to be trifled with.

Both letters were written in English in a scrawl and were signed "Black Hand." De Marco gave the second letter to the police, who have been making a quiet investigation.

"I am not afraid of any attack in the open," he said to-night. "But you never can be on your guard against a stealthy attack. Sunday night I was followed a mile by two men, but I got away by jumping over a fence. I shall apply for permission to carry a revolver. The writers probably knew that I love my niece and would do much to keep her from harm. However, I shall give them no money."

CATCH DEER IN THAMES RIVER

Members of the Crew Get It Safely on Board the Yacht Iolanda.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW LONDON, Conn., Sept. 22.—A big buck deer, apparently bewildered and exhausted, while attempting to swim the Thames River at the mouth of the harbor to-day, was going down for the third time when it was captured by members of the crew of Commodore Horton F. Plant's steam yacht Iolanda.

The deer was seen from the deck, and the launch at once ordered out. The launch steamed alongside the animal, which was towed to the yacht, on which it was taken.

NEW CRAFT MAKES 32 KNOTS.

Torpedo Boat Destroyer Exceeds Speed Requirements by Over Two Knots.

NEWPORT NEWS, Va., Sept. 22.—The oil-burning turbine-driven torpedo boat destroyer Terry, the newest product of the Newport News Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Company, developed 32.188 knots an hour on her standardization trials over the measured mile course off Lewes, Del., yesterday.

This speed is 2.688 knots in excess of the contract requirements of 29½ knots.

Allgor Fined for Criminal Libel.

FREEHOLD, N. J., Sept. 22.—James M. Allgor of Seabright and Rumson, who was recently convicted of criminal libel, was sentenced to-day to pay a fine of $200 and costs. Further sentence was suspended, with an intimation by the court that any more similar offenses will mean a term in State prison.

GAMBLERS, IN PANIC, CLOSE THEIR DOORS

Alarm Spreads in the Fraternity Following More Raids on Disorderly Resorts.

BAKER BEFORE GRAND JURY

Lays the Blame for Open Vice Upon Gaynor's Extinction of the Plain-Clothes Man.

A temporary halt has been called on gambling throughout the city. Investigation yesterday by Commissioner of Accounts Fosdick's men made it plain that every gambling house which was known to have been running wide open a week ago has been closed. The men who were operating poolrooms in the Tenderloin section a few days ago are now running handbooks on the streets in the theatre district, but business is poor.

In fact the gamblers are badly scared. Proprietors of houses which ran without interruption all Summer are wondering now on whose head the next blow will fall. They are uncertain as to the identity of the eleven places in the Tenderloin against which Commissioner Fosdick's men have gathered evidence that is now being placed before the Grand Jury.

Commissioner Fosdick's men learned yesterday that the handbook men who have forsaken the poolrooms are saying that they will only be kept on the streets until next Tuesday, when Mayor Gaynor promises to return to City Hall. They say that Police Commissioner Baker will be vindicated by Mayor Gaynor immediately upon the latter's return, and that gambling will go on just as it did during the Summer. But Commissioner Fosdick has a different view of the matter. He believes some important changes will be made shortly in the Police Department.

The temporary closing of gambling houses and disorderly resorts in Manhattan has seriously interfered with the investigation by Commissioner Fosdick's men. While they have not relaxed in their search for additional evidence to lay before the Grand Jury, they have made little progress this week.

One arrest, however, early yesterday morning, was made at the instance of two of his inspectors, which caused the Commissioner a lot of satisfaction. For several days Mr. Fosdick had been receiving reports that a well-dressed man, representing himself to be an Inspector from the Commissioner of Accounts' office, had been making frequent visits to disorderly resorts and levying tribute under threat that a full report of the place would be made to the Commissioner. This news was disconcerting to Mr. Fosdick, especially as he was informed that the man on these visits produced a regularly stamped letter head from the Commissioner's office, with a list of resorts which the man was supposed to investigate.

On Tuesday Inspectors Dobbins and Freer were assigned to find this man and cause his arrest. Early yesterday morning they located him at Sixth Avenue and Thirtieth Street. Detective Armstrong of Police Headquarters was notified, and the arrest followed. He gave his name as Edward Keyser and his address as 815 Park Avenue. In his pockets were found reports addressed to Commissioner Fosdick which began: "In pursuance of your instructions I have investigated the house at No. — — Street and find that it is operating in open and flagrant violation of the law." The reports went on to enumerate what the bogus Inspector had learned. They were all signed "Edward Keyser, Inspector of Accounts." There is no such office in Mr. Fosdick's department.

Also there was found on Keyser a letter head stamped "Commissioner of Accounts, City of New York." This had apparently been stolen from Mr. Fosdick's office.

Soon after Keyser's arrest the police learned, they say, that he had served a term in Sing Sing for forgery. He was at one time in the employ of the Park Department. When Mr. Fosdick learned of the bogus Inspector's arrest he sent men to each address named on the papers found on the prisoner. The proprietors of each denied that they had ever given money to Keyser. The prisoner was held in $500 bail by Magistrate O'Connor in the Yorkville Court.

Not long before the arrest of Keyser a police raid was made on four disorderly places in the heart of the Tenderloin.

Commissioner Baker passed over the head of Inspector McClusky in making his raids, although the four places were all in the Inspector's district. Instead, the Commissioner picked his own confidential man, Sergt. Mallam, to head the raiding squad, which started out from Headquarters just after dark on Wednesday night. All of the raiders were in plain clothes.

At one of the resorts, according to Sergt. Mallam, the woman in charge offered him $50 to let her go. After forcing their way into a resort in Sixth Avenue and another in West Thirty-fifth Street, Sergt. Mallam and his men, after daylight, raided another place in Sixth Avenue and one in West Thirty-eighth Street. Nearly a thousand persons witnessed the last raid.

Commissioner Baker spent two hours before the Grand Jury yesterday, explaining why he had been unable to get evidence which has been obtained by men from Commissioner Fosdick's office. He told the jury that it was impossible to get such evidence against gambling houses and disorderly resorts without plain-clothes men and that since these had been taken away from him by Mayor Gaynor his hands were tied. The Commissioner said that Sergt. Mallam's raids demonstrated that only plain clothes men could get evidence against disorderly resorts. These raids, he said, might be construed as illegal.

Just before going into the Grand Jury room the Commissioner was warned by District Attorney Whitman that anything he might say could be used against him.

"Oh, I'm lawyer enough to know that," said Mr. Baker.

Inspector Marks, from Commissioner Fosdick's office, was questioned by the Grand Jury after Commissioner Baker left, and it was learned late in the day that four indictments against two proprietors of a poolroom over a café in Broadway, near Thirty-ninth Street, had been down "John Doe" bench warrants were issued and detectives from the District Attorney's office are now looking for the indicted men.

Several Inspectors from Commissioner Fosdick's office will appear before the Grand Jury to-day and testify concerning ten other gambling places which were operating in the Tenderloin a few weeks ago.

While the Grand Jury investigation was going on, the trial of ex-Inspector John J. O'Brien on charges of inefficiency in failing to suppress disorderly resorts at Coney Island was in progress before Deputy Police Commissioner Walsh at Police Headquarters. Eugene Shepard, one of Mr. Fosdick's Inspectors, was under cross-examination all day, and it became apparent from the questioning that one line of O'Brien's defense will be lack of funds to prosecute such an inquiry as was carried out by Mr. Fosdick's men. It was announced that Acting Mayor Mitchel will be subpoenaed to appear at the O'Brien trial, to testify concerning the expense accounts of Shepard and other investigators.

88 POLICEMEN MUST EXPLAIN

Commissioner's "Shoo-Fly" Squad Has Them All Up on Charges.

Police Commissioner Baker's recently organized "shoo-fly" squad has been busy in the last few days. Charges have been preferred against eighty-eight policemen, and to-day they will be called upon to explain to the Commissioner personally.

The "shoo-fly" squad was organized by the Commissioner eight days ago. It is composed of ten Sergeants. It was one of the old-established features which Police Commissioner Bingham abolished. When Commissioner Baker brought the squad back to life he instructed the Sergeants to report to him each day.

HEROIC RESCUE OF "LAURA."

She Happened to be a Green Parrot, but the Police Got Her Out.

"Get my Laura!" cried Mrs. James Berger, who lives on the second floor of 2,178 Third Avenue, to Policemen Dages and Bennett, who had just discovered a fire in the rear of the house, and hurriedly got out all the tenants.

"Get Laura, mamma!" shrieked a shrill, terrified voice in the midst of the flames and smoke.

The two policemen, who had turned their attention to the carrying out of the blaze some dozen wire-and-felt models from the ground floor, where the fire burned fiercely, ran up stairs, thinking that a little daughter of Mrs. Berger had been left in the burning flat.

When they entered the place it was clouded with dense smoke, but through this still came the terrified voice, now crying:

"Take the money! Take the money, Kid!"

The two policemen made a grab at the voice, which turned out to belong to a big green parrot above the table. On the table lay half a dozen bills of $5 and $10 each, and a few pieces of jewelry, which Mrs. Berger had forgotten in the excitement of her retreat.

The policemen carried all out in safety. As they emerged carrying the parrot, the crowd burst into laughter and cheers, in which "Laura" joined, cackling.

The fire was extinguished after a damage of $500.

TROLLEY WRECK INQUIRY.

State and Road Seek to Fix Blame—40 New Death Count.

FORT WAYNE, Ind., Sept. 22.—With the death of Frederick C. Jones of Warren, Ind., in a hospital here to-day, the revised figures on the number of dead in the Interurban trolley wreck yesterday afternoon near Kingsland, Ind., was increased to forty. Earlier reports said forty-two. Two others, Miss Margaret Tribolet and F. A. Parkhurst, both of Bluffton, are in a critical condition at a local hospital.

Nearly all of the dead were persons living in the vicinity of Bluffton. It was a holiday throng, bound for Fort Wayne to attend the State fair. The "local" was filled to the last seat, and there were several persons in the aisles or on the platforms. Running at its highest speed the empty "special" sped out from the woods on a curve and plunged into the "local," which also was running at high speed. There was no chance for either motorman to prevent the accident. The local was torn apart as one might burst a paper bag. It exploded, say witnesses. Of all in the car, probably sixty passengers, scarcely one escaped death or injury.

Within a very short time after the accident Commissioner A. A. Shane, special investigator for the Indiana State Board of Railway Commissioners, reached the scene of the wreck and began interrogation of traction officials and witnesses of the crash. Mr. Shane declined to make known the results of his investigation, saying that it would be given out by the State board.

This morning Superintendent of Transportation Frank I. Hardy said:

"We are doing everything in our power to care for the dead and injured and to alleviate the anguish of relatives of the victims. We have begun a careful scrutiny of train orders bearing on the case and on every bit of evidence which might tend to fix the blame. The public soon shall know where the responsibility lies."

FEVER SCARE IN A SCHOOL.

Orange, N. J., Parents Alarmed When Ambulance Takes Away a Negro Pupil.

The appearance of the motor ambulance from the County Isolation Hospital at Soho, N. J., yesterday in front of the Park Avenue School of Orange alarmed the neighborhood and gave rise to a report that the school was infested with scarlet fever. Further reports had it that six children had been found infected with the disease, and that all had been bundled off to the hospital.

The fact was that Clarence Hudson, colored, who lives at 74 North Centre Street, was found by the school nurse on her regular visit to be desquamating, which is the peeling off of the skin, as always happens with scarlet fever victims. As his parents are poor and unable to see that proper quarantine is established the health authorities had him sent to the isolation hospital. After that they announced that there was absolutely no danger and that parents of children at the school could continue to send them, except such as occupied the room where Hudson was.

That room was fumigated after school hours. The other pupils will be kept under surveillance until danger of infection has passed.

NO COMPROMISE ON COTTON BILLS

European Bankers Again Meet and Decide Not to Recede from Their Position.

GUARANTEE FORM DRAFTED

To be Required from American Banks—F. B. Hayne Wires That "Bills of Lading Are Immaterial."

LONDON, Sept. 22. — The European bankers interested in preventing fraudulent bills of lading in the shipment of American cotton decided to-day not to recede from their position, and indorsed the action of the recent general banking conference in demanding guarantees from American banking houses.

The committee took this action after considering the reply of the American bankers to the European proposal, and the offer of validation certificates from the railroads.

In accordance with this action American banks will be expected to guarantee cotton bills of lading after Oct. 31.

The committee took up the matter of the guarantee, and unanimously decided upon a draft of the form which will be required from the American banks by the European accepting banks. The forms will be printed and the terms will be published shortly in London and New York.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 22.—Inquiry made of Frank B. Hayne, the bull leader in the cotton futures market, brought the following cablegram to-day to spot cotton members of the New Orleans Cotton Exchange:

"Bills of lading immaterial."

Mr. Hayne is in Liverpool, where he has been looking into the bills of lading question.

Many spot dealers say that arrangements have already been perfected for the movement of a large part of the crop, but they assert that the character of the exporters will be a much greater factor in purchasing cotton and in honoring drafts than it has been heretofore.

Russia Importing Much Cotton.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22.—The indications are that the Russian cotton crop will exceed the 1909 yield. Imports of raw cotton into Russia in the early months of the present year have been very heavy, their value for the first four months being more than $28,000,000. If the demand on the part of the Russian mills continues throughout the year, it is stated, the buying record of all previous years will be exceeded.

CHOLERA SITUATION WORSE.

Epidemic Spreads in Italy—Is Traced to Russian Gypsies.

ROME, Sept. 22.—The cholera continues to spread in the southeast, notwithstanding the efforts of the medical officers in charge of the infected district.

Sixteen new cases and four deaths were reported to-day.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22.—The cholera epidemic in Italy is traceable to the debarkation at Brindisi of a band of Russian gypsies, according to a report sent by Surgeon H. D. Geddings from Naples to the State Department.

Surgeon Geddings reports that the gypsy wanderers, after proceeding to Trani, the primary focus of the epidemic, washed their clothing in vessels which were used later as water buckets. Many of the gypsies became violently ill, and the disease began to spread to districts surrounding Trani.

ST. PETERSBURG, Sept. 22.—There were thirty-six new cases of cholera and thirteen deaths in this city to-day.

Among those who are ill is Herr Felselau, a member of the staff of the German Embassy.

JEWS WIN CASE IN RUSSIA.

Many Appeals Against Expulsion to the Pale as a Result.

KIEFF, Sept. 22.—A great number of appeals made by Jews whose expulsion has been ordered by the Imperial Government are pending, following the favorable outcome of a test case instituted by some Jews who had long resided in Ekaterinoslaff Province.

In that instance the Senate decided that the orders of expulsion were illegal and that the petitioners should be reinstated in their homes. Appeals have now been made in other provinces.

In the week ended Sept. 21 there were thirty-nine summary expulsions from this city, while 106 other Jews received notice that they must return within the restricted district set apart by law for them in the course of a stated time. In the same period there were 106 expulsions from the suburbs Solomenka and Demievka.

EGYPTIANS MADE TO MOVE.

France Forbade Congress—Roosevelt Is Again Denounced.

BRUSSELS, Sept. 22.—The Egyptian National Congress is in session here, having been transferred to Brussels after the French Government had refused to permit the holding of the congress in Paris.

Mohammed Bey Ferid, the presiding officer, violently denounced Theodore Roosevelt for "dishonoring Egypt on its own soil." He announced that the Egyptian question would be brought up at the next Peace Conference at The Hague.

PARIS, Sept. 22.—The Figaro to-day prints a tribute to the late Prof. William James of Harvard University from the pen of Guglielmo Ferrero.

In the course of his article the Italian historian expresses the opinion that the American philosopher's "Pragmatism—A New Name for Some Old Ways of Thinking" offers to Europe the first practical ground for the conciliation of the present religious, philosophic, and scientific stride.

PARIS, Sept. 22.—The Redemptorist Fathers were summoned to the Correctional Court to-day charged with having secretly reconstructed the order, which was dissolved under the law of 1901.

The police have seized documents which, it is alleged, show that the order is again in full activity throughout France.

LORIMER INQUIRY OPENS.

Hears Pro and Con Arguments for Postponement Till After Elections.

CHICAGO, Sept. 22.—The first open session of the Senatorial Committee which is investigating charges of alleged bribery and corruption in connection with the election of William Lorimer to the United States Senate was held to-day. Senator Lorimer was present.

After hearing arguments for and against a postponement of the investigation until after the November election, the committee adjourned until to-morrow morning without deciding any of the questions presented to it.

The plea for a postponement was made by Attorney Elbridge Hanecy, counsel for Senator Lorimer, and was based on the assertion that to continue the hearing while two criminal cases are pending involving similar subjects would be unfair to Senator Lorimer, who wished to call the defendants, Minority Leader Lee O'Neil Browne, and State Senator John Broderick, as witnesses.

Attorney Hanecy also urged that many of the State legislators who voted for Senator Lorimer were now seeking re-election and that to compel them to leave their districts to testify before the committee would be a hardship on them and that the testimony given before the committee would be used for political purposes and not simply to arrive at the truth.

Attorney Clifford W. Barnes of the Legislative Voters' League opposed the continuance, declaring that the Senatorial Committee had a solemn duty to perform to help "purge the State of its disgrace."

Attorney Alfred S. Austrian, representing The Chicago Tribune, requested that the newspaper be allowed to appear in the hearing by counsel. He told of the investigation the newspaper had made and its presentation of evidence to the State Attorney of Cook County, and said that the newspaper had supplied the committee with a list of witnesses which would occupy at least three weeks with their testimony.

"If there is a political conspiracy against Senator Lorimer the committee can readily ascertain it," said Mr. Austrian.

No ruling was made by the committee on the proposition to permit Mr. Austrian to take part in the hearing.

WHY HE DIDN'T MAKE SILVER.

Philadelphia "Alchemist" Accuses a Witness of Trying to Cheat Him.

Special to The New York Times.

SCRANTON, Penn., Sept. 22.—"It's a case of Caesar and Brutus. I am Caesar, and I have been sacrificed." This is the way in which E. D. Gleason of Philadelphia, who was committed to jail on charges of forgery and false pretenses by Dr. F. W. Lange, characterized his predicament.

Gleason was arrested in Philadelphia Friday night. For some time he had been giving demonstrations of a process whereby, he said, he made silver from base metal. The demonstrations had been witnessed by A. O. Granger of Philadelphia and C. B. White, a chemist, of Newark, N. J., who was present at the instance of Granger.

Granger was so deeply impressed that he agreed that if a test proved satisfactory he would give any amount of bail and back a company for manufacturing silver.

The test was begun in Dr. Lange's laboratory on Tuesday, but yesterday Gleason declined to proceed with the transmutation.

"Mr. Granger is all right," he said, "but with White, the chemist, it is different. I made tests in Philadelphia at which White was present and at which all the ingredients were brought by him, so that there could be no possibility of deception. I have a letter in which he pays high praise to my ability, but he is reported to have branded me as a faker.

"At the test in Dr. Lange's laboratory I had walked out to get a breath of air when Constable Mitchell came out and asked me if I had given Mr. White permission to take a sample of some fluid I had left in a beaker in the cellar. I returned and asked him what he had done with the fluid. He said he had not taken any, but when Mitchell followed me White handed me the bottle containing his sample.

"White had my permission to test for silver salts in all ingredients that entered into my mixture, but he didn't have any right to carry away samples of them, and I did not care to continue to do business with a person who acted as he did. I was perfectly willing to carry out my agreement, but I am not willing to be taken advantage of in that manner."

C. H. Dollner came to Scranton last night and had an interview with Gleason. Attorney E. C. Amerman, who was engaged by Dollner, said to-day he would try to arrange for Gleason's release within a short time.

Promoter Barnes Must Stay in Prison.

Supreme Court Justice McCall denied yesterday a certificate of reasonable doubt to Noah E. Barnes, former President of the Cottonwood Creek Copper Company, convicted last April of converting $30,000 of the company's funds to his own use, and sentenced by Justice Goff to four years and a half in State prison. A witness against him was Count Ferdinand von Hochberg, once a close friend of the Crown Prince of Germany.

REGENT OF PERSIA, AZAD-EL-MULK, DEAD

His Appointment Made When Mahomet Ali Was Dethroned as Shah of Persia.

HIS POSITION DIFFICULT

Aged Adviser Had Been Kept Busy Combatting Revolutions Against Boy Shah, Ahmed Mirza.

TEHERAN, Persia, Sept. 22.—The Regent of Persia, Azad-el-Mulk, died in this city to-day.

When Mahomet Ali became Shah of Persia by the coup d'etat of June 23, 1908, Azad-el-Mulk (or Mutamen-el-Mulk) was appointed Minister of Commerce and Instruction. He was nearly 70 years old at the time, and had been Chief or Elder of the powerful Kajar family. When Ali was dethroned and his 12-year-old son, Ahmed Mirza, on July 16, 1909, reluctantly and in tears, was set up by the Nationalist leaders to reign in his stead, Azad-el-Mulk, because he was much older and thus more generally trusted than the other leaders, was appointed Regent temporarily till the opening of the new Parliament.

The position of Regent has, during the last year, proved an unenviable one, as the boy Shah has been reluctant to rule as there have been a number of small revolutions throughout the country. According to returning Americans the Regent has been able to do little to put these down beyond keeping them from reaching Teheran, the capital.

Geologists Honor Dr. Clarke.

ALBANY, Sept. 22.—Dr. John M. Clarke, New York State Geologist, has been notified that the International Geological Congress, which has just concluded its meeting at Stockholm, has awarded him the Spindlaroff prize of several hundred rubles in recognition of his researches in geology and paleontology.

ITALY MOVED BY LYNCHING.

If Tampa Mob Victims Were Her Subjects She Will Expect Reparation.

MANCHESTER, Mass., Sept. 22.—The lynching of two Italians at Tampa, Fla., on Tuesday night, is being investigated by the diplomatic representatives of the Italian Government. Marchese Paolo di Montagliari, the Italian Chargé de Affaires, said to-day that until his Government is in possession of all the facts no action would be taken. He added:

"The first thing to be decided is whether the victims were Italian subjects. This cannot be determined until the naturalization records are looked up. The Governor of Florida is of the opinion that they were American citizens.

"If the men were subjects of Italy, the Italian Government will insist on the punishment of those responsible and an indemnity to the victims' families, expecting such satisfaction as one Government usually extends to another in such cases."

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22.—The State Department has received a note from Marchese Montagliari, calling attention to the report of the lynching and requesting a statement of the facts. The State Department immediately communicated this request by wire to Gov. Gilchrist of Florida, who, it is assumed, will make an investigation at once.

The Tampa dispatches indicate that the nationality of the two victims is in doubt. If they were naturalized citizens the Italian Embassy will drop the matter. But if they were Italian subjects a claim for reparation is expected, the allowance of which would probably depend on the determination that the Tampa authorities had failed in their duty.

TAKES LOCKS OFF HIS DOOR.

Public Attitude Toward Burglars Wrong, Probation League Officer Says

CHICAGO, Sept. 22.—Henry Neil, Secretary of the National Probation League, does not believe in lock and key to keep out burglars, and has had all such safeguards removed from his residence. He said to-day:

"If the right hand of fellowship were extended to burglars instead of the kick and threat the world would be better, the penitentiaries would be emptied in a short time, and there would be no need of lock and key, bolt and bar.

"I have just returned with my wife and seven children and taken a residence for the Winter. I found iron bars on all windows and locks and safeguards of all kinds. I have had locksmiths take off these relics of a barbarous age. There are no mechanical devices to connect with the police station, and there are no locks on the doors.

"Visitors may enter undisturbed, but I trust they will waken me and allow me to entertain them. I am sure I can help them to better and more profitable employment."

TRYING TO SAVE THE DUCKS.

Will Not Be Shot or Sold in Utah While Epidemic Lasts.

SALT LAKE CITY, Sept. 22.—The plague which is slaying them by the thousands may save the wild ducks of Utah from the annual slaughter by hunters. The State Food and Dairy Commission announced last night that the sale of ducks would not be permitted during the open season and representatives of all the principal shooting clubs pledged their members not to hunt the birds while the epidemic continues.

Physicians who have studied the diseases of ducks pronounce it a form of cholera, and are of the opinion that it might be contracted by human beings.

PAYING $307,000,000 FOR IOWA DRAINAGE

Private Owners of Farms to Spend All But $60,000,000 of the Sum.

TO RECLAIM SWAMP LANDS

Values Will Be Increased Millions of Dollars, Making the State One of the Richest for Agriculture.

Special to The New York Times.

BURLINGTON, Iowa, Sept. 22.—So quietly that the fact has not become known widely, Iowa farmers have been arranging for drainage improvements in their low lands at a cost that will come within $85,000,000 of equaling the expense of building the Panama Canal. The general public has little conception of the extent of the enterprise which will increase the value of Iowa lands by millions of dollars.

The total expenditures now planned in Iowa in these improvements is figured at $307,000,000. This service will result in reclaiming thousands of acres of the most valuable land in the world, and carry out in good measure the policy urged by James J. Hill of making every use possible of the swamp lands of the West. Much of the work has been started already in the various river counties in the State, and some of it has been finished. When completed Iowa will be among the richest agricultural States in the world.

Already Cost $7,438,847.

In five years, since 1904, the public drainage ditches in fourteen of thirty Iowa counties have actually cost $7,438,847, and the reported cost in the remaining sixteen counties will be between $7,000,000 and $8,000,000. This gives a total of $15,000,000 which have been expended on drainage ditches in thirty of the ninety-nine counties. And the same work is being done in all the remaining counties and extended in these thirty counties.

These improvemets in thirty counties have been made on about 3,000,000 acres at an average cost of $5 per acre. The result has been the reclaiming of swamp and flood lands which are now worth from $75 to $200 an acre.

The total estimated final cost of the public drain ditches will be $80,000,000. The remainder of the $307,000,000 will be spent by private owners, much of which has already been spent in tiling the farms and digging open drains. The estimates of these totals were made by the State Conservation Board, and are considered conservative after an investigation of conditions.

The Lowest Cost.

The lowest cost per acre for public drainage is found where only the large open ditches have been built. The lowest cost for these is $2.87 an acre and the highest is $10 per acre. The highest average cost is where both open drains and the sub-districts or large tile laterals have been built.

An investigation shows that in the development of drainage in Iowa the large open drains are first built, then the tile laterals, and then the small tile under the farm acres, some of these tile being laid as closely as four rods and as small as four inches in diameter.

Where crops have been good the drainage system has developed rapidly, and the farmers are aware that perfect drainage will increase the productivity of his land. In many such cases the total cost has been an average of $25 an acre, and in many instances the farmer has spent $75 an acre to tile and drain his farm. Such improvements as these have been made at private expense.

There are thirty so-called wet counties in Iowa—counties where the land is low and the streams flood. The average acreage of each is about 368,640. Twenty of these counties require drainage over their entire area and the remaining ten over half their area. The estimated cost per acre is $10. This is for public improvements alone, not including the laterals and general tiling.

The total area of the twenty all-wet counties and ten half-wet counties which need drainage is 9,216,000 acres. At $10 an acre the total would be $91,150,000 for public ditches, but to be conservative this is reduced a third, leaving the cost $61,440,000. This is merely what the big ditches will cost when completed, and does not include the laterals or tiling which will be done by individuals.

Engineers in the various counties estimate that the average cost of the private laterals will be from two and a half to three times greater per acre than the cost of the public open ditches or outlets. By this estimate the private cost will be $245,760,000, which makes the grand total of $307,200,000.

KIDNAPPED A PARK SQUIRREL.

"Bobtail Bill" Had Wandered Across the Fence and Auto Folk Got Him.

The kidnapping of "Bobtail Bill" is the latest bit of news from the little animal world in Central Park.

He was one of the oldest squirrels who live not far from the Fifty-ninth Street edge of the park, and he was so called because one of the park trucks ran over his tail several years ago, leaving him with only a stump, which gave him somewhat the appearance of a guinea pig.

Nevertheless Bill was quite a favorite with the Central Park keepers. He used frequently to visit the office of Head Keeper William Snyder, just back of the elephant house, when nuts were scarce, to beg for food, and never was disappointed. And despite his deformity he had a pretty little gray mate and a comfortable nest with four baby squirrels in it in one of the tall trees near the goose pond. Now as to the kidnapping.

"We can't just figure out why Bobtail Bill never wanted to wander out of the park," said Keeper Hurtin yesterday. "But wander out he did on Saturday morning. It was early in the day and there was little traffic on Fifty-ninth Street. Bill scampered across the car tracks and reached the five-story house at 24 West Fifty-ninth Street, which was burned out more than a year ago. Some boys must have chased him, for he ran up the steps and perched on the iron grating over the front door.

"It was after feeding time in the Zoo, and I had walked down to the Fifty-ninth Street entrance when I saw a crowd of boys and men standing in front of the house and a policeman trying to get Bill down. But he wouldn't come. The policeman could not reach him with his night stick, and every time he tried the crowd of boys just howled.

"I had just started across the street to see what I could do when I saw a large gray automobile draw up in front of the house. A lady and a little girl were in the tonneau. The lady said something to the chauffeur, who jumped out and, pushing through the crowd, ran up the steps. He was more active than the policeman, and putting his foot on the doorknob he drew himself up and grabbed Bobtail.

"A moment later he was back again in the automobile, had handed the squirrel to the lady, and away they went. I thought they meant to run over by the park and release 'Bobtail Bill,' but no, the automobile turned into Fifth Avenue and away it went north, the woman still holding 'Bobtail Bill' and the child trying to stroke the little fellow's back.

"Still I thought 'Bobtail Bill' would be released somewhere along the line and would be back with his family soon. But he did not come back. He is not back to-day, and we have begun now to think that Bill has been kidnapped for keeps.

"It is lucky that the young squirrels, children of 'Bobtail Bill,' are old enough to hustle for themselves, for Winter is coming on and there must be a store of nuts laid up for the cold weather. I suppose, though, that Bill has a good home and will be well treated. Perhaps some day he may escape. Then he'll come back to look for his family and old friends in the park."

YEGGMAN FAY BACK TO JAIL.

U. S. Marshal Starts for Leavenworth Prison with the Captive.

The Federal authorities were glad to get into their hands again yesterday the famous member of the safe-cracking fraternity, best known to the police of the country as "Mott Haven Red," who broke jail in the Federal penitentiary at Leavenworth, Kan., on Sept. 11, 1909, having grown tired of the routine of the place in a comparatively few months after his commitment in April of that year. "Mott Haven Red's" other name is variously stated as Joseph Fay and Thomas Murray, and if he still remembers what it was originally he has refrained from telling the police.

Fay was arrested on Wednesday night at Willis Avenue and 138th Street, and yesterday was taken to the Federal Building for a talk with Post Office Inspectors Jacobs and James. The Inspectors reported later that he confessed to them of robbing a string of Post Offices in different parts of the country since his escape from Leavenworth, including that at New Dorp, S. I. He has worked from time to time with John Hays, alias "Bangor Billy," who is awaiting the death penalty at Sing Sing for the murder of Jack Leonard, another yeggman who turned Government spy, and with Frank Codd, a yeggman who was shot and killed in 1908 in the act of breaking into the Post Office at Nyack. When he gets back to Leavenworth Fay will have to wear a ball and chain. Pawtucket Johnny is now in Sing Sing, and Toad Thornton is in the Federal prison at Atlanta.

Deputy Marshal Joseph Kumb was assigned to take Fay back West, and started yesterday afternoon.

DEFINITION OF "DRUNK."

Fire Department Physician Gives His Views at a Fireman's Trial.

Edward F. Broderick, a first grade fireman attached to Engine 16, in East Twenty-fifth Street, was fined twenty-five days' pay yesterday for neglect of duty, and for being under the influence of liquor. Broderick, it developed, had been sent to deliver some official reports to Chief Duffy on Sept. 2, and instead of doing so had returned to his post later, still carrying the papers and barely managing to carry himself.

Commissioner Waldo was interested very much in the various definitions which Medical Officer Banta of the Fire Department and other officials gave as to what constituted drunkenness. Dr. Banta said he thought Broderick's had been a case of a "light drunk."

"How far does a man have to be drunk," inquired the Commissioner, "before he goes from a light drunk to a regular first class drunk?"

It appeared to be the consensus of opinion that a man who could take care of himself might be slightly drunk but not really drunk.

Broderick pleaded that he had been taking capsules for a pain in the side and that these made him dazed.

Fireman George H. Tyepfer of Truck 11 was fined eleven days' pay also for smoking while in uniform and then being disrespectful to an officer who caught him doing so.

WANDERED AWAY WITH CHILD

Young Woman Arrested for Long Absence with Another's Baby.

Some thirty-six hours after a general alarm had been sent out by the police for Miss Margaret Mitchell of 1,687 Mount Hope Avenue, the Bronx, and four-year-old Frances Spearman, whom she had taken from the home of her mother, Mrs. Catherine Spearman, 4,070 Third Avenue, ostensibly for a short walk in Crotona Park on Wednesday afternoon, Policeman Kennedy saw a young woman, preceded by a weary and much-bedraggled child, walking up Third Avenue at 168th Street late last night.

"Hadn't you better keep her from being run over?" he asked.

"She's not my child," replied the young woman. "I'm Maggie Mitchell."

Kennedy then took them both to the Morrisania Police Station. There the young woman said she had asked the child's mother to let her take the girl with her, intending to visit an aunt who lived in Brooklyn. She said they went to the aunt's house, and, because it was then late at night, decided to stay till morning. Yesterday afternoon, she said, they left her aunt, Mrs. Lina Gery, and walked over to Manhattan, spending the rest of the afternoon at motion picture shows and then returning to the Bronx.

At the home of the aunt, however, the police say, they learned that the young woman had not been seen for nearly three years. The police say the young woman seemed to be suffering from a mental trouble she had been subject to for some time. The child was too sleepy to tell where they had been. The young woman was locked up on a charge of kidnapping until more could be learned about the case.

EX-POLICE CAPTAIN BANKRUPT

William Strauss, formerly a Police Captain whom Senator Lexow at the time of the police investigation in this city labeled "the original pantata," and who was dismissed from the force a year later for exceeding his duties in providing a police escort for a political parade beyond the confines of his precinct, filed a petition in bankruptcy yesterday with liabilities of $11,457 and assets of $76 due him in debts.

Strauss said his creditors were Rosa Strauss, his wife, $7,150 money loaned; Henry Nussbaum $900 loan; Samuel Streit & Co., $2,006 and the Hannis Distilling Co., $512.

Strauss said that he was an "investigator" but that he had contracted his debts between 1907 and 1909 while in the liquor business.

THROTTLE AND ROB A WOMAN CASHIER

Two Footpads Waylay Her in a Dark Hallway and Get Away with $500.

NEARLY STRANGLE HER

Detectives Quickly Run Down Two Men Whom She Identifies as the Robbers.

Adolph Roth, proprietor of a neckwear factory at the Bowery and Stanton Street, in which he employs about fifty girls, handed a $500 check yesterday at 1 o'clock to his bookkeeper, Miss Laura Krause of 404 East Seventy-fourth Street, telling her to get it cashed at the German Exchange Bank at the Bowery and Bond Street, five blocks up. Roth pays off his employes every Thursday afternoon and for a long time Miss Krause has brought the money from the bank.

The bookkeeper was told that she might get her luncheon before coming back to the office. After eating in a restaurant nearby she took the check to the bank, received the money in small bills, and put it into her hand satchel. She walked on down the Bowery toward the building in which the Roth factory is. She was sure, she told the police later, that no one followed her.

The girl opened the outside door leading into the small dark hallway at the foot of the stairs. Before the door had closed behind her, and before her foot had touched the bottom step, she felt a strong arm thrust around her neck and her head was pulled back. Instinctively she threw the hand satchel in front of her and clasped it to her breast with both hands. By this time, however, the other of the two men she could see dimly began struggling with her to get the satchel.

As she fought with the two men she made desperate efforts to scream, but the pressing arm around her neck not only prevented her from doing that, but was fast cutting off her breath. The hallway was dark and small, and her two assailants made little noise. Out of the fight for the satchel there was only a little shuffling of feet on the floor and some almost inaudible gasping groans from Miss Krause.

After a short struggle one of the two men succeeded in getting the satchel. The man holding her neck from behind swung around in front of her, hit her a terrific blow on the chest, which knocked out of her the little breath she had left, and then flung her to the floor. One of the robbers kicked her viciously as they started out of the hallway on the run.

Miss Krause said later that she thought she would lose consciousness every moment, but felt that she must get up and make enough noise to bring some one to give chase to the robbers. She tried hard to scream; her mouth opened, but she could not get a sound out of it. She struggled to her feet, then fell back again. Finally she began crawling up the stairs, still trying in vain to scream for help. Presently her strength came back, and she found that her voice, too, was returning. Resting for a moment, she found to her great joy that she could cry out. Then she made up for lost time by letting out shriek after shriek.

Roth and a half dozen others from the office came tumbling down the stairs.

"Two men took the satchel with the pay money in it—here—in the hallway—just now!" she cried out.

"Just now, this minute!" she went on. "Run out after them!"

Roth and his men did run out, but they could see no one with the hand satchel. The Bowery was thronged, and in half a minute the two robbers had been swallowed up in the crowd.

Miss Krause and Roth went to the Allen Street Branch of the Detective Bureau, and two detectives were assigned to the case. Two hours later they arrested John Liberto of 228 East Seventy-third Street, and Peter Tentelis of 220 Chrystie Street at the latter address. The prisoners said they were tailors. They were lined up against the wall. In a pocket of Liberto's clothing the detectives found $242.81.

"Take it," they quoted him as saying, "and let me go."

The detectives also found a penknife on Liberto which belonged to Miss Krause. Her employer had given it to her, and it had her name engraved on it. A woman's silver watch was also found on him, but this could not be identified. Tentelis tried to throw $40 away when he was arrested, the detectives said, but Miss Krause, who was with them at the time, picked it up. The girl said she was positive that the two prisoners were the men who had robbed her. They were locked up at Police Headquarters, charged with robbery. Their pictures were not in the Rogues' Gallery.

BRONX MANDRIL POISONED.

Sone One Gave the Baboon a Dose of Paris Green—Keeper Saved Him.

The mandril of the Bronx Zoo, one of the largest species of baboon and one of the most ferocious, has for a long time startled visitors who stopped before his cage outside the primates' house by jumping with screams of rage at the cage-front, grasping the bars with his powerful hands, and clinging to them like a monster in a nightmare. He would shake and tear at them in an effort to get through to those who were staring at him.

The authorities at the Zoo are of the opinion that some weak-minded person among the spectators was so affected by an experience of this kind as to acquire an insane hatred for the animal.

Late Wednesday evening an attendant ran into the office of Head Keeper Engelholm, crying that the mandril had been poisoned. The keepers found the baboon writhing in agony and tearing furiously with blood-stained mouth at the iron bars. Before the cage was strewn a bright green powder.

Engelholm procured a cup of oil, which he mixed with the white of an egg. He shoved this under the bars of the cage. The mandril, with a wild cry, seized the cup and swallowed the contents. A moment later he was relieved. Then they discovered that he had swallowed a brown paper package containing paris green.

Dr. W. Reed Blair, the chief veterinary of the Zoo, said the dose administered by Keeper Engelholm had undoubtedly saved the mandril's life. All day yesterday, however, he was kept busy treating the baboon, and it was not till last night that he could pronounce him out of danger.

The mandril is said to be the only one in captivity in the United States, and is considered priceless. It was brought to the Zoo from Africa ten years ago, and is now twelve years old. Even the keepers are afraid of it. The authorities at the Zoo think they have a clue to the person who administered the poison, but would not disclose it last night.

TRY TO DUPE ST. REGIS GUEST

One of Two Men Caught After a Polite Request for $20.

A man who said he was James Collins, of 292 Houston Street, who, according to Assistant Manager Gustave R. Schmid of the Hotel St. Regis, tried to fleece a guest out of $20, was locked up in the East Fifty-first Street Station last night as a suspicious person.

According to Mr. Schmid, at 6:30 o'clock an A. D. T. messenger brought a letter addressed to Mrs. E. N. Breitung, the wife of a banker of Marquette, Mich. She came down a few minutes later and showed the letter to Mr. Schmid. It invited her to attend a reception of the Telegraph Clerks and Lady Operators at Grand Central Palace, Tuesday evening and stated that tickets would cost $20. It was signed "D. Keenan, Secretary."

Mrs. Breitung was disposed to send the $20 and gave the amount to Mr. Schmid. One of the women operators in the hotel told him that she had not heard of any such reception, so he put a slip of paper in an envelope, addressed it to "D. Keenan," and handed it to the messenger boy. Mr. Schmid and the house detective followed. At Fifty-seventh Street and Madison Avenue two men took the envelope. As Mr. Schmid and the detective came up one of the men ran. The other was caught. The envelope was not found on him, but a blank subscription form of the Uniformed Street Cleaners' Benevolent Association was in his pocket.

BANKERS GOING WEST IN FOUR BIG TRAINS

Members of the American Association Will Leave Here on Monday for Los Angeles.

THEY'LL TRAVEL IN LUXURY

Round Trip Will Cover 8,196 Miles and Require the Services of 1,629 Railway Employes.

Four "Twentieth Century Limiteds," known as the "white," the "red," the "blue," and the "green" centuries, will depart from the Grand Central Station next Monday carrying 500 bankers from the Eastern and Southern States, who are going to Los Angeles to attend the Thirty-sixth Annual Convention of the American Bankers' Association.

Four hundred and fifty of the bankers, who will make the trip, are from outside of New York State, and will join the New York delegation here in time to leave on one of the special trains. The round trip will cover 8,196 miles and was planned by Ledyard Cogswell of Albany, President of the New York State Bankers' Association, and Charles Elliott Warren of this city, chairman of its Committee on Transportation and Arrangements.

The trip to Los Angeles will be by the southern route and return to New York by the northern route. The trip will last twenty-six days and the "Twentieth Century" equipment of the four trains will be retained throughout the journey.

At the head of the party when it leaves New York will be Lewis E. Pierson of this city, President of the American Bankers' Association; Lee McClung, Treasurer of the United States, and Lawrence O. Murray, Controller of the Currency. George W. Higgins of the New York Central and three assistants will represent the railroad on the trip.

The bankers will live on the trains and during that time will have at their disposal four baggage, four buffet or club cars, eight dining cars, twenty-six compartment and drawing room sleeping cars, four of which will be observation cars, the latter provided with automatic pianos and hundreds of records from the latest in "ragtime" to classics in opera.

The designation of the trains as "red," "blue," "white," and "green" was decided upon in order to obviate the necessity of numbering or lettering the trains, or of handling them under the old system of sections. No train will have precedence over another. The "white" may leave first, but at Buffalo the first out may be the "red" and the "white" may be the last out of Chicago.

If the four trains were combined it would make one solid train more than half a mile long, weighing 2,883 tons and costing more than $1,000,000.

To complete the circuit of 8,196 miles, it will require 232 powerful locomotives, not counting the double headers to be used in going over the mountains. To man these engines, 464 men will be required. Altogether 1,629 railway employes will directly contribute their service to the comfort and safety of the bankers while they are en route.

The route is through eighteen States and the most picturesque parts of the Canadian Rockies. On the way out the party will stop at the Grand Canyon of the Colorado, the Redlands, the Southern California Orange Orchards, Catalina Island, Santa Barbara, Del Monte, and Santa Cruz.

Returning the party will be the guests of the Chamber of Commerce of San Francisco, and after a visit to Mount Shasta, (14,400 feet high), the trip will lead to Portland, Seattle, and Vancouver. Several days will be spent in going through the Canadain Rockies, stopping in the Alberta and Saskatchewan countries, dropping down into North Dakota, on Oct. 18, en route to St. Paul and Minneapolis where another stop will be made.

On Oct. 21 the trains will leave Chicago and are due here the morning of the next day.

The convention of the bankers will be held in Los Angeles from Oct. 3 to 7.

HARPER'S

For October

THE ideal magazine is the magazine which interests everybody—the magazine of such wide appeal that it touches at some point the mind or heart of every intelligent person who takes it up.

Harper's for October is a magazine of this sort. Interestingness is the keynote of everything in it. Take some of the notable special articles for example:

The Soil As a Battleground.
A. D. Hall, F. R. S., tells for the first time of the discovery of the microbe which kills the fertility of the soil—one of the most important scientific discoveries of many years. He also tells how the good bacteria are helped to increase the fertility and of the interesting results recently attained.

He Saved Lincoln.
A dramatic account of the true adventures of Timothy Webster, a spy in the civil war, who discovered the first plot to assassinate Lincoln and thwarted it.

How a Great Telescope Is Made.
Professor G. W. Ritchey, who has charge of the work of construction at the famous Mt. Wilson observatory, tells how a great modern telescope is made—from the grinding of the wonderful lenses to its completion.

The Difficulties of Bible Translation.
Professor Alexander Chamberlain of Clark University tells of the curious difficulties in translating the Bible into the strange languages of primitive peoples. Remember the Bible is even now translated into more than four hundred tongues, some of which most of us have never heard of.

When Rossetti Wrote Doggerel.
Ford Madox Hueffer gives an intimate picture of the men who made up the remarkable group—the Pre-Raphaelites—and tells of them many personal anecdotes never before printed.

These are only a few of the striking articles in the October number. Even more unusual are the

CALLS RAISING RATES MENACE TO COUNTRY

Commissioner Lane Says Railways Must Work Out Economic Problem on Other Lines.

SEES NO LIMIT TO PROCESS

Comment on Roads' Argument That as Business Grows Expenses Steadily Overtake Earnings.

CHICAGO, Sept. 22.—Railroads must adjust their economical difficulties by some other means than by asking shippers to contribute the funds therefor, in the opinion of Inter-State Commerce Commissioner Franklin K. Lane, expressed during the hearing to-day of the Western railroads that seek to obtain a general increase in freight rates.

Railroad officers had declared that there were only two factors in economically perfect railroad management, namely, the amount of rates charged and the method of capitalization and financing. The elimination of the rate question by the Commissioner aroused considerable interest among the railroad men and attorneys present. They sought to learn if the Commissioner thereby implied there must be readjustment of the method of financing big carrier systems. Mr. Lane, however, ignored the efforts and continued to ask the witness to whom he had directed his remarks—William Ellis, commerce counsel for the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul—pointed questions on the amount and disposition of earnings of his railroad.

Mr. Ellis had testified that his company was suffering from too much business, that the increase had meant an increase in the unit of cost which grew faster than the unit of income, thereby threatening the yearly surplus of earnings above payment of dividends, cost of operation and of maintenance.

Commissioner Lane then said:

"As the country develops there will be more and more freight delivered to you and as conditions are now the rates constantly must be increased, according to the argument of railroad officials. I regard it as a serious menace to the Western country if the rates are constantly to be increased. We must work out this problem on lines other than by the proposed method of raising the tariffs. If not, there is no time when we can say the maximum has been reached."

This development followed inquiry into the St. Paul's profits, particularly from the Puget Sound extension. Mr. Ellis denied the Commissioner's suggestion that the road's optimism when it built the extension had turned to pessimism.

"If it had not been for that road," he said, "we would have had nothing from operation to add to our surplus last year. That extension added about $2,500,000 to the surplus, in addition to $2,589,573 from other sources. Our total surplus is about $50,000,000."

Expenses Overtaking Earnings.

He then told the Commissioners that expense cost was overtaking earnings and would continue to do so as long as more and more traffic was handled, as might be expected.

Mr. Ellis said that if the gross income next year went to $79,000,000 from this year's figure of $64,000,000, the percentage of profit would be less next year.

Attorney Lust, representing the Illinois Manufacturers' Association, asked: "Mr. Ellis, you say your gross income last year from other sources than operation was $9,000,000. What are those sources?"

"Chiefly the Puget Sound Division," he answered. "The St. Paul owns all the stock, and in 1910 received $6,000,000 interest on the bonds."

"What!" interrupted Commissioner Lane. "Do you mean to say the Puget Sound branch paid all its operating expenses the first year, and in addition $6,000 interest on its capitalization?"

"Well, that was interest for a year and a half. However," continued Mr. Ellis, "it also earned a surplus of nearly $3,000,000."

"How was the Puget Sound Division paid for?" asked Mr. Lane.

"By a bond issue of $100,000,000, sold to stockholders."

"And in addition to the surplus a 7 per cent. dividend was paid on that issue last year?"

"Yes."

"About $13,000,000 profit, all told; that is, for each $7,000,000 or so you paid out, you received in this space of time $1,000,000?"

"That's not quite correct. You see, the St. Paul owns the surplus of $2,200,000 of the Puget Sound line in addition."

Attorney Frank Lyon for the commission interrupted to ask:

"If that surplus were added to the earnings of the St. Paul, it would more than make up for the added cost of labor?"

"It would."

"Then I would like to call the attention of the commission to the absolute failure of this company to include that sum in the surplus given in their latest report to the commission."

"Now," said Commissioner Lane, resuming, "we come to what I am beginning to call the 'mysterious cause' of the apparently increased cost of operation. What is it?"

"I'll tell you," was the reply. "Every session of Congress or Legislature has decreased the earning efficiency of the dollar expended upon labor. Eight-hour days, sixteen-hour telegraphers' limitations, restrictions in regard to rest hours, all these have cut down a dollar's efficiency. I still say that labor is the big factor in increased cost."

200 Stock Sold at Par.

The Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railroad also sold quantities of stock worth on the open market from 180 to 200 to its stockholders at par, according to the testimony of its commerce counsel, William Ellis. This was brought out by questions of H. C. Lust, counsel for the Illinois Manufacturers' Association. When the question was first propounded the witness responded:

"Let me ask this in return: How long would stock have sold for that if 100,000 shares had been thrown on the market?"

"But the thing was done?" persisted Mr. Lust.

"Yes."

"And that stock since has paid 7 per cent. dividends?"

"It has."

W. A. Gardner, Vice President of the Chicago & Northwestern, had previously been questioned by Attorney Clifford Thorne, who represents livestock shippers in twenty-two States. Mr. Thorne's questions were intended to bring from the witness admission that his company had made enough net earnings to rebuild the road had they been so applied. The attorney maintained that the company had kept up its right of way and equipment by the use only of earnings without affecting the dividends in years when the income was apparently light, as well as in "fat" years.

The railroad officials who have testified so far have based their plea for increased rates on the claim that the cost of service per unit is increasing faster than the rate of income, and that higher schedules are required to save the roads from ultimate bankruptcy.

Opposed to this reasoning is the charge by the shippers that the figures used in determining the cost of service are improper and misleading; that the railroads have padded their capitalization by sales of stock to stockholders far below its market value; that earnings are used for property additions and then capitalized, absorbing part of the income, and that other similar methods are used to conceal the actual income derived.

Other roads who will present testimony in support of their contention that a raise of rates is needed at this time are the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy, Iowa Central, Minneapolis & St. Louis, Chicago & Alton, Missouri Pacific, the Omaha Road, and the Great Western. The Missouri, Kansas & Texas line also may appear.

RAILWAY MEN PLEASED.

See Wider Hope in Decision Against Minnesota Rate Laws.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Sept. 22.—Officials in St. Paul railroad circles are well pleased with the opinion of Judge C. E. Otis as Special Master that the commodity freight and 2-cent passenger rate laws of Minnesota are unconstitutional. None would go on record this morning as commending the decision, but the sentiment in the general offices was manifest.

James J. Hill, Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Great Northern, would not say what benefits the railroads would derive should Judge Otis's recommendation be adopted by the courts, but he remarked on the benefits that the business world generally would obtain.

"There have been no new enterprises; the people have not been building," he said. Mr. Hill added that Judge Otis simply defined the limits of State authority; what it can do and what it cannot do. The State can neither take the property away from the railroads, nor can it fix rates which concern inter-State traffic, he said.

"The States gave Congress the right to regulate commerce between the States and they cannot take that right away now," he declared.

Traffic men were a little more ready to comment on the decision, but none would be quoted in an interview.

"It looks like the dawn of another day," said one official. "It is a little bit too early yet, however, to say much about it. It is like a man who has walked to first base after getting four balls. He has nine men seeking to prevent him from getting to the home plate. The railroads have a great deal more to contend with before they get through with these cases."

While officials are pleased because the adoption of Judge Otis's recommendation would mean the restoration of the old rates in Minnesota, they are particularly pleased because some of the officials argue that favorable action in the Minnesota cases would lead the way to favorable determination of the rate cases before the Inter-State Commerce Commission.

The State Railroad and Warehouse Commission will be shorn of the greater part of its power if the Federal Circuit Court approves the findings of Judge Otis in the commodity rate case, declares Assistant Attorney General Lyndon A. Smith, who has been the attorney for the commission in its general business

GETS PEARY'S SHIP TO RAISE THE MAINE

John Arbuckle Buys the Roosevelt and Begins Equipping Her for the Task.

TELEGRAPHS TO TAFT

Asks the President to Name an Expert Commission to Advise Him About the Work.

John Arbuckle of Arbuckle Brothers, coffee merchants at 71 Water Street, whose method of raising sunken vessels by forcing air into their holds after the shell of the boat has been made airtight by divers has been operated successfully on many sunken steamers, including a few ships of the navy, has bought Commander Peary's arctic ship, the Roosevelt, and with her as a wrecking vessel hopes to raise the old battleship Maine from the waters of Havana harbor.

Mr. Arbuckle sent a long telegram to President Taft yesterday asking the President to appoint a commission of scientific men having knowledge of marine affairs to report to him on the most feasible plan for raising the Maine.

"I can save the Government $150,000 in raising the Maine," said Mr. Arbuckle last night at the Hotel Margaret on Columbia Heights, Brooklyn, where he makes his Winter home, "and I am quite prepared to abide by the decision of any competent board of investigators who shall determine the surest, safest, and most economical means of raising the Maine."

Mr. Arbuckle closed the deal by which he became owner of the Roosevelt several days ago, and since then a corps of men has been at work on the vessel, which is lying at Pier 1, Empire Stores, Brooklyn, installing in the ship the machinery necessitated by Mr. Arbuckle's method of raising sunken craft. It is a matter now of days only when the Roosevelt will be prepared to steam out of New York harbor on her way to Cuban waters, and her departure, Mr. Arbuckle said last night, need not be delayed a day after the Government shall authorize him to attempt to raise the Maine.

Mr. Arbuckle will make the trip on the Roosevelt if she sails on this mission and will take personal charge of the salvage work. With him he will have the two men whom Mr. Arbuckle calls the best in the business.

"That is what I believe them to be and that is what is their reputation among wrecking men," said Mr. Arbuckle last night. "Capt. McAllister has no peer in his line of work, and there is no more resourceful or able engineer in the world than W. W. Wotherspoon. Together they make the best wrecking masters that could be found anywhere. They will have charge of the Roosevelt as soon as the machinery is installed."

Of the boat which he has bought Mr. Arbuckle seems unable to say enough in praise. The Roosevelt, he declares, is the best wrecking boat that could be obtained. Nowhere in the world is her equal to be found, he believes.

"The Roosevelt's hardships in the far north," said he last night, "have proved to me the vessel's capabilities and her stanchness. I can conceive of no other ship which could approach her for the work to which I shall put her. I wanted the best wrecking boat in the world and I've got it; one which combines tremendous strength and power with seaworthiness of the highest sort."

Mr. Arbuckle said he felt hopeful of obtaining the contract to raise the Maine and that in anticipation of this success he already had procured a complete set of plans of the Maine with drawings and the report of an experienced diver, who has been all through the sunken vessel and on whom Mr. Arbuckle said he could rely.

In his telegram to President Taft, Mr. Arbuckle called attention to the success which had rewarded his efforts to raise the steamships Bavarian, Mohawk, Mount Temple, Yankee, Massachusetts, Nero, Scottish King, and a number of other smaller vessels. Most of the larger vessels were abandoned by other wrecking concerns of this country and Canada after thousands of dollars had been expended in unsuccessful attempts to raise them.

PLAN FOR TARIFF BUREAU.

Campaign Begun to Affiliate Present Board with Treasury Department.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22.—Plans were announced here to-day of a campaign to be conducted by the National Tariff Commission Association to have Congress make the Tariff Board a permanent bureau of the Treasury Department. Henry R. Towne of New York, treasurer of the association, after a conference with the board indorsed the efforts of the board to obtain reliable information upon which to base tariff schedules, and emphasized the desire of manufacturers to co-operate.

The first of a series of conferences will take place to-morrow, when the board will meet the Executive Committee of the Chemical Manufacturing Association.

ASK LAW TO VALUE ROADS.

Rate Conference in Topeka Passes Strong Resolutions on Increases.

TOPEKA, Kan., Sept. 22.—Organized opposition to the proposed increases in railway freight rates was begun to-day at a conference of more than 150 representatives of commercial and public organizations of nine Middle Western States. The fight against the proposed rates is to be carried on principally before the Inter-State Commerce Commission.

The resolutions adopted declare for an equitable increase in rates if the railroads can show that present rates are unremunerative, demand a decrease in rates if investigation shows the present rates are too high; ask a restriction of the proposed advance if present rates are found remunerative; call for a mandatory Federal law, making it the duty of the Inter-State Commerce Commission to make a physical valuation of railroad property, and demand a rigid enforcement of anti-trust laws.

The meeting was opened with an address in which Gov. Stubbs of Kansas reviewed the situation and ended by declaring: "My hope is that this meeting will demand from the railroads the naked truth about their properties."

Murdo McKenzie, President of the American Livestock Association, was chosen Chairman of the meeting. He gave figures which showed he said that railroad earnings were not reported correctly by the roads. It is planned to hold other meetings of the conference later. Committees were appointed to organize the work begun to-day.

The resolutions conclude thus:

We urge the Inter-State Commerce Commission thoroughly to investigate the operating expenses of railroads, to find what betterments are added thereby to property, and all the conditions and valuations to railroad properties, regardless of the time that may be consumed, in order to obtain an intelligent basis for the consideration of the proposed advance in rates.

We declare it to be the duty of Congress to enact a mandatory law making it the duty of the Inter-State Commerce Commission to make a searching investigation into the actual physical investigation of all the railroad lines in the United States.

Chairman McKenzie was appointed head of a special committee of seven to present to President Taft the declarations of the conference.

The nine States represented at the rate conference—Iowa, Missouri, Nebraska, Minnesota, Oklahoma, Illinois, Colorado, Texas, and Kansas.

LESS TOBACCO FOR 5 CENTS.

Size of Some Packets Cut to Pay Tax —All to be Reduced, It Is Said.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22.—Packages of all American cigarettes and tobaccos are being reduced in size by the manufacturers to make up for the increased revenue taxes imposed by the tariff.

Packages of several well-known brands which used to contain twenty cigarettes and sold for 5 cents now contain only fifteen and sell for the same price. The first of the smaller-size packages have appeared in Washington and the internal revenue bureau has unofficial information that the so-called trust intends cutting the sizes of all its package goods in every city in the country. Packages of cigarettes which formerly contained ten hereafter will contain eight cigarettes. Packet pouches of tobacco which have been made in the favorite size of one and two-thirds ounces and sold for 5 cents will be reduced to one and a quarter ounces, it is understood.

City Chauffeurs Dismissed.

Controller Prendergast has notified the four chauffeurs who handle the machines of the Receiver of Taxes, Bureau of the Department of Finance, that their services will not be needed after Oct. 1. On that date he intends to do away with the cars of the bureau and have its men hire machines when they need them. He has figured that this change will save the city about $9,000 a year.

Aquarium to be Open at Night.

Announcement was made yesterday that for the next few weeks at least, the New York Aquarium, in Battery Park, will be opened every morning at 9 o'clock and kept open until 10 in the evening. This extension of the regular hours has been made in response to an unprecedented flow of visitors toward the Aquarium the last few days.

FIRST JERSEY TOWN NOW 250 YEARS OLD

A Week's Celebration Planned in Jersey City to Honor Founding of Bergen Village.

SCHOOL ON ORIGINAL SITE

First Church of the State, Also Built There, to Hold Special Services Early in October.

Mayor Wittpenn's Citizens' Committee has formulated its plans for the week-long celebration in Jersey City of the 250th anniversary of the founding of the village of Bergen. The ceremonies are to begin on Sunday, Oct. 16, and to conclude on the following Sunday.

It was on Bergen Square, on Jersey City Heights, that the first settlement in New Jersey was made. The first church and the first school house in all the State were built there. Because the settlement made there in 1660 was the beginning of the history of the State, it is expected that Gov. Fort, besides participating in the local ceremonies, will give the celebration State recognition in the form of an Executive proclamation.

City School Superintendent Henry Snyder said to a TIMES reporter yesterday that the day set apart for the participation of the schools might well be observed in a way by the schools all over the State. The ground on which that first school was built 250 years ago has ever since been used for school purposes. Public School No. 11 is now standing upon it, facing Bergen Square.

"The celebration," Mr. Snyder said, "is perhaps of more State historical import than of local import. The State outside of Jersey City grew more rapidly from that settlement in old Bergen than did Jersey City herself. The population of Jersey City was only 4,000 fifty years ago, and about 10,000 only thirty years ago, while Newark and other cities, taking seed from the old Bergen settlement, forged ahead. The State, both in the Governmental and in the educational department, has reason therefore to take cognizance of our celebration here. We are to have our observance of the anniversary in the schools on Oct. 19. I should like to see that day observed in all the schools of the State as 'Bergen Day.'"

The observance of the anniversary will begin on Sunday, Oct. 16, in Dr. Brett's Bergen Reformed Church. The Bergen Reformed Church is the successor of the first church established by the earlier settlers upon the grounds they were forced to barricade against the Indians. There will be all-day services in the church in commemoration of 250 years of religious growth in the community. The Rev. Dr. Burrill of the Collegiate Church in New York is expected to be one of the many conspicuous ministers to make addresses.

On Monday, Oct. 17, at the same church the church growth of the community will be commemorated. The clergymen of all the churches will attend.

On Tuesday, the 18th, there will be a congress of all the patriotic societies in the State under the auspices of the Society of Colonial Wars. After a reception at the Carteret Clubhouse the participants will parade, with music, to the Fourth Regiment Armory, where addresses will be delivered. The women will serve a luncheon to visiting guests. In the night there will be a public meeting in the High School auditorium, to be attended by the Mayors of all the cities, and addresses. This in commemoration of the growth of municipal life.

Wednesday, the 19th, will be school day. There will be special exercises in all the schools. Those at No. 11 will be particularly elaborate, because it is the parent school. A feature of the entertainment there will be historical tableaux.

At the Free Public Library on Thursday, the 20th, Burton H. Albee, Secretary of the Bergen County Historical Society, will deliver an illustrated lecture on "Colonial Homes of Bergen County." In the evening there is to be a dinner in the Scottish Rite Hall, at which Gov. Fort and ex-Govs. Murphy, Stokes, Griggs, and Voorhees will be the chief guests.

On Friday, the 21st, the Board of Trade will arrange a procession exhibiting the industrial growth of the community.

A great military parade will be the feature of Saturday, the 22d, and the week's exercises will close with a final observance in the Bergen Reformed Church.

TO GUARD GRADE CROSSINGS.

Highways Association Wants Chauffeurs Forced to Stop at Them.

War against grade crossings throughout the State is to be made by the Highways Protective Association, of which Henry Clews is President. The attack will be made through a bill which will be presented to the Legislature this Winter requiring all drivers of automobiles or horse-drawn vehicles to stop fifteen feet before every railroad crossing at grade in the State.

Those who advocate the passage of such a law declare that many persons have been killed or injured recently at grade crossings who were in no way to blame, but were passengers in autos where chauffeurs took the risk.

FORDHAM LAW SCHOOL OPENS

Justice Minturn Deplores Tendency to Commercialize the Law.

The Fordham University School of Law reopened for its sixth year at the chamber music hall in the Carnegie Hall, Fifty-seventh Street and Seventh Avenue, Manhattan, last night.

The opening address was delivered by Justice James F. Minturn, Associate Justice of the Supreme Court of New Jersey, who took for his subject "The Modern Lawyer."

Justice Minturn in his address deplored the modern tendency to commercialize the law. He urged the need in the profession of science as against mere shop work, of conscience as against chicanery and sharp practice, and of dignity as against blatant self-advertising.

The Realization of an Ideal

Here it stands—complete at last; awaiting only the final instructions to the salesforce and the last touches to the merchandise before its doors open.

It is the realization of five years of planning, based on sixty-eight years of actual or inherited experience. We began to dream of a store like this twenty or thirty years ago. By little and little our ideals have taken form. Five years ago we began to put them on paper. Two years ago we secured the site for the building. A year ago all that we had dreamed, hoped for and planned began to exist in stone and steel and wood.

And now it is finished!

Our feeling as we near the culmination of our preparations is one of relief—not at all of anxiety. We are glad that the work of getting ready is over. We have no fear as to the results, for we know that the work has been well done.

We believe that we have as fine a store as can be built; perhaps as fine a store as will ever be built. This is not alone our own opinion—judges free from our prejudice tell us so. Not that we claim great outward or architectural beauty: the building is simple and plain; some critics may say severely plain. But let them reserve their judgment until they see the INSIDE.

We have wasted no money in SHOW. There is no tawdry elaboration anywhere — as little inside as outwardly. The beauty of New York's new store is the beauty of simple elegance, harmony of proportion, excellence of arrangement. For all it is so big, you will find it singularly cozy and comfortable. For all its superb appointments you will find it charmingly homelike and restful. There is no cold grandeur about Gimbels.

But, after all, the point of real importance is not how fine a store this is, but how good a store it is to be. Since the announcement of our coming to New York there has been some curiosity as to who we are and what we intend to do. The curiosity is natural, proper and gratifying. The time has come to satisfy fully and frankly. The store itself will open on September 29th. After that day you can best judge us by our goods and our service. But from day to day until then we ask you to let us tell you something about this store, of the principles it stands for, and the ideals and traditions that control it.

GILLMAN CHOSEN AS G. A. R. HEAD

McElroy Gives Up in the Contest for Commander in Chief Just Before the Vote.

MEET IN ROCHESTER NEXT

"Grubb's Game Chickens" Have an Outside Gathering and Are Addressed by the General.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 22.—The battle between John E. Gillman of Massachusetts and John McElroy of Washington for election as Commander in Chief did not take place on the floor of the National Encampment of the G. A. R. today. McElroy pulled out of the contest because of alleged rumors which he said had been circulated among his comrades connecting him with the boom of the St. Cloud (Florida) Reservation for veteran soldiers. His friends cried to him from all over the house to take back his decison and run, but he was firm and withdrew. In spite of that, he polled 216 votes. Gillman polled 675 votes, and his election was made unanimous.

McElroy immediately demanded that a committee be appointed to investigate his connection with the St. Cloud promotion. The committee will in all probability be appointed by the Commander in Chief to-morrow. McElroy was Vice President of the Seminole Land Company, which organized and put St. Cloud on the market. Mr. McElroy did not say what the alleged charges of irregularity were.

The other officers elected to-day were: Senior Vice Commander in Chief, Charles Burrows of Rutherford, N. J.; Junior Vice Commander, William E. James of Jacksonville, Fla.; Chaplain in Chief, the Rev. Thomas Harwood, a Methodist Missionary of New Mexico; Sugeon General, Dr. John L. Smith of Spokane, Wash.

The report of the Committee on Pensions advocated the extension of the law applying to soldiers' widows. At present no woman can get a soldier's pension after his death unless she was married prior to 1890. The purpose is to make it possible for the widow to draw the pension provided she has been married three years prior to her soldier husband's death.

There is another proposal being advocated for the granting of a large increase in the pensions of all soldiers seventy-five years of age and more.

The Pension Committee reported against any scheme to pay all old soldiers a pension of a dollar a day. They said this was out of all reason.

The place of holding the next meeting will be left to the Council of Administration, composed of one representative from each State. Los Angeles, Denver, and Rochester, N. Y., have all made a strong bid for the encampment, but there will be no decision until the Council learns something about what the railroads are likely to do. There seems to be a general feeling, however, that the next encampment will go to Rochester. In fact, that place has been agreed upon provided the rates are made satisfactory.

It is believed there will be a discussion to-morrow as to the presence of the Lee statue in the Statutary Hall. It is hardly likely that anything rash will be done, because the more level heads will hold things pretty tight. Col. McElroy, of Washington, and others, say it is there, and might as well as stay.

There was a gathering of "Grubb's Game Chickens" at the Ponce-de-Leon this afternoon, and General Grubb struck a note that reverberated in the hearts of almost every old soldier of the Union Army, and especially of the members of his regiment, the Thirty-seventh New Jersey Volunteers.

He said there had been some men who had advocated the cementing of the North and South by combining the Confederate Veterans and the G. A. R., and making it one organization.

"That is a thing to which I for one am deadly opposed," said the General. "Every man who had the courage to go forth in the civil war and fight for the principles he believed right is entitled to preserve all the memories, good and bad, of that immortal struggle. Nor do I believe for a minute that the men who fought under Lee, Jackson, Bureaugard, and others of the Confederate Army would want to make a coalition. I am firmly convinced that as a whole they feel just as we do in the matter and want to preserve their own identity."

Gen. Grubb paid a tribute to the memory of the late Dr. Leslie D. Ward of Newark, who was the only member of the Game Chickens who had died during the year.

Col. Gilman, the newly elected Commander in Chief of the Grand Army of the Republic, was a member of the Fighting Twelfth Massachusetts infantry, enlisting at a tender age after he had run away from home, smitten with the war fever. The Colonel of his regiment was Fletcher Webster, son of the illustrious Daniel Webster. During his entire civil was experience he served successively under Gens. Pope, McClellan, Burnside, "Fighting Joe" Hooker, and Meade. The bloodiest engagement of his regiment was at Antietam, where 80 per cent. of the men were either killed outright or mortally wounded. He was at the front most of the many days of the heavy fighting at Gettysburg and only laid down his gun when one of his arms was blown off by a rebel shell. Col. Gilman is one of the original members of the G. A. R., having come into the organization in 1868.

GAS CO. TO CUT ITS RATE.

Kings County Concern Agrees to Scale Down 5 Cents a Year.

As a result of negotiations conducted by the Public Service Commission on the complaints of more than a hundred customers of the Kings County Gas Company residing in the Bay Ridge district, that corporation sent a letter to the commission yesterday offering a voluntary reduction from the present rate of $1 per 1,000 feet, which at the end of four years will work out an 80-cent rate. The district in question is a part of the territory which is expressly exempted from the operation of the 80-cent gas law.

Under the new schedule, beginning Jan. 1, there will be a reduction to 95 cents; the following January the price will come down to 90 cents, in 1913 it will be 85 cents, and on Jan. 1, 1914, 80 cents. The letter of the company to the Public Service Commission was accompanied by one from the citizens' organization, which conducted the agitation, commending the company for the spirit in which it treated the matter.

SHIED AT THE DYNAMITE.

Man Carrying It Had the Street to Himself—Arrested.

An Italian laborer, carrying a sack on one shoulder, stopping nervously whenever a group of children passed or a vehicle rolled by, aroused the suspicions of Arthur J. Broadway, a contractor, of 448 Mott Avenue, at Mott Avenue and 150th Street last evening.

"What have you got in that bag?" asked Broadway.

'Dynamite," answered the laborer, wiping his brow, and warding him off with a frightened gesture.

Broadway took to his heels, and did not stop until he met Policeman Schoolmaker, several blocks away. To him he told what he had heard, and together they ran back to where the Italian was continuing north with his dangerous load. When the policeman questioned him he said he had carried it so for more than a mile from an excavation his boss was digging at 138th Street and Canal Place, to another at 167th Street and Ogden Avenue.

The policeman and Broadway led him to the Alexander Avenue Station, warding off passers-by at either side. They, too, presently began to wish they had reached their destination. Once the Italian stumbled slighnly. It was ten minutes before they returned to him.

When they reached the station the laborer, who said he was Angelo Stango of 187th Street and Arthur Avenue, was locked up on a charge of carrying dynamite in an improper manner through the streets. The law prescribes that dynamite should be carried in a magazine.

The dynamite, which was in two large sticks, was placed for safe keeping on a bench in the station; but the reserves grew so fidgety that Lieut. Joyce was obliged to telephone to the Bureau of Combustibles for a man to take it away.

PRIZES FOR BEST TRACK.

Pennsylvania Rewards Supervisors in Annual Competition.

With a view to spurring its track supervisors and assistant supervisors to wholesome rivalry, the Pennsylvania Railroad distributes annually $5,400 in premiums to those whose divisions have been kept in the most perfect condition in the year. This year's premiums, six in number, were distributed yesterday at Harrisburg at the close of the first day of the General Manager's thirty-eighth annual track inspection, on which the General Manager was accompanied by his entire staff of officers, including some 350 men in the operating department of the railroad.

To insure that the premiums shall be awarded accurately a committee of maintenance of way officers goes over the line every few weeks in the year in a car attached to one of the regular high speed trains. Two glasses of water are put on the sills of two rear windows, and every spill of water is counted against the score of the section of track over which the train is passing. To make the record even more accurate an instrument has been specially designed to register every vibration of the car, either vertically or horizontally. The smaller the amount of vibration, the better the track.

The first premium, that of $1,200, of which $800 goes to the supervisor and $400 to the assistant supervisor having the best line and surface between Jersey City and Pittsburg and Philadelphia and Washington, was awarded to Supervisor George Goldie, Jr., and Assistant Supervisor R. R. Nace, who have charge of the track from Sixty-second Street, West Philadelphia, to Wilmington.

ARGUE CAFE DE L'OPERA CASE

Lawyers Discuss Terms on Which a Firm Gave Concern $500,000 Credit.

The terms on which Stern Brothers supplied $500,000 worth of equipment to the corporation which formerly conducted the Cafe de l'Opera were discussed before Justice Gavegan in Special Term to the Supreme Court yesterday when Morris J. Hirsch moved to vacate a discovery order obtained by the attorney for Anton H. Meyer, assignee of the United States Restaurant and Realty Company, for the appearance of members of the Stern firm before Warren Leslie as referee, before whom they were also directed to produce their contracts, orders, and account books. Justice Gavegan took the matter under advisement until Oct. 6.

The order was obtained under a section in the debtor and creditor law, and Mr. Hirsch argued that it amounted to a "double disturbance" because the assignee could have the examination desired in connection with the final accounting of the assignee. He objected to depleting with an expensive reference an insolvent estate which has $30,000 in assets and owes $800,000, Stern Brothers being the principal creditors.

Counsel for the assignee said that when he took possession of the establishment he found that the contents of the seven-story building were covered by recorded conditional bills of sale amounting to $522,000, on which $203,000 had been paid.

PLAN TO SPEND $1,500,000,000

Central Road Representative Says It Already Has Put Out $26,790,000.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Sept. 22.—The New York Central plans a six track road across the State of which several portions have already been built. It has expended since 1907 or has arranged to spend upward of $1,500,000,000 on improvements in the State, and is able to take care of more than twice the freight offered.

This was the testimony to-day of Chief Engineer George W. Kittridge of the New York Central in the opening before the up-State Public Service Commission of the opposition to that road's petition for permission to build the Buffalo, Rochester & Eastern Railroad. Mr. Kittridge said that $26,790,000 already had been expended on the the New York City Terminal, which is expected to cost $100,000,000. On the west shore $1,377,000 will be expended in improvements, and $5,256,000 on its signal system. Mr. Kittridge estimated that the new road would cost $117,246,551 against the Public Service Commission's estimate of $97,656,124 and the Buffalo, Rochester & Eastern's $85,550,018.

In opposing the application Chief Engineer F. B. Freeman of the Boston & Albany road testified that since 1907 the company had expended $14,000,000 in improvements, including seventy-seven miles of tracks built between Rensselaer and Springfield. He said the company now was able to handle 1,800 freight cars a day each way more than ten years ago and that the company has not received for some time any complaints regarding delayed deliveries.

The commission will resume hearings on the application Oct. 20 and 21.

BIG GAS WELL IS STRUCK.

DUNKIRK, N. Y., Sept. 22.—The Standard Oil Company struck to-day a gas well at Arkwright, four miles south of Dunkirk, which flows 500,000 feet a day.

The roar of escaping gas can be heard a mile away. The well is the largest in Western New York.

Florence Burns Held for Grand Jury.

Florence Wallace Burns Wildrick of 224 West Twenty-fifth Street and Edward H. Brooks of 365 St. John's Place, Brooklyn, who were arrested on Tuesday on complaint of Charles W. Hurlbut, a real estate lawyer, of 160 Broadway, who charged them with extorting $57 in cash and signed statements and notes for $500 from him in a "badger game," were held in bail of $5,000 each for the Grand Jury by Magistrate Corrigan in the Jefferson Market Court yesterday.

Williams Loses City Contract Fight.

Supreme Court Justice Whitney denied yesterday the application of John Williams, a contractor, for a writ of mandamus compelling Bridge Commissioner Martin to award him the contract for the completion of a concrete bridge over East Chester Creek. Williams's bid was $31,000, which he contends was $1,000 lower than the bid of Snare & Triest, who got the contract.

RICH MAN ENDS LIFE; HAD SHOT A WOMAN

B. W. Yates of Detroit Hangs Himself in Cleveland Jail After Day of Auto Rides.

HE HAD MENTAL TROUBLES

Quarreled with Mrs. Singer, but Declared That He Meant the Shots for Himself.

Special to The New York Times.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Sept. 22.—Burton W. Yates, a prominent Detroit business man, hanged himself in the county jail this morning, a short time after he had been locked up on the charge of shooting Mrs. Fred Singer in a small hotel at Rocky River. Mrs. Singer, who is about 23 years old, is at Lakewood Hospital. She will probably recover unless unexpected complications set in.

Left alone in the "bull pen" of the jail while commitment papers were made out, Yates hurried into the washroom, tied his handkerchief around his neck, attached it to an iron bar, and strangled himself. When the guards returned they found him dead.

To-night the woman's attorney, Frank Billman, was closeted with Yates's two sons for several hours. The three absolutely refused to discuss the shooting or its cause. The young men, A. W. and H. F. Yates, hurried here from Detroit as soon as the news of the shooting reached them, and the body of their father was shortly afterward identified as it lay in a private morgue.

The couple arrived at the hotel shortly after midnight, following a day of automobile rides. At 3 A. M. a quarrel started, which ended in the woman rushing out of the roadhouse and across the street to the telephone booth of a rival establishment. The man followed closely.

The woman had entered the telephone booth by the time the man arrived. He tore open the door, dragged her out, and asked her to return with him. There was a brief argument, then he drew a gun and fired five shots, two taking effect.

Employes of the roadhouse overpowered the man and summoned Marshal Roy Martin of Rocky River, who brought him to the jail. Marshal Martin says the man told him that two of the five shots he fired were aimed at himself, but that he was so nervous he missed.

Mrs. Singer is rather stout and has light hair and blue eyes. The dead man was stockily built, and had iron gray hair and a light brown mustache.

Yates was 48 years of age and married. He was Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Business Men's Publishing Company of Detroit, was owner and manager of a hotel, and possessed extensive lumber holdings near Brantford, Ontario. He is said to have been left by his father a fortune of nearly half a million dollars, but under conditions that gave him control only of the income from the property and not of the principal. He lived at 48 Alexandrine Avenue, Detroit, with his wife and two sons, one of whom had recently graduated from Michigan University. The mental condition of Yates had been causing his relatives and friends considerable anxiety for six months. He tried to kill himself once before.

Mrs. Singer is the wife of Fred Singer, a commercial traveler of this city. She was a Michigan girl, and was married six years ago, but has not been living with her husband for some months. She was making her home in Detroit, and came here two days ago.

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 22.—While not frequently nor prominently in the public prints, Burton W. Yates was in a quiet way a man of large interests and a recognized figure in the financial and business world in Detroit. He was a close friend of H. F. Moeller, General Passenger Agent of the Pere Marquette Railroad through his association with the Pointe Aux Barques Resort Association.

"Mr. Yates had been in a mental condition the past six months that was alarming to his friends," said Mr. Moeller to-day, "and this act is not surprising, although personally I never thought he would do it."

Mr. Yates was Chairman of the Business Men's Publishing Company, publishers of The Bookkeeper, but was only an occasional caller at the office for board meetings and other formal matters. He gave no attention to the business details, it is said. Yates, A. E. F. White, and A. W. Knapp held each a third interest in the company. He was Vice President of the Koenietzer Tanning Company of Saginaw and had other investments, including some lumber interests. None of his associates was aware of any business or other troubles that would unsettle Mr. Yates's mind.

AUTOS CRASH IN RIVERSIDE.

Joseph H. Emery's Car and Another That Rammed It Are Wrecked.

As Joseph H. Emery, of 9 East Thirty-ninth Street, President of the firm of Lord & Taylor, was driving north in Riverside Drive in his automobile last night with his wife and a friend, at whose home they were to take dinner, a southbound touring car owned by Louis Van Brink, an auctioneer of 622 West 113th Street, containing only the chauffeur, Bernard Carney of 421 West Fifty-third Street, turned sharply east into 110th Street. Before Mr. Emery could check his car, the other had crashed into it, striking it squarely on the side, crushing the running board, bending the front axle, and jarring the occupants violently. The front of Carney's car was crushed.

When Mr. Emery remonstrated with the chauffeur, accusing him of reckless driving, Carney replied angrily, accusing him in turn. Thereupon Mr. Emery complained to Policeman McCarthy, and had Carney arrested on a charge of reckless driving. It was found that he had no license with him, and a charge of operating an automobile without a license was added.

New Red Cross Seals Out.

Samples of the new Red Cross Christmas seals, which will be used this year, were received yesterday by the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis. While the sticker is perforated like those used last year, it is intended for use only as a seal on the back of letters. The seal is one inch square, with the conventional Red Cross in the centre, and the words "Merry Christmas, Happy New Year, American Red Cross," in a circle about it. The colors are red and green. Twenty-five millions of these seals are being printed, and it is hoped to sell 100,000,000 before New Year's Day.

MUST CLEAR FIRE ESCAPES.

Their Obstruction a Great Danger, Tenement Commissioner Asserts.

The Tenement House Department issued a warning yesterday to those living in apartment houses and tenements against blocking the fire escapes by using them as storage places. Commissioner Murphy in the circular said:

The indifference and carelessness of many citizens, now using fire escapes as a storage place for boxes, bedding, and discarded furniture, endanger not merely their own lives but those of other occupants of the buildings in which they live. The continuous efforts of the Tenement House Department to keep fire escapes clear of such obstructions are defeated by the restoration of these articles to their place on the fire escapes within an hour or two after the time when they have been removed by the orders of the Tenement House officer.

An objectionable habit is growing up in many parts of the city, according to the circular, of hanging clothes lines from fire-escape balconies. These not only give the street in which such practices are permitted an unsightly appearance, the Commissioner asserts, but it is a constant fire danger if people are careless in throwing lighted matches, cigars, or cigarettes from windows.

WHAT CAUSES CONGESTION.

Not Immigration, but Insufficient Tenement Law, Says John Foster Carr.

At a hearing held by the Sub-committee on Immigration of the Congestion of Population Commission yesterday a great deal of argument was heard in favor of the restriction of immigration by the Government. One of the most interesting speakers was John Foster Carr of the National Liberal Immigration League. He opposed further restrictive legislation, and said that the non-enforcement of existing laws was largely responsible for the evils of congestion and not the newly arrived immigrants themselves.

"The very worst of the conditions in our tenements are often our own fault," said he, "the result of a negligence that I don't hesitate to call criminal. The overcrowding of our tenements should be prevented by a strictly enforced law regulating not only the taking of boarders and lodgers, but the number of persons permitted to sleep within a certain air space.

"This would undoubtedly increase rents, but this in turn would increase the movement to the suburbs and the country. It is, however, a lamentable fact that every advance toward decent living in our tenements is bitterly, unscrupulously, and often successfully fought by the powerful real estate interests that are concerned."

STOKES TO A PRISONER'S AID.

Pleads for Release of an Agent Accused of Stealing $75.

W. E. D. Stokes, proprietor of the Hotel Ansonia, pleaded in the Tombs Police Court yesterday for the release of Elliott A. Haaseman, a salesman for the Lauterbach Art Galleries of 149 Broadway, from which concern he stole a $75 check issued by Mr. Stokes in payment for a painting.

Mr. Stokes asked Herman Lauterbach, head of the firm, to drop the case, and offered to give him the $75.

Mr. Lauterbach demurred. Mr. Stokes then asked that the case be put over until Monday, and employed Edward Carpel as counsel for the prisoner. The bail was made $1,000 by Magistrate Herrman, but Stokes gave no sign of furnishing the bond.

Mr. Stokes explained his interest in the man by saying that he had taken a liking to him and wanted to help him out, knowing that he had had a hard time to get along.

CARS AS PARK BENCHES.

Visitor Discovers New Use of Common Trolley in Nation's Capital.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22.—A new use, according to a veracious visiting citizen from some centre of more fevered life, has been discovered in the capital city for the common trolley car. Everybody knows that from a point in front of the Treasury certain G Street cars start every once in a while for places in the suburbs and elsewhere. The recognized custom of those who wish to use these cars is to go there and get aboard one that you find waiting and sit patiently till it starts.

The visitor reports that he proceeded according to rule. He found a car waiting, got aboard and waited with it. There were several others in like case and the patience of the assembly was taxed some twenty minutes before the conductor, who had been talking with the motorman, came along and jangled the go-ahead bell. At the sound two men who had been engaged in eager conversation at the remote end of the car got up in quite leisurely fashion and descended to the street.

"Your beautiful and dignified city," said the visitor, "is the first that I have seen in which the inhabitants used the street cars as park benches are commonly used—as places for rest and conversation. I suppose that long experience enables you to know exactly what cars to sit down in for a good long chat. Perhaps certain cars are reserved for the purpose, but if so there should be signs to warn the stranger. In my own severely utilitarian town they put up the placard, 'Waiting Car' when in cold weather one is being used as a substitute for a non-existent station. Yours might be labeled 'Rest Cars' or 'Thirty Minutes for Conversation' or something like that."

FIGHT INFANTILE PARALYSIS.

State Health Board Decides to Quarantine the Disease.

ALBANY, N. Y., Sept. 22.—A systematic study of infantile paralysis is being made by State Health Commissioner Porter. He said he was fully satisfied cases exist in many parts of the State. In a statement to-day the Health Department said:

"While recent investigations establish this as a communicable disease, it has not as yet been determined positively by what means it is transmitted. Recognizing, however, its transmissibility the department now requires it to be reported and quarantined for twenty-one days.

"With a view of systematically studying its cause and prevalence, Commissioner Porter has placed in the hands of every physician in the State blanks on which he urges a detailed report of every case since Jan. 1. This, it is thought, will result not only in the report of many cases, but furnish much valuable information regarding a disease so little known.

"The department urges co-operation of citizens in its combat against infantile paralysis."

SUPERSEDES DE WITT IN QUEENS TRIALS

Governor Directs Attorney General O'Malley to Take Charge of the Graft Prosecutions.

FOSDICK HAD ASKED IT

Commissioner of Accounts Declared a Vigorous and Disinterested Prosecution of Indictments Was Required.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Sept. 22.—Gov. Hughes has directed Attorney General O'Malley, under Section 62 of the executive law, to conduct the prosecution of criminal charges against persons in Queens Borough before the Supreme Court there in October. The charges refer to complaints made against Lawrence Gresser, President of Queens Borough, and others, and the order of the Governor is the outcome of a letter from Commissioner of Accounts Raymond B. Fosdick, written to Gov. Hughes on Sept. 16, in which Mr. Fosdick says:

Sir: As you are doubtless aware, there are now pending in the County of Queens certain indictments brought against various officials and employes of the Borough of Queens for acts of official misfeasance. These indictments are the first of importance that have grown out of the recent investigation conducted by the office of the Commissioners of Accounts of New York City, and have therefore a very vital bearing not only upon honest and efficient public administration in that borough, but upon the ultimate effectiveness of the power of this office in bringing to light official wrongdoing. I feel that you will agree with me that without demonstrating the vitality of the criminal statutes designed to inhibit wrongdoing in office, no amount of investigation of such wrongdoing will effectually serve to prevent it.

I therefore beg leave to suggest to you that the necessity for a vigorous and disinterested prosecution of the indictments in question warrants your considering the advisability of supporting the State's case with the powers conferred upon you by statute. I have specifically in mind the appointment of a special Deputy Attorney General of conspicuous public standing and broad experience in criminal prosecution.

The Governor has directed Mr. O'Malley to attend the Queens trials in person or to appoint a deputy to represent him.

Lawrence Gresser, President of Queens, was indicted on July 14 on a charge of auditing fraudulent vouchers for the construction of concrete culverts in Jackson Avenue, Long Island City. Along with Gresser were indicted ex-Under Sheriff John M. Phillips, a contractor, and Cornelius Burke, an ex-Superintendent of Sewers. Phillips was indicted for grand larceny and Burke for attempted grand larceny.

The testimony before the Grand Jury showed that Phillips had been awarded a contract to concrete the Jackson Avenue culverts, but instead had whitewashed them. It was testified that Gresser had been informed of this, but that he signed the bill and saw that it was put through and paid.

District Attorney Frederick G. De Witt, while arguing on a motion made by Gresser's lawyer to dismiss the indictment, said that it had been found over his protest, and, as he believed, on insufficient evidence. He said that he not only advised against returning the indictment, but requested the Grand Jury to report to the court for instructions and had been overruled.

A committee of Queens residents was so aroused over this attitude of the District Attorney that it requested Gov. Hughes to direct Attorney General O'Malley to designate a special deputy to take charge of the case.

District Attorney De Witt yesterday forwarded to the Board of Estimate an application for $20,000, which, he says, will be required to try the former officials of the Borough of Queens, now under indictment.

More Money Wanted for Parks.

The Park Department has prepared its estimate of the amount of money which it wants for next year, and asks for an increase of nearly $1,500,000, or a total of $4,760,460. The most interesting increases asked are: $40,600 for playgrounds and $7,000 to pay for the establishment of a children's school farm.

M'CLELLAN INDORSES HEARST ATTACKS

Deprecates Cohalan Controversy, but Says the Editor's Charge Against Gaynor Is True.

THINKS HEARST LIBELED

By Publication of the Mayor's Speech at the A. P. Dinner and Can Collect Damages for It.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Sept. 22.—Ex-Mayor George B. McClellan of New York was asked to-day if he cared to make any statement regarding the revival in to-day's New York American of the dispute over the matter of the payment of the Cohalan warrant for legal services a few days after his own Administration had been succeeded by the Gaynor régime at City Hall. Mr. McClellan said:

"There was a question of facts involved in the controversy over the Cohalan warrant which compelled me to speak. I was accused of having authorized a payment of $48,000, which, in fact, I did not authorize. When The New York American informed me of this charge by cable to Italy I sent back a statement of the facts to that newspaper.

"Later THE TIMES sent me a cablegram and I sent THE TIMES an even more emphatic statement. I reiterate that statement now. I did not pass the Cohalan warrant. I ordered it held up and called to the attention of my successor. I won't enter into the merits of the payment. My version of what was done with the Cohalan warrant was substantiated in every particular by Controller Prendergast, by ex-Controller Metz, and by James J. Martin.

"So much for the facts about the Cohalan warrant. I am out of politics and have no interest in the controversy which is now raging between the two statesmen concerned in it. I decline to be brought into it. I could only give a statement of opinion which would be valueless in view of the fact that I have just returned from abroad and have been out of the country and out of touch with the New York political situation for many months.

"I would like to oblige the editors of THE TIMES. I note that Mr. Hearst has sued THE TIMES and other papers for damages for libel growing out of the reports of the speech of Mayor Gaynor at The Associated Press dinner. My judgment as a lawyer is that Mr. Hearst has a most excellent case, and that it is merely a matter of assessing damages. THE TIMES and other papers printed Mayor Gaynor's statement that Hearst had committed State rison felonies. Hearst hasn't even been indicted. It isn't likely he will be. I would advise THE TIMES to compromise the suit if it is still being pressed. I note that The Brooklyn Eagle squared itself by enthusiastically supporting the Hearst end of the Cohalan check controversy. THE TIMES and The World seem to be Gaynor's personal organs.

"Of course you never can tell what a jury will do. The idiosyncrasies of juries are beyond reckoning. Perhaps Mr. Hearst will not press his suit against THE TIMES. I am told it is scarcely considered sportsmanlike for one newspaper editor to sue another. I hope the case will be dropped, because I do not wish to be involved as a witness in such an affair."

McClellan took a look through the history of the Cohalan check controversy as published in The American to-day and said:

NAVY ENLISTMENT COSTLY.

Youth Will Lose $1,500,000 Unless He Can Obtain His Discharge.

CHICAGO, Sept. 22.—The enlistment of Horace Logan Keeler, of Richmond, Ind., in the United States Navy may cost him a fortune of $1,500,000, it was learned to-day. The young man enlisted here on Sept. 7. Two months before his grandfather had died and by the terms of his will young Keeler was left property valued at $1,500,000, provided he earned not less than $75 a month until he is 25 years old. Keeler enlisted as a medical apprentice in the Navy at $22 a month.

Lawyers representing the Keeler estate reached here last night after a search through Texas, Colorado, Kansas and Missouri. They were told that the young man had enlisted and gone to Norfolk, Va. After examining Keeler's enlistment papers, the attorneys intimated they would appeal to the War Department to save his fortune.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22.—Horace Logan Keeler is now serving as a hospital apprentice at Newport, R. I., as a training for future naval service.

The Naval authorities here have no disposition to cause him to lose the property and the Secretary of the Navy probably will order his discharge, though no word yet has reached the Department from him.

PLAN TO REUNITE CHRISTYS.

Sister Wants Artist and Wife to Compromise on Residence Question.

Special to The New York Times.

ZANESVILLE, Ohio, Sept. 22.—Miss Rose Christy has found a way whereby her brother, Howard Chandler Christy, and his wife, Mrs. Mabelle Christy, can patch up their differences and live together again. The principal point on which the couple split was the matter of residence. Mrs. Christy would not live in Duncan Falls and Mr. Christy would not live in New York.

Miss Rose Christy's plan is for her brother to go to New York during the Fall and Winter and his wife go to Duncan Falls during the Spring and Summer. She said that if this plan is followed out they may be reunited, and that Natalie, their little daughter can live with them.

Christy does not want to live in New York because he cannot work well cooped up in a studio with no outlook, but Miss Christy said Natalie has pleaded for a reconciliation, and that both love her so much they will consent in a few days.

AN ORIGINAL TIMES READER.

Benjamin O. Wade, Who Celebrates His 92d Birthday, Read First Number.

Special to The New York Times.

ELIZABETH, N. J., Sept. 22.—Benjamin Ogden Wade, the oldest native born resident of this city, whose proudest boast is that he has been a daily reader of THE NEW YORK TIMES since its first issue, more than a half century ago, celebrated his ninety-second birthday to-day, at his home, 32 Prospect Street.

"I read the TIMES," he said, "because I always found that it told both sides of a story and editorially it dealt fairly with all questions. In the half century of its existence it hasn't departed from its set principle of printing 'all the news that't fit to print.'"

Mr. Wade is still active for his years and in possession of all his faculties, although his sight and hearing are slightly impaired. He said to-day that he remembered the time when there was not a railroad in the world and when Commodore Vanderbilt ran a boat across Staten Island Sound.

As a child he remembers when Gen. Lafayette passed through Elizabeth, just eighty-six years ago to-morrow. The distinguished French General was on his way to Mount Vernon. Mr. Wade says he missed seeing Lafayette because he was so frightened by the illumination of the town he did not dare go out. He did not understand what all the light was for and thought the world was coming to an end.

The aged Elizabethan also remembers when Gen. Jackson went through this city and was taken on board a boat bound for New York.

6 MONTHS FOR BROKER'S SON

Magistrate Makes Up His Mind About Him After Hearing Girl's Story.

Charles Allen Brown, son of the late Charles N. Brown, of the firm of Morris Brown & Co., Gould brokers, who was arrested during a quarrel with a young woman in the street, early Wednesday morning, was sentenced to the Workhouse for six months by Magistrate Barlow, in the West Side Court, yesterday. He was charged with assault by Mildred B. Mason, a manicurist, with whom he had been living up to a few weeks ago. Having deserted the young woman, Brown complained to the police that she was bothering him. An early Wednesday morning Policeman Clancy saw Brown kick her three times and slap her face in the street, and Brown was arrested.

Brown was unable to produce witnesses to testify for him, and after hearing a pitiable story from the young woman Magistrate Barlow announced that he had reached his conclusion. At this point counsel for Brown leaned over the bench and said to his Honor:

"I hope your Honor will include in the decision a direction to this woman to cease bothering my client."

"It will not be necessary," replied the Magistrate, "for she will not be able to molest him for six months at any rate. I sentence the defendant to the workhouse for six months."

Brown, who had worn a self-satisfied air, fainted in front of the bench upon hearing his sentence.

NEGRO EX-POLICEMAN HELD.

Charged with Assault—He's Become Wealthy Since Leaving Force.

Former Patrolman Wiley G. Overton, colored, an undertaker, 50 years old, of 317 Bridge Street, Brooklyn, who for a short time some twenty years ago had the distinction of being the first negro appointed to the police force of Brooklyn, was arrested late yesterday afternoon on a warrant issued by Magistrate Harris in the Gates Avenue Police Court charging him with assault. Mrs. Maritia Robinson, a young colored woman, is complainant. He was released at Headquarters in $500 bail.

Overton has prospered since his dismissal from the force two years after he was appointed. He was made a policeman from the civil service list, and his selection caused consternation among the Brooklyn bluecoats. He was assigned to the Adams Street Station and for a time the other policemen in the station house chose to sit up nights in the armchairs of the muster room in preference to sleeping on their cots in the dormitory when Overton was there. The negro endured two years of social ostracism.

Mrs. Robinson, the complainant against Overton, told the police that the alleged assault took place in her apartments last Tuesday in the course of a struggle between the two for the possession of a bank-book. Overton is said to be one of the wealthiest negroes in Brooklyn.

HYENA COMMITTING SUICIDE.

Animal in the National Zoo Has Eaten Its Own Leg Almost Off.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22.—Gnawing off its left hind leg and drinking its own blood a spotted hyena, not of the laughing variety, is committing progressive suicide at the National Zoological Garden.

The animal, a gift of Adam Forepaugh in 1895, began the process of self-destruction several days ago, and, before its keepers discovered the cause of the injuries, had chewed the flesh from paw to knee joint. It is now exhausted, and keepers fear it will be necessary to kill the animal. Dementia is believed to have attacked it.

Several years ago at the zoo, a hyena chewed its side until several ribs were exposed. It was shot.

CHILD CONFESSED ARSON.

Accused Her Mother Also and Both Are Arrested.

Fire Marshal Thomas F. Brophy of Brooklyn caused the arrest last night of Mrs. Mary Zavaski and her eleven-year-old daughter, Eva, for setting fire to their home at 249 South First Street on the morning of Sept. 21.

According to Mr. Brophy the little girl said she helped her mother to place piles of paper and rags saturated with kerosene in their apartments. Mrs. Zavaski owns the building, which is a two-story and basement dwelling. Lighted candles were placed near the oil-soaked paper, the girl said, and then she and her mother left the house. This was at 7 o'clock in the morning. They lived on the second floor. Tenants in the lower part of the house smelled smoke and traced the fire. The blaze was put out by firemen after it caused a loss of $50.

WOMEN ASK STRAUS TO KEEP MILK DEPOTS

East Side Suffragettes Want Him to Reconsider His Intention to Abolish Them.

SPEAKERS PRAISE HIS WORK

Great Good Done to Children of the Tenements Told at an Open-Air Meeting.

In response to requests from many mothers of the east side the Woman's Suffrage Party last night joined those who are urging Nathan Straus to reconsider his determination to discontinue his depots for the distribution of pasteurized milk through the poorer parts of the city. An open-air meeting of protest, called at Thirty-fifth Street and First Avenue, was attended by many persons, who listened with interest to the four women who spoke.

Mrs. Quesada suggested that a petition be circulated among the mothers for their signatures as a testimony to Mr. Straus that his philanthropy has been appreciated. Some of these talked it over in the crowd last night. They had bought the milk, they said, some of it in penny bottles, for the babies, and they wondered how things would be after Oct. 1, when the milk depots will be closed unless Mr. Straus changes his mind.

Mrs. Quesada read statistics from the Board of Health on the decrease of infant mortality from the time that Mr. Straus inaugurated his movement for the betterment of milk conditions. In 1891, she said, when the population of children under five was 188,703, the number of deaths was 18,224. In 1907, when the infant population was 291,208, the number of deaths was only 15,645, a reduction in the annual death rate per thousand from 96.5 to 53.1.

"The women of the east side can testify that before Mr. Straus began his work the children here used to die like sheep," said Miss Mary Donnelly at the opening of her talk. "We are here to join our voices to those of the Colony Club members in an informal petition that the depots be not discontinued at this critical time."

Mrs. Dornelly said later that the suffrage party hoped that this sign of appreciation, coming from the very district where the milk had been distributed, might lead Mr. Straus to reconsider it.

Mrs. Mary Flowerton, leader of the suffrage party in the Fourteenth Assembly District, the first of the speakers last night, took it for granted that there would be no change in the announced plans of Mr. Straus, and expressed herself as strongly in favor of the work being assumed by the city.

"What we want is a healthy Board of Health," she said. "See that none of its members are interested in the milk trust, and see that they serve us well. Oh, if we women had the ballot!" she cried, and though she talked for ten minutes more, she didn't recur to the milk depots.

It is planned that sentiments expressed last night be reduced to the form of resolutions and sent to Mr. Straus as coming from the Woman Suffrage Party.

OPPOSE STANDARD FOR COAL.

Adoption of Thermal Unit by City Will Increase Cost, Dealers Say.

G. H. Cushing, speaking with authority as the managing editor of The Black Diamond, the recognized organ of the coal industry, has written to Mayor Gaynor protesting against the adoption of the standard specifications for the purchase of coal by the city under the British thermal unit plan. This matter was taken up by the Mayor and Controller Prendergast soon after they came into office, and a committee was appointed to investigate the subject, with Deputy Controller Fisher as Chairman.

Mr. Cushing declares that the thermal unit principle is excellent "under certain conditions," but that while it is all right for the Government and for such cities as Chicago, it would not work satisfactorily in New York.

"We have been informed by some of the authors of these specifications," says Mr. Cushing in part, "that they were drawn to save the city money, and with no thought for the coal contractor. It is quite evident to any business man—therefore it will be quite evident to you—that if a condition is imposed upon an agent which cannot be transferred to the principal, the agent must protect himself by charging a price sufficiently high to cover the possible penalties. That, of itself, defeats the purpose of the Committee on Specifications.

"It is a commercial law which you will at once recognize, that the greater the risk the greater must be the margin of profit to cover that risk. If the coal contractor is compelled to run risks—first, on selling coal according to analysis when the producing company will not support such a sale; second, on being penalized two or three times for a single offense; third, on having the wagon weights corrected for loss in transit, and, fourth, on having his coal rejected because the city does not know how to burn it—he must, as a factor of safety, increase the price to your administration.

"Thus, rather than saving the City of New York any money, as your committee contends, these specifications work automatically in the opposite direction."

Mr. Cushing suggests that it may seem unusual that coal contractors should object to anything which would automatically advance the price of coal, but explains that their attitude is one of easily understood self-protection. Owing to persistent public criticism whenever necessity forces an advance in the price of coal, the producers and retailers are becoming somewhat sensitive on that subject. Unless there is no way of avoiding it, the coal men do not want to see prices advanced, and they especially shrink from any advance due to unnecessary conditions.

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

Rosaries Must Pay Duty According to Component of Chief Value.

It was determined yesterday by the Board of United States General Appraisers that rosaries composed of beads are not dutiable at the high rate of 60 per cent. under the Dingley and Payne tariff acts, but are entitled to lower duty as claimed by a large number of New York importers of the articles. Collector Loeb classified the rosaries under the provisions in the two tariffs covering "articles composed wholly or in chief value of beads," which calls for a custom tax of 60 per cent. of the value of the goods.

The importers in the test case included the American Bead Company, the C. Wildermann Company, O. G. Hempstead & Son, and others. Their contention was that the duty should be at the rates accruing on the beads according to the component of chief value in the articles. Some of the rosaries were shown to be composed in chief value of wood, rock crystal, mother-of-pearl, garnet, and coral. General Appraiser Sharretts, after considering the evidence, upholds the claim of the importers that the rosaries should be allowed to enter at the rates of duty applicable to the components of chief value. Under this interpretation of the tariff, the rosaries will not be assessed at more than 35 per cent. and in some instances at still lower rates. Collector Loeb's official returns are reversed.

The Board, in a decision by Judge Waite, handed down decisions placing constructions on the provisions in the tariff act of 1909 relating to bulbs of various kinds. The Leonard Seed Company, Vaughan's Seed Store, and G. W. Sheldon & Co. appeared as protestants in cases affecting the classification of hyacinth bulbs. The Custom authorities at several ports assessed the bulbs under paragraph 263 of the tariff act of 1909, which provides for "hyacinth clumps." This classification called for a duty of $2.50 per thousand bulbs, whereas the importers' allegation was that the merchandise should be admitted at only 50 cents a thousand under the last clause of the same paragraph as "all other bulbs cultivated for their flowers or foliage."

Judge Waite reaches the conclusion that the duty imposed by the Government officials is correct. The same General Appraiser overrules a claim filed by William K. Harris, who objected to the imposition of duty on tulip and narcissus bulbs at the rate of $1 per thousand. The importer set up the contention that the bulbs are free of duty under the provision in the new tariff for "bulbs, not edible and not otherwise provided for in this section."

Stetson Hats

Aren't All For Rich Men Only

Some men seem to have an idea they can't afford to wear Stetson hats—think Stetsons too high priced—only for rich men.

Probably because they've heard so much about the high quality of these hats.

But, after all, a Stetson hat isn't beyond the average man's income.

I can show you some dandies—both soft and stiff—at only $3.50 and $4.

Surely no one expects to get a good hat for much less.

Hats that cost less may, while new, apparently look about as good as a Stetson.

But they won't after a few months' wear.

If you want the best hat that money can buy—even a multi-millionaire's money—I have Stetsons all the way up to $12.

And I promise you that a Stetson—as men who have worn Stetsons know—is always worth all it costs.

If you think otherwise after getting one at either of my stores, you can always get your money back or a new hat.

STALLINGS STATES HIS CASE TO FARRELL

Yankees' Owner Goes to Cleveland to Investigate Alleged Disloyalty of Chase.

The alleged disloyalty of Hal Chase and the probable dismissal of George Stallings as manager of the New York baseball team of the American League still hangs fire, and there will be no settlement until President Frank J. Farrell has made a thorough investigation of the matter. Mr. Farrell left last night to join the team in Cleveland after he had had two long conferences yesterday with Manager George Stallings. His object in joining the team is to find out if there is any foundation in fact of Stallings's charges that Hal Chase, the Captain and first baseman, "laid down" on the team.

Manager Stallings is still in this city and will not rejoin the team at once. Chase is still player-Captain, but nothing more. Secretary Tom Davis is now at the managerial reins and will be in charge until the affair is settled. When Stallings arrived in the city yesterday morning he had a two-hour conference with President Farrell at the club's offices on Fifth Avenue. There was another long conference later in the day, and at the conclusion neither Mr. Stallings nor Mr. Farrell would have anything to say. Later Mr. Farrell gave out a statement in which he explained the situation.

He has evidently decided to take one of two courses of action. If the charges that Stallings makes against Chase are true, he will put the matter in the hands of the National Commission and let the star first basemen get the punishment he may be deserving of. If Mr. Farrell finds that what Stallings charges is not true, he will deal with Stallings as he sees fit. This will probably mean the deposing of the present manager and the advancement of Chase to the berth of manager. Mr. Farrell's statement is as follows:

"In response to a telegram from me calling him to New York, George T. Stallings appeared in my offices this morning to give his version of the reported trouble in the New York American League Club, of which he is manager. To my surprise, Mr. Stallings made grave accusations against Hal Chase, first baseman of the team and its Captain. Mr. Stallings charges that Chase has not been giving his best services to the club, and that he has been guilty, in baseball parlance, of 'laying down.'

"No ball player can afford to have his reputation and the reputation of his club smirched by such charges, and I have decided to go at once to Cleveland, where the team now is playing, to make a thorough investigation of Mr Stallings's charges, and if I find they are true I shall lay the entire matter before the National Commission and ask that Chase be punished. I owe such investigation to the public and the players.

"If Chase is guilty of Stallings's charges, there is no place on the New York American League team for him, or any other team, in my judgment. If he is not guilty, he should be promptly cleared of the charges, that he may stand vindicated before the public. Mr. Stallings denies that he gave out the statements printed in the last few days attributed to him or to the players on the club, in reference to Chase deserting the club in mid-season in Detroit. He also denies that there was a row and mutiny in the 'bus returning from the ball park in Chicago last Monday, as Chase never was in the 'bus, but returned to the hotel in an automobile with three other players. Also that Chase never played with a semi-professional team during the time he was sick.

"If Mr. Stallings fails to prove his charges against Chase, it is up to me to deal with Stallings as I see fit, as Chase is too great a ball player to have his reputation blackened by such charges.

"There have been recently many misleading reports about my club and a change in its manager. I desire to say now that George T. Stallings is still manager of the team, that while he is here in New York the club is in charge of my Secretary, Mr. Thomas Davis, and that I have not appointed Hal Chase to manage the team to succeed Stallings."

VANDERBILT RACE ENTRIES.

Six More Cars Named Yesterday—Fast Time in Practice Spins.

Six more entries for the Vanderbilt Cup race were announced yesterday by the Motor Cups Holding Company, making a total of thirty-six entries already in. The cars named yesterday are a Stoddard-Dayton and a Knox in the big race, a Mercer in the Wheatly Hills Sweepstakes, and three Abbott-Detroits in the Massapequa Sweepstakes.

The entry of the Stoddard-Dayton was made by the United States Motor Company, and Tobin de Hymel, a full-blooded Aztec Indian, will be at the wheel. C. H. Torry of New York has entered a six-cylinder, sixty-horse-power Knox, which will be driven by Fred Belcher of Springfield, Mass. The Mercer car was entered by the Mercer Automobile Company, but the driver has not yet been named. The three Abbott-Detroits entered by the Abbott Motor Company, will be driven by Mortimer Roberts, Lee Oldfield, and Victor Padula.

Faster time was made yesterday in the Vanderbilt Cup race practice than in either of the two previous workouts. Jack Fleming, piloting a Pope-Hartford car, covered the three fastest laps on the 12.64 mile course in 11:00, 11:07, and 11:12. Bert Dingley, in the other car of same make, ripped off a round in 11:26. Dingley's other trials were in 11:37 and over. Leland Mitchell at the wheel of his Simplex reeled a round in 11:30, 12:26, and a couple of slower trials, stopping at one time to adjust his magneto. Joe Dawson, appearing on the course for the first time in a Marmon, was clocked in 11:39, 12:00 flat, and 13:05. Basle in the Marlon, entered in the Wheatly Hills class, did circles in 14:27 and 16:48, making stops. Ralph Beardsley, who is to drive a Simplex, loafed around in a light car, as did Jones in the Amplex.

Newark Rallies and Wins from Jersey City in Ninth Inning.

In a ninth-inning rally, Newark trimmed Jersey City in Newark yesterday by the score of 9 to 8. The game was featured by heavy batting and a see-saw battle, much the same as marked the Indian's victory over Providence the day before in the first half of a double-header.

The locals found Manser, usually a hoodoo for them, to their liking, and they batted him out of the box, getting a five-run lead before the fifth inning. The visitors got into the fight in earnest in the fifth, drove Spade from the mound, and piled up four runs. In the sixth they pulled up even with the Braves, but in the same session Cy Ferry, who had relieved Manser, forced in a run. Jersey City got a run ahead in the seventh, and the locals had to win out in the ninth. The score:

Policemen and Firemen in Final Game

The baseball fans of the Police and Fire Departments are much excersed over the result of the final game for the championship, which will be played to-morrow at American League Park. Each team has a victory to its credit, and both will be prepared to put forth their best efforts to secure The Chief Trophy Cup, emblematic of the championship of the departments. Leland D. Potter will captain the Fire Department team, and John J. Taylor will head the policemen.

Pitcher Maddox Sold to Kansas City.

PITTSBURG, Sept. 22.—The Pittsburg Baseball Club to-day announced the sale of Pitcher Nicholas Maddox to the Kansas City Club of the American Association.

Morristown Dog Show Opens.

The Whippany River Dog Show opens to-day on the club grounds at Morristown, N. J. Forty-nine breeds of dogs will be benched in the open air, with 1,078 entries and 576 dogs. This is a record number for an outdoor show. Among the largest classes are pointers, cocker spaniels, beagles, Airedale terriers, Irish terriers and Pomeranians, the total number of entries for these six classes, aggregating over 300. This remarkable showing is due to the efficient work of the Bench Committee, of which John G. Bates is Chairman. Owing to the number of entries judging will start early each day. Many prominent New York society leaders have entered their pets, while the Summer colony of Morristown and the surrounding country will be well represented. Extra cars will be put on the trains leaving New York to-day and to-morrow at 9 A. M., so that exhibitors may take their dogs on the leash. Luncheon will be served in the clubhouse on the grounds each day.

Cyclists on a 100-Mile Run.

All indications point to an unusual field of starters in the eleventh annual 100-mile record run of the New York State Division of the Century Road Club of America on Sunday. The start will be made from Floral Park, L. I., and the course will be 25 miles to Amityville and return, to be covered twice. The scratch men will be started at 11 A. M., and they will try to break the record of 5 hours and 19 minutes, held by Joseph Kapsky. The handicap limit will be 5 hours, and the limit men will be sent away at 9 o'clock.

Among the prizes offered are ten wheels, for first place and time prizes, and a silver loving cup in the event of the record being broken. All riders who finish will receive a sterling silver medal.

Vanderbilt's Manfred Wins.

PARIS, Sept. 22.—The Prix Biennial de Maisons-Lafitte, run at Maisons-Lafitte to-day, was won by W. K. Vanderbilt's Manfred.

The Cubs and the Giants looked very much alike at the Polo Grounds yesterday. That is, outside of their relative positions in the percentage column, which, as every child in the kindergarten knows, shows that, as teams, they are very different. Why, even at the Polo Grounds you can find a fan here and there who will openly admit that the Cubs have it on McGraw's men seventeen ways. Chicago didn't have to play dazzling, spectacular ball to get an even break, any way.

But they looked alike yesterday. Each won a game and by the same score, 5 to 1. Pfiester was hit just as hard as Drucke in the first session, but the Giants were not nearly as nimble as the Cubs on the pillows. When anybody from the Windy City got on the bases there was a universal effort to get him through. Many of the Giants got on, but most of them were stranded.

Frank Chance, the wily Cub leader, didn't perform and Jimmy Archer was at first base and acted very much at home. The Peerless Cub himself confined his efforts to pegging swift heaves back and forth with McGraw between the games and Mac showed that he, too, was still there with some speed. A crowd of 15,000 lingered at the battles and found amusement in picking out a few stray straw hats that dared to enter. Strong efforts to eliminate them were made. To wear a straw hat at a ball game these days is about as safe as juggling a bomb.

Johnny Evers, who commands more attention than any ball tosser who comes to the Polo Grounds, was on the job. Some New Yorkers insist that Evers is the human crab. In the first inning he walked and stole second. Hofman's single drove him in. In the third, with one down, he walked again, went to third on Sheckard's double, and made a safe slide home when Hofman grounded to Bridwell. Brid soaked the ball to Meyers to get Evers, but not soon enough.

Pfiester got a bit wobbly in the third, but he steadied in time to prevent the Giants from committing serious damage. Meyers singled, with one out. Drucke walked and Devore forced him at second. Doyle smashed one to right, which scored the Indian. Snodgrass singled to left, but Sheckard made a fine throw to the plate after the bingle, and Kling nailed Devore. Giants got on the bases in nearly every inning after that, but they couldn't squeeze through the Cub defense.

In the fourth Steinfeldt walked and was caught stealing, Meyers arm being in better shape yesterday than it has for months. Schulte walked, too. He stole and scored on Tinker's two-base slap to left. Drucke was as wild as a hawk in the ninth, and the Cubs collected two more. Steinfeldt singled to left, and Schulte waited for a pass. Tinker popped to the Redskin, and Kling walked, filling the bases. Pfiester fanned. Evers walked again, and Steinfeldt was forced home. Schulte scored on Sheckard's single to right. Hofman forced out Sheckard at second.

Fortune smiled in just the opposite direction in the next game. Big Ed Reulbach was the man who was wild and Wiltse was effective and steady. The only run that the Cubs got was a terrific home run crack into the left field bleachers by Steinfeldt in the second inning.

New York raised havoc with Reulbach in the second inning. Murray singled and went to third when Tinker booted Bridwell's grounder. Devlin walked, and when Reulbach uncurled a wild pitch, Murray scored. Merkle walked, and another wild pitch let Bridwell tally. A single by Meyers allowed Devlin and Merkle to score. Then Reulbach tightened.

The fifth run came in the fifth, when, with one out, Devore singled, stole second, and went to the third when Tinker let King's throw go by him. He scored on a wild pitch.

Cardinals' New Pitcher Hit Hard.

Brooklyn took the first game of the final series with St. Louis yesterday in Washington Park, 6 to 3, by hammering Hearn, Bresnahan's new find, hard all the way. Scanlon started the locals, but after being hit for a triple and a single and passing three men in the fourth inning he was taken out. Barger succeeded him, and with the bases full forced in the tying run with another pass. Thereafter the visitors could not get another tally nor a hit. Score:

Sweeney's poor throw to the plate in the eleventh inning allowed Cincinnati to win the first game. SPEEDY MOTOR BOATS RACE ON THE HUDSON

First Day of Series Events for Five Championship Trophies.

Ideal weather helped to make the second day's racing of the National motor Boat Carnival, held on the Hudson off 158th Street, the most successful day's racing ever held by the Motor Boat Club of America. It consisted of the series racing for the five championship trophies, as the first day of the Carnival was devoted to long distance events.

The trophies are being raced for on a point system, a point to go to a boat's credit for every boat it defeats, also a point for finishing the race. The point winners yesterday were: Tarter, owned by R. E. Slavin of New York, who won the race for the National Championship for speed boats of over 40 foot measurement; Restless, T. J. Chesbrough's speedster, won the first leg on the International Trophy for 12 metre boats. The first race for the Inter-State Championship was won by A. E. Smith's Edith II. Vim, owned by George F. Baker, Jr., finished first, but dropped to third place on corrected time. Peter Pan III. was second both on actual and corrected time.

Two cruisers started in the Motor Yacht Championship race. F. C. Haven's Avis beat M. F. Denis's Caroline, a Havana racer, by over an hour and a quarter actual time, but by only a half hour corrected time.

The race for the Cabin Launch Trophy went to C. R. Butler's Spindrift, as Eronel, the Bermuda Race winner broke her crankshaft and retired, leaving Spindrift to finish alone.

The smaller cruisers raced for a special trophy, and J. C. Fowler's Kathmar won, beating Graceida by only 6m. 37 sec.

The First leg on the Open Boat Trophy was won by M. H. Nile's Talequah, which beat Bunk III. by about 12 minutes corrected time. H. W. Browne's Petite was the first boat to finish in this class and she beat Bunk III. by over a half hour, but on corrected time she fell to third place with Bunk III. second.

In the Class B races Tarter and X. P. D. N. C. got over the line together at the start, but Rapier was about forty-five seconds late. Soon after she got over she caught fire, but the blaze was quickly extinguished. The Rapier, however, retired, as it was found she was too badly damaged to continue until repairs had been made.

The twelve-metre class boats were to start at 2:10, but at that time only Restless was at the line. She started alone and had nearly finished her first round when Nameless, the thirty-two-cylinder marvel crossed, fourteen minutes late. She set a terrific pace in an effort to make up time, and was only thirteen seconds behind Restless at the finish. The Restless, however, had to stop on her fifth round to repair a leaky gasoline pipe. A seam on the Restless opened up from the strain, and for a while it looked as if she would have to quit, as the water was coming in so fast, but all hands were kept bailing, and she managed to finish.

Avis got over in the cruiser class at 2:20, but Caroline's skipper had evidently misunderstood the starting time and came up to the committee boat several minutes after Avis had crossed, and inquired as to the starting time. He was hurried after Avis, but was badly beaten on both actual and corrected time.

Nine boats started in the Inter-State class, but only five finished. The Lance overheated her engine, due to a defective pump, and the Sand-Burr struck a log and was disabled. Vita and Traver broke down on the lower half of the course and were towed in.

After the race was about half finished one of the racers reported the lower mark boat adrift. A launch was sent out from the committee boat Najme and the mark towed back to its original position, but not until a good many boats had gone around it when it was about a mile out of its position.

Two revenue cutters kept the course clear. Among the yachts anchored near the finish were the Viking, George F. Baker, Jr.; the Vergana, Commodore H. H. Melville of the Motor Boat Club of America; the Paula, J. S. Blackston; the Ethel May II., A. E. Smith; the Harda, M. C. Fleischman of Cincinnati, and the Analuna, August Heckshser. The summaries:

HORSE SHOW AT MORRISTOWN

Field Club's Exhibition Expected to Surpass All Shows at New Jersey Town.

The Field Club of Morristown, N. J., will hold its thirteenth annual horse show Oct. 6, 7, and 8. The prize list is a large and varied one, containing fifty-six classes, of which forty-seven are open to all, and the balance are restricted to owners of horses residing in Morris and Somerset Counties, N. J., dealers being barred. There are other competitions for roadsters, horses in harness, tandems, four-in-hands, saddle horses, ponies, jumpers, and draught horses. In some of the classes the conditions require that women must either drive or ride. Purses of substantial size will be given to the first and second in nearly all the classes, and in others cups will be awarded. Entries close to-morrow.

The judges will be Louis Haight, Richard Newton, and Hamilton H. Salmon. The Horse Show Committee is composed of John R. Brinley, Chairman; George J. Little, Treasurer; Dr. Frederick H. Humphreys, Secretary; Walter P. Bliss, Charles D. M. Cole, A. A. Fowler, Robert A. Granniss, Jr., Joseph W. Harriman, A. Fillmore Hyde, Otto H. Kahn, Dr. D. H. McAlpin, Joseph W. Ogden, George R. D. Schieffelin, Kenneth B. Schley, Henry W. Shoemaker, and Richard H. Williams. The Assistant Secretary is W. S. Blitz.

Private boxes for the show will be sold at auction at the Field Club, Morristown, on Monday evening, Sept. 28, at 8:30 o'clock.

Bouts at Lehigh A. C. To-night.

The Lehigh Athletic Club has arranged another interesting programme for the weekly boxing entertainment at the club's arena, 1,347 and 1,349 Boston Road, to-night. The principal attraction will be a ten-round bout between Harry Scruggs and Willie Howard, which should develop into one of the best fights seen at the Bronx club this season. Then there will be bouts between Jimmy Ambrose and Billy Jones, Eddie Smith and Joe Allen, and three other engagements.

FENCING AT WEST POINT.

Finely Appointed Hall for the Cadets to Practice Swordsmanship.

In the new gymnasium of the United States Military Academy at West Point one can see what is undoubtedly one of the finest fencing halls in the world. Nestled in a nook of the far-famed institution is Uncle Sam's first attempt at outrivaling Caesar in the grandeur of his fencing hall.

Imagine a spacious hall 100 feet long and 50 feet wide, lighted by four imposing windows on the north side, rising to a height of 30 feet, the light from these windows being reflected to every corner of the hall, and enhanced by the highly polished inlaid floor, which, in turn, is correctly spaced and artistically covered with an olive hue linoleum, each strip bordered with a thin ribbon of neatly turned maple to protect the edges.

Thirteen of these strips traverse the hall, thus allowing for two pairs on each strip. It is possible for fifty-two persons to fence at the same time on perfectly regulated strips, and under ideal conditions, which is considered unparalleled by any salle d'armes in the world.

Encircling the entire hall, securely attached to the wall, are several tiers of steel racks for the retaining of the fencing outfits, such as foils, sabres, masks, &c.

The end walls are devoted to a reserve display of the pictures of the army fencers, many time winners of the intercollegiate championship and several junior and National championships. Bedecking these local honors are attractively grouped arms and flags of National glory.

Eight electric lamps, well shaded, cover each strip, giving an added attractiveness and a soft, steady light for late afternoon and evening fencing.

All in all it is a beautiful, serviceable, well equipped hall, for the practice of swordmanship on a scale with the magnificent preparations of the new academy.

YALE COACHES ARRIVING.

Special to The New York Times.

LAKEVILLE, Conn., Sept. 22.—Capt. Fred Daly of the Yale eleven was relieved to-day to find three coaches on hand for the line men, who have had to plug along till yesterday without coaching. Bloomer's arrival yesterday was followed by the advent to-day of Carl Flanders, the veteran guard, and Clint Roraback, centre four years ago. The linemen are nearly all inexperienced, and the three veterans took them in hand for a vigorous session.

Harry Vaughan arrived in time for the afternoon practice. Although he is eligible to play he joined the coaching squad. He said that it was by no means settled that he would not play, and that he was sure that his health would allow him to get into the game if he wished. For the present he will assist in coaching the end rushes. The squad has decided to have no more Monday because so many of the candidates have scholarship examinations at Yale that day. It had been planned to remain here till Tuesday afternoon.

Matheson, who played half back for the freshmen last year, was given a trial at left half back on the regulars this afternoon. He is remarkably fast and seems ideally adapted to the new game. Otherwise the eleven played exactly as yesterday, Walter Camp, Jr., dropping back to the substitutes to make room for Matheson. The scrimmaging lasted twenty minutes, being lengthened daily since it was started Monday. New methods of working the forward pass were tried, but they were unsuccessful and there was no scoring.

Cornell Has a Star Kicker.

ITHACA, N. Y., Sept. 22.—One of the features of football practice at Cornell to-day was the drop kicking of Pitcher, one of the candidates for end. He surprised the coaches by kicking the ball over, both from the field and drop, with surprising accuracy and from every angle. The coaches believe that kicking will be an important feature of the game this year, and were gratified to find so proficient a man in the ranks. In addition to the work on the field both morning and afternoon, the coaches gave the squad a long blackboard talk and then handed out written examinations covering all phases of the new rules and also the various duties of the candidates. Written quizzes will be held throughout the year.

Blackburn Wins Roller Race.

The one-mile scratch roller skating race held last night in the Metropolitan Roller Skating Rink at Fifty-third Street and Broadway, was won by J. Blackburn of New York, with H. Brown of Bridgeport, Conn., second, W. Burk of Bridgeport, Conn., third, and A. Kirkbride of Newark, N. J., fourth. Time—2:41.

Basket Ball at Coney Island.

Stauch's dancing pavilion at Coney Island will be the scene of a number of basket ball tournaments this season, as arrangements are being made to offer handsome prizes and club trophies for the winning teams in the 125, 135, 145, and 155 pound classes. Managers of basket ball teams may obtain information from Charles T. Earl, 1,135 Ditmas Avenue, Brooklyn.

THE HARVESTER TROTS MILE IN 2:01

Ed Geers Sends Crack Stallion at Fast Clip—Will Try for Track Record.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Sept. 22.—The Harvester trotted a brilliant mile in 2:01 flat in the Grand Circuit racing to-day, and thereby took a quarter of a second off the time he made last week at Syracuse. Driver Geers, a moment after he had dismounted and acknowledged the cheers of the crowd, declared his intention to make an attempt next Thursday to lower the record if the track could be made solid close to the rail.

Because of the loose footing to-day the Harvester had to step a long mile. He was a trifle weary at the finish, and did not flash through the last quarter as he has done at other points on the Grand Circuit.

Shortly before 5 o'clock the champion was sent away rushing and went the first quarter in 29½ seconds. The second quarter was stepped in 30 seconds. In the third there was but a slight slackening, and the time for it was 30¼ seconds. A final quarter in 31¼ made the mile a winning one, as The Harvester had started to beat 2:01¼.

Bervaldo, Major Brino, and Manuella won the regular events on the card. Bervaldo was favorite over all the other 2:12 trotters, but dropped the first heat to George Todd. May Day, the first choice in the 2:05 pace, was distanced by Major Brino in the second heat, when she made a standstill break going away. Maconda was expected to win the special pace, but was second three times to Manuella. The summaries:

Hurley Defeats Willie Beecher.

In the main bout at the Longacre Athletic Association last night, between Willie Beecher and Battling Hurley, Hurley had an advantage in eight out of the ten rounds. Although the boxers were supposed to weigh in at 6 o'clock, they did not do so, and after a long wrangle their managers decided to let them go on at catch weights. Hurley forced the fighting from the start, and punched Beecher with stiff body blows. Beecher came back with rights to Hurley's jaw. In the third round Beecher was floored by a hard blow to the jaw, but got up quickly and rushed Hurley, who had him going, but the bell saved him. In the fourth Beecher went down again, but got up quickly. Beecher had the best of the fifth, but after that round he tired and was compelled to hang on to save himself. The eighth, ninth, and tenth were very fast, as Hurley forced the fighting in an effort to put Beecher out, but Willie either clinched or stepped away every time Hurley rushed. In the tenth Hurley made a desperate effort to land a knockout, but Beecher kept away from him most of the round.

"Knockout" Brown to Meet Smith.

At the National Sporting Club to-night the star bout will be between Knockout Brown and Young Sammy Smith. The two lightweights are evenly matched and should put up a rattling good mill. The semi-final will be a six-round engagement between Kid Alberts and Battling Tim Davis. There will be three preliminaries. An attractive bill is being arranged for Sept. 30, when Joe Jeannette and Morris Harris, the two colored heavyweights, will meet again. These two boxers appeared in a ten-round bout before this same club some months ago, and there was action every minute, Jeannette having only a slight advantage at the end.

New Basket Ball Rules.

The official basket ball guide for the season of 1910-1911, more complete than ever before, has just been published in Spalding's library series. It contains about 200 pages of matter of interest to every player and student of the game. The part of most interest to players is that containing the revised rules for the coming season, which went into effect Sept. 1. These rules were arranged by the Amateur Athletic Union Basket Ball Committee, and contain changes which every player must familiarize himself with, as they will be in vogue for a year.

ON THE TENNIS COURTS.

Mrs. Frederick Schmitz, the National indoor champion, and Miss Marie Wagner, the former holder of the title and recent three-times winner of the New Jersey State title, reached the final and cup round of the women's lawn tennis tournament on the courts of the Montclair Athletic Club, at Montclair, N. J., yesterday. Mrs. Schmitz in her semi-final defeated Miss Ina A. Kissell, 6—3, 6—0. Two matches were the portion for Miss Wagner. The first was the most difficult of achievement, as she faced her rival of other tournaments, Miss Erna A. Marcus, finally scoring against her at 6—3, 7—5, in a match replete with the fastest and most brilliant playing. Consequently, when she faced Miss Bessie J. Wright in the semi-final, the New Jersey winner had her game moving along with a pace and certainty that defied all of the enterprising variety that Miss Wright could muster. The contest was filled with clashing volleys before Miss Wagner won by the score of 6—2, 6—1. The summary:

Women's Championship Singles.—Fourth Round—Miss Marie Wagner defeated Miss Erna A. Marcus, 6—3, 7—5.

Semi-final Round—Miss Marie Wagner defeated Miss Bessie J. Wright, 6—1, 6—2; Mrs. Frederick Schmitz defeated Miss Ina A. Kissell, 6—3, 6—4.

Women's Doubles.—Semi-final Round—Mrs. William H. Pouch and Miss Edith Handy defeated Miss Clara Kuttroff and Miss Florence Sheldon, 4—6, 6—2, 6—2.

Mixed Doubles.—Second Round—Mrs. Frederick Schmitz and Otto H. Hinck defeated Mr. and Mrs. Eads Johnson, 6—2, 6—2; Miss Marion Parker and Thomas Lindley defeated Miss Marina Marling and Gustave Studer, 6—0, 12—10; Miss Florence Van Vleck and Joseph Z. Batten defeated Miss Hester Renwick and Russell Ayres, 3—6, 14—12, 11—9; Mrs. Robert B. Neff and Joseph Merrill defeated Miss Elsie Jewett and Thomas Conway, 7—5, 6—3; Miss Edith Johnson and J. Saunders defeated Miss Florence Sheldon and Frederick Kelley, 6—4, 6—3.

Third Round—Miss Florence Van Vleck and Joseph Z. Batten defeated Miss Marion Parker and Thomas Lindley, 6—1, 6—3.

The British Isles team is to journey to Australia and fulfill its challenge for the Davis International Cup, according to a letter just received from an American lawn tennis player in England. The letter is dated at the Cavendish Hotel, Eastbourne, Sept. 13. According to this letter, A. H. Lowe and T. M. Mavrogordato are to make the trip to the Antipodes.

The Crescent Athletic Club tournament is gradually nearing the end. In the handicap doubles only three games are necessary to wind up the schedule, and the same number of matches will bring the Class C handicap singles to a close. In this latter class, J. G. Stevenson (scratch) has worked his way into the final round in the lower section. His opponent in the semi-final was T. Jenkins, Jr., minus 15, but Stephenson won easily with a score of 6—1, 6—1. E. L. McLean and A. Semple have reached the final round in the handicap doubles, lower section. There is a delay in the top section, but it is expected that it will be straightened out this week. The summary:

Class C Handicap, Singles—First Round—H. B. Smithers, minus 15, defeated A. R. Neill, plus half of 15, 6—4, 1—6, 7—5; C. P. Robinson, scratch, defeated J. T. Matchett, plus half of 15, 7—5, 7—5; A. C. Wasserman plus half of 15, defeated W. Schaff, plus half of 15, by default.

Semi-final Round—J. G. Stephenson, scratch, defeated T. Jenkins, Jr., minus 15, 6—1, 6—1.

Johnny Kling, catcher of the Chicago National League baseball team, refereed the game. In to-night's game at 8 o'clock J. Van and George Cole will cross cues.

In these "day outing" tests the route, as shown in the map accompanying each of these announcements, is laid out beforehand. The battery is given a maximum charge and the full route traveled. After returning to starting point the car is run to completely exhaust the battery, to show exactly how much more mileage the battery contained than was necessary to bring the car back to the starting point—the margin of certainty.

The cars now regularly equipped with the Edison Storage Battery are the Detroit Electric and the Bailey Electric—and these are used alternately in the "day outing" trips.

Neither Mr. Edison nor the Edison Storage Battery Company has any interest in either of these cars, other than to prove Mr. Edison's contention that with the right battery equipment the electric is the real family car, because of its absolute safety, because it can be run by any one after a few minutes' instruction, because it has longer life than a gasoline car and costs infinitely less to maintain.

But there is only one "right" battery equipment—

THE COURT OF APPEALS.

Two Court of Appeals Judges are to be elected this year, one as a successor to Judge IRVING G. VANN, whose term expires, the other to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Judge EDWARD T. BARTLETT. The feeling, entertained and expressed throughout the State, that Judge VANN should be renominated, and should be elected without opposition, will, we suppose, prevail with the conventions of both parties. The sound principle that Judges who have served acceptably should be continued upon the bench, to the end that the State may have the fullest benefit of their accumulated knowledge and experience, has come into such general acceptance that in many instances it has guided Republicans and Democrats alike. No argument worthy of consideration, none save that of mere partisanship, can be made against it. Judge VANN'S long experience, his learning, his reputation for entire impartiality and uprightness, his whole admirable record of judicial service, make it eminently desirable that the precedent of nomination by one party and acceptance and indorsement by the other should be followed in his case. We assume that his name will be placed upon both tickets.

That the bench of the highest court in the State should be non-partisan admits of no dispute. To that end political considerations should have weight only in so governing the choice of Judges that there may not be at any given time too great a preponderance upon the bench of those of one party faith or the other. Of the Court of Appeals Judges elected by the people four are Republicans and three are Democrats. The Supreme Court Justices designated by Gov. HUGHES for Court of Appeals service are both Republicans, making, in all, six Republicans to three Democrats.

It may with great propriety be urged, therefore, that the two conventions should unite in nominating a Democrat for the place left vacant by the death of Judge E. T. BARTLETT. It is altogether just and desirable that this should be done. We hope the Republican Convention will see the wisdom of this course; we wish we could feel more confident it will take it. But in order that the path of duty may be brought plainly into the view of the Convention we believe the nomination by Gov. HUGHES of a Democrat to the existing vacancy would be generally approved. After having for three years wisely exercised the appointing power, himself an eminent member of the bar and acquainted with the standing of its members, and having been found worthy of appointment to the bench of the Supreme Court of the United States, Gov. HUGHES would by common consent be considered the best qualified man in the State to choose a successor to Judge E. T. BARTLETT. The people of the State should consider themselves fortunate in having the benefit of his knowledge and wisdom in making this choice. The Republicans in convention assembled could not hope to choose so wisely, and the Democrats would be well pleased to place upon their ticket the name of a member of their own party with this high indorsement. Is there any reason why Gov. HUGHES should not act at once in the matter of this appointment?

CONFLICTING RATE DECISIONS.

CHARLES OTIS, Master in Chancery in the railway rate cases arising under the laws of Minnesota, finds that the rates imposed by the State Commission are confiscatory in fact, and also are unconstitutional in that they necessitate discrimination in inter-State commerce. Mr. OTIS is described in terms which inspire respect for his findings and his opinions. It detracts from neither to say that the greater interest and importance inheres in his findings of facts. The case is notable for the thoroughness with which the relation of rates to valuation was inquired into. Minnesota's own engineers made independent estimates of the value of the railways' property devoted to public service. These estimates were compared with those of the railways' engineers, with less disagreement than might have been expected. The Master's findings are that the railways are entitled to 7 per cent. upon a capital of $425,000,000 for Northern Pacific, and of $475,000,000 for Great Northern, and that the State's rates are equivalent to deprivation of property without due process of law.

The same values were examined by the Inter-State Commerce Commission in the Spokane rate case, with results which are more dissonant than the engineers' findings in Minnesota. In the words of the Commission, its deliberations as to the fairness of the rates charged by these two roads were "not to ascertain whether rates should be reduced, but whether they could be reduced" without confiscation. The Commission's findings that earnings had been excessive resulted naturally from its moderate estimate of the cost of the properties in question. The Commission said that it was impossible to ascertain the cost of the Northern Pacific, but it was approximated at $250,000,000. The cost of reproducing the Great Northern was put at $270,000,000. With such moderate valuations it followed that rates could be reduced without confiscation, and an order was entered accordingly, with satisfaction to nobody. Those supposably favored by the decision promptly protested, and the Commission suspended and revised its order. It is usually called the Spokane case because it concerned rates to Spokane. It might equally well be called the New York rate case, because it concerned rates from New York, and as prejudicially to its commerce as favorably to the commerce of other communities supposably alone concerned. It is in this fact that the interest of all these rate cases centres. The general belief is that the reduction of the rates by the Inter-State Commerce Commission was a rightful restoration to the public of an extortion of a surplus of $70,000,000 above dividends by Great Northern during twenty-seven years. Northern Pacific's excessive earnings above dividends were put at $55,000,000 for the period 1898-1907. And the commerce of the continent was disturbed that like extortion might be stopped hereafter.

There are so many ways of making valuations, and opinions are so variant in the making of valuations on any given plan, that such disagreements are to be expected. Even if any valuation were agreed upon by all concerned at any given time it would be open to dispute at any succeeding time. There can be no finality to the solution of the rate problem by way of valuation unless it were to be agreed that the valuation shall be revised at some agreed intervals. The market revises valuations daily, but nobody would think of revising rates daily, or monthly, or even annually. Stability of rates is as important as reasonableness, and instability is an inseparable characteristic of railway valuations, however or by whomever made. Whatever the ills of railway rates, the comparison of these two cases cannot increase confidence in the valuation method of reaching a just decision.

ANOTHER PAINFUL CONTROVERSY.

Mr. ROOSEVELT cannot consign Archbishop IRELAND to the Ananias Club and so have done with him. It was all very well to take that short and easy way with disagreeable visitors, with troublesome journalists, with the dead, even, as in the case of Mr. HARRIMAN. When as President or ex-President he has denounced certain common men as liars, he may have felt, probably did feel, that the country would take his word for it, and reject the other fellow's. But now he is in collision with a distinguished and widely respected prelate of the Roman Catholic Church. THEODORE ROOSEVELT and Archbishop JOHN IRELAND make flatly contradictory statements about the same transaction. Either THEODORE ROOSEVELT or Archbishop JOHN IRELAND has been guilty of misstatement. Which is it?

Mrs. BELLAMY STORER, in her letter published yesterday, tells of the matter out of which this painful contradiction sprang:

> In September, 1908, we were in the United States, and spent a day with the President at Oyster Bay before sailing for Europe. Mr. ROOSEVELT on that day requested Mr. STORER to go to Rome on behalf of the President, and ask the new Pope, PIUS X., to elevate to the Cardinalate Mr. ROOSEVELT'S personal friend, Archbishop IRELAND of St. Paul.

When this disclosure was first made, four years ago, Mr. ROOSEVELT, then President of the United States, without any equivocation or evasion, in the most positive terms, denied that he had made any such request of Ambassador STORER. In his letter of Dec. 2, 1906, to Secretary ROOT, Mr. ROOSEVELT said:

> As to Mr. STORER'S assertion that I authorized him to make such a statement as he says he was authorized to make to the Pope, it is untrue. I gave him no such authorization.

Mr. STORER'S original statement rested upon his authority alone. Mrs. STORER now brings to its support the name and authority of Archbishop IRELAND. From a letter written by the Archbishop to her, under date of Oct. 23, 1903, from St. Paul, she quotes:

> My Dear Mrs. STORER: I was in Washington last week and, of course, saw the President. * * * The President also told me that he had commissioned Mr. STORER to speak for him viva voce at the Vatican. He seemed rather proud of having done so. Give my love to BELLAMY, and believe me, very sincerely.

A month later, that is in November, 1903, she says Archbishop IRELAND wrote another letter from which she quotes this passage:

> The President said to me: "Mr. STORER has told you what I said to him about you, Archbishop?" "Well," I replied, "I do not remember." "About his going to Rome?" the President then asked. I said "No." "Well," he said, "I told him I would not write a letter to the Pope asking for honors for you; but I said that he could go to Rome and say—viva voce—to the Pope, how much I wish you to be Cardinal, and how grateful I personally would be for giving you that honor." I am most clear in my memory as to every word. I will write about American politics to BELLAMY.

Mrs. STORER states that the President's message was delivered to the Pope in December, 1903, when the Ambassador and herself were received in private audience. A news agency in Rome gave out a report that Mr. STORER had gone to Rome "on a diplomatic mission to the Vatican." President ROOSEVELT was disturbed by this publicity—naturally. Of his state of mind Archbishop IRELAND gives some account in a letter to Mr. STORER dated Feb. 2, 1904:

> My Dear Friend: Your two letters were read and burnt. * * * However, you need have no anxiety whatsoever about the whole affair which was the chief subject matter of those letters. * * * The President had no occasion to feel ruffled in the least, but you know his impulsiveness. When I saw him, he of his own accord told me of his writing to you and asked me how publicity was given to the matter. * * * I said the Scripps-McRae agency had merely made a guess, (as to Mr. STORER'S coming to Rome,) and that the few unfavorable comments that followed amounted really to nothing. He calmed down completely; remarked that he had every confidence in you, and hoped that the outcome of your mission would be what all desired.

Archbishop IRELAND'S letters are of the time. As material for the historian or as evidence in courts of law everybody knows that great weight is given to contemporary documents. Moreover, the Archbishop writes what Mr. and Mrs. STORER said. There is full agreement between Mr. STORER'S report of what President ROOSEVELT said to him, and Archbishop IRELAND'S report of the deliverance, as subsequently repeated to him by the President.

In these distressing circumstances Mr. ROOSEVELT deems it sufficient to repeat his denial and to say that "recollection" cannot be allowed to stand against the "record." In respect to evidence that is a sound rule, but does not Mr. ROOSEVELT see that it destroys his case? His denial now, like his denial in 1906, is at best but his recollection of what he did not say. The letters of Archbishop IRELAND are the living record, the contemporary record. They were written before any controversy had arisen, when there was not the slightest motive for putting Mr. ROOSEVELT in the wrong. Mr. and Mrs. STORER assert that it was in September, 1903, that they talked with Mr. ROOSEVELT at the White House, the occasion on which the President instructed Mr. STORER to deliver his message to the Pope. Archbishop IRELAND'S first letter was written one month later, in October, 1903. In that letter he declares that the President told him he had commissioned Mr. STORER "to speak for him viva voce at the Vatican." In November the Archbishop wrote another letter in which he repeated the President's remarks to him. The Archbishop's second letter is quite too explicit and detailed to be set down to a fault of memory, to an error of "recollection." These letters come as near to being a "record" of the transaction as can be supplied. There would, of course, be no official record of what was a glaring Executive indiscretion and impropriety. The Archbishop's account is as clear as the ex-President's denial is positive. Mr. ROOSEVELT in the statement he made yesterday does nothing to reconcile this extraordinary contradiction. He can vindicate his own word only by demonstrating that this distinguished prelate of the Catholic Church invented the story of the instruction to Ambassador STORER, that he is, in short, a prevaricator. That Mr. ROOSEVELT does not venture to attempt. If he permits the matter to stand as his statement of yesterday leaves it, he must let an impartial world judge between him and Archbishop IRELAND.

TAX-SUPPORTED HOSPITALS.

Not private hospitals subsidized with public moneys, nor public hospitals for the poor, but hospitals supported by all taxpayers for the free use of all, as the public schools are free to all, was the proposal of Mr. BAILEY B. BURRITT yesterday in St. Louis before the Twelfth Annual Conference of the American Hospital Association.

Disease and its prevention concern the people as a whole, Mr. BURRITT argues. Hospitals that deal with infectious and contagious diseases, epidemic and endemic, should be made democratic. They should be availed of by all the people, not chiefly by paupers and by the rich who pay for special accommodations during sickness.

According to the Census Report for 1904 on Benevolent Institutions, the ratio of public support to private support of general hospital work in the United States was approximately as 2 to 5. A few philanthropists and rich patients are paying for three-fifths of this public work. The hospitals are so identified with "charity" that prejudice has spread against them among the self-supporting classes. The hospitals are cut off from their broadest field of service.

Only through systematic service to the whole body of citizens by hospitals and health departments can the ravages of disease be checked. The individual is personally responsible to a degree. He cannot prevent the spread of epidemics. He cannot remove the causes of these scourges, nor guard himself sufficiently against them. But the many individuals who make up threatened communities have shifted their responsibility for the support of agencies of prophylaxis upon a few philanthropists. They should bear them in the form of taxes, and avail themselves freely of the accruing advantages.

The charitable hospitals, partly supported by public funds under private management, are often subject to vicious politics and practices of "graft." If completely democratized they would become more efficient, since every taxpayer would have a peculiar interest in their proper management and accountability.

Mr. BURRITT'S plea is not for the abolition of all private hospitals. The public school system has not abolished private schools for those who can afford their special advantages. Nor should it abolish them. But the public school system is not a "charity" system. The hospitals, which do for the bodily health of communities what the schools do for their mental health, should be relieved of the stigma of pauperism. They should be organized into a tax-supported public system.

A FATAL BLOW AT SOCIALISM.

Those who have been anticipating all the Beatitudes when the Marxites do everything for everybody at the expense of everybody else must have been pained at the proceedings of the Socialist Congress at Magdeburg as reported yesterday. Under Socialism all the ladies have been hoping to get all their rights, but ROSA LUXEMBURG received anything but woman's most inalienable right at the hands of her own comrades. Delegates were allowed ten minutes to say all they could think of, and for the men it sufficed to say all that they even thought they thought. But after delegate LUXEMBURG had talked ten minutes she found that she had only just begun, and so she kept right along for another ten minutes. Then we grieve to say that she was howled down, just as a man might have been.

What hope for Socialism can remain among women when Socialists treat women so? To refuse to listen to a lady would be cruelty within the divorce law, and would come easily within the definition of cruel and unusual punishments forbidden even by the present Constitution, which the Socialists would have so little difficulty in bettering when they are allowed to write it over. Women who are indifferent to the right to vote may ask boldly what woman would approve any system of government which allowed her to talk only twice as long as the men, and which did not allow her sex the last word in all arguments. He would be a base wretch who should be capable of trifling with so painful and important an incident as the alienating of all women from Socialism because of its inappreciation of the greatest of all women's rights.

SUFFERING, THE TOLL OF SCIENCE.

The struggle which Mr. VIHLJAMR STEFANNSON and Dr. RUDOLPH ANDERSON, in charge of the American Museum of Natural History's Arctic expedition, have been making to keep body and soul together is a fine illustration of what small groups of men in all ages have been willing to endure for the sake of science. Their suffering has been greater than many other Arctic explorers because they were less prepared to meet the almost certain hardships.

It will be difficult to find, perhaps, a story of greater privation more simply told than is embraced in the reports of Mr. STEFANNSON and Dr. ANDERSON just received by Dr. BUMPUS, Director of the Museum. Here is the story of a fifteen days' travel up the Horton River in December, 1909:

> On the whole trip we killed five ptarmigan and not a single rabbit, though one of us hunted each bank of the river all the way up. The sun was gone and so the daylight was meagre; besides it blew a blizzard every day. The whale tongue was very bad eating—it had little to it but dry fibres and was strongly impregnated with sea salts, (other than NaCl.) When we had finished this we were really better off, for the stuff seemed to make us sick. We then ate sealskin, some deerskins we had along for sole leather, and our snowshoe lashings, and in fact pretty near every edible thing except our clothes. When we began getting hungry we had cached all but our barest necessaries—the clothes we wore and our bedding. Had we had our spare clothes along we would have eaten some of them probably. Fortunately we had enough seal oil. With about a teacupful of oil a day one does not feel in the least hungry, (properly speaking,) but gets lazy, sleepy, and weak. The skins, &c., we ate, not because we were feeling hungry, but deliberately, to keep up our strength. All of us found it a little difficult to take the oil "straight"—we soaked it up in tea leaves, deerskin with long hair on it, or ptarmigan feathers.

STEFANNSON and ANDERSON left New York in May, 1908, and since have been conducting an extended ethnological and zoological study along the shores of the Arctic Ocean, visiting some Eskimo tribes which had not before seen a white man.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Ingenuity Was Not Appreciated.

Guessing at motives is always a dangerous business, since almost any act of almost any man may have any one of a dozen or twenty purposes behind it. Therefore are we not very much surprised to learn from Pittsburg that a considerable element of inaccuracy marred the explanation we thought up to account for the offer of a clergyman there to sell two of his children at public auction. Indeed, the surprising thing about the explanation is that it differs in detail rather than in substance from the one now given by the Rev. Mr. BOORD himself.

As we charitably assumed, he had as little desire as intention really to sell his children. It seems, however, that what he did intend was, not to give his parishioners a strong hint that they weren't paying him enough salary for the decent support of his family, but to call the attention of the voters in his district to his contention that though they would not let him make slaves of his own children, a good many of them were not taking care that rum-sellers, corporations, and other like powers for evil didn't reduce everybody's children to worse forms of bondage.

In other words, it was as a candidate for the Legislature, and not as a clergyman, that Mr. BOORD devised his innocent mock-auction scheme, and he had seen to it that in the crowd that gathered around him when the seeming sale began were men who were to stop it in a way to enable him to make his point. Unfortunately for the ingenious parson, his accomplices in this little plot did not carry out their part in it efficiently or promptly, and the other people in the crowd, mistaking what they heard and saw for the real thing, made such a fierce attack on Mr. BOORD as an unnatural father that he narrowly escaped lynching and had to flee for his life before he could say a word about rum-sellers and corporations.

Rarely has a political campaign supplied a queerer incident than that, or, for everybody except Mr. BOORD, a funnier one. He, taking a personal and, therefore, not disinterested view of his failure, considers it a sad affair and himself a most ill-used reformer. The Pittsburgers who tried to lynch him are now laughing at the joke, but, curiously enough, they do not yet see that it was about as much on themselves as on the amateur politician, who only erred in crediting them with ordinary intelligence and a decent sense of humor.

Insanity and Responsibility.

As the public is much more interested in the question whether the man CHARLTON is or is not to be punished for his confessed murder than as to what answer shall be made to Italy's demand for his extradition, there will be something like general regret that after all these months of delay only the minor problem has yet to come up for judicial consideration.

The distinguished alienists who have been investigating CHARLTON'S history and condition were all ready, of course, to tell Judge BLAIR, when he refused to hear them, many things which in their expert opinion revealed insanity and therefore irresponsibility, and far be it from us to throw doubt on either the accuracy of their observations or the sincerity of their judgments. What they had found out, however, was about what would be found out about anybody who had lived an irregular and vicious life—that his heredity was in some respects bad, that his mind and body were abnormal, and that his culminating deed had been preceded by not a few others more or less congruous with it. Whether or not this implies irresponsibility depends upon the point of view.

There is, beyond question, a growing tendency, and a tendency well based on science and logic, to see in all criminals less the willful and malicious enemies of society than the victims, in some degree helpless, of social and economic evils and ignorances. This has naturally affected the old theories as to guilt and its punishment, and it cannot be denied that the new penology is as much better and sounder than the old as it is different from it. The fact is, however, that until we are ready to look on all criminals as invalids and unfortunate, rather than wicked—which will not be to-morrow or next day—there will be a wide-spread and well-grounded antagonism to picking out a few criminals, invariably those that have money, influence or romantic interest, and applying the new ideas to them, while the other people who commit the same offenses for the same reasons and with the same excuses are still subjected to the old rules.

Moreover, the penologists, psychiatrists and physiologists who are really up to date are less inclined at present, we think, to relieve the criminal of responsibility than to make society share it with him. "Insanity" no longer means one thing, but many, and no one form of it is held an excuse or even a palliation for all crimes.

Alchemy, New and Old.

One hardly knows what to think of the sober-minded business men who have deemed it worth their while to go to some expense in investigating the claims of two Philadelphians that one or both of them have found a way to change base metals into silver.

A few years ago the patient hearing of such a claim would have been held, and properly enough, to be convicting evidence of gross ignorance and would have exposed those who listened to the derisive laughter of all who knew what science had to say about the nature of the elements. Now, however, none of us, even the wisest, are quite sure, as we used to be, in regard to the number of kinds into which matter is divided, or the impossibility of changing one kind into another, and there is a growing suspicion that, when the last analysis is made, it will perhaps be discovered that there is only a single element, and that the single element isn't matter at all, but energy acting on nothing.

And it is a fact that there are two or three men alive, and perhaps half a dozen, any one of whom would not be called mad if he announced the transmutation of one metal into another. His claim would not be admitted until it had been subjected to numerous and severe tests by a multitude of competent experimenters, but it would not be ridiculed. None of these men, however, would hesitate a moment to submit to such tests, and he would welcome and facilitate them. There would be no secrecy about his methods, no effort to monopolize or exploit their results.

That has not been the attitude of the Philadelphian alchemists, and therefore is it highly probable that they are of the old and not the new school; in other words, that the sober-minded business men who invested money in silver-making have misunderstood recent scientific discoveries and rendered themselves ridiculous.

The Fashionable Tailor's Bill.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Far be it from me to question a New York fashionable tailor's bill—I use the hand-me-down variety—but I do want to say a word in defense of "Sheriff Bob" of Dutchess concerning a bill of $987, as noted in THE TIMES, sent after him by a Fifth Avenue tailor for twelve white waistcoats, one suit of evening clothes, and interest from June, the wedding month—ring happy bells. Now, I never had a bill from a fashionable tailor, as easy as such a thing may be had, and I have no schedule of prices, but isn't $987 for that amount of goods pushing up the cost of living a notch or two? Allowing $20 each for waistcoats—I wear one that cost $1, and you'd never suspect its Eighth Avenue origin—that makes $240 for waistcoats, leaving $747 for the dress clothes and interest charges. Allowing 2 per cent. a month for, say, four months, the interest ought to be about $73. Call it that and deduct it from $747, leaving $674 as the price of one suit of evening clothes. As I said before, I don't know fashionable tailors' prices, but has any one of them got the limitless gall to charge anybody, even Bob Chanler, $674 for a dress suit? If he has I'm agin the tariff, one and indivisible, and I rise in my place to say in thunder tones that the cost of living is a menace to the palladium of our liberties.

TESTING OUR CONSULS.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The comment of THE TIMES of Sunday on the speech of Consul Manning of La Guayra before the National Association of Manufacturers on the subject of American business men getting better acquainted with their South American trade possibilities, including the customers themselves, is quite to the point, as was Consul Manning's talk. Our Consuls and commercial agents abroad during the past twenty years have done more trade developing than in all their previous history, and the Government has done a great deal to encourage effort on their part, but more could be done, and of a sort that counts as a personal application.

Why, for example, would it not be worth the Consul's salary to the Government to bring him back to this country at least once a year and put him at work talking before various manufacturing associations, Boards of Trade, Chambers of Commerce, and other business organizations? One talk by a Consul fresh from the field of foreign trade would be worth forty pages of Consular report a day, and when there were numerous Consuls in the various trade centres talking business to business men the results would follow in short order. Consuls need not be orators to tell what they knew and make plain what is expected and needed from business men looking for trade. The simpler they would tell it the better, and the Consul who did not have an interesting story that would really tell itself should be retired from the service, or sent to one of the inactive posts where there was no business except social duties.

Not only would this public talking be of value to our business interests, but it would produce a higher class of Government representatives abroad, and many of our Consuls would advance themselves far more than they could possibly do under the present system of written reports, very many of them scarcely worth the paper they are written on. BERNHARDT AND VAUDEVILLE.

Only Regrets That She Has No Better "Turn" Than "L'Aiglon."

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I beg to call attention to your comment of the 21st upon the appearance of Sarah Bernhardt in a London music hall.

As you pointed out, there is little ignominy in meeting the bread and butter question by accepting the greatest financial return. My contention does not oppose her supremacy in the fields of pantomime and elocution; I shall not attempt to review the many and conflicting criticisms of her rendition of those two arts, of her repeated triumphs in "La Tosca," in "L'Aiglon,"—originally devised, though it was, for the performance of Coquelin—of her inspiration for Victorien Sardou through the Comedie Francaise, and, beyond, of her private system of mechanics for drawing upon the emotions of her auditors; of those I shall say no more.

Vaudeville is no more disgraceful for Sarah Bernhardt than journalism for Bjornson. There was a time when the genius of Scott was wasted upon the novel, the genius of Stevenson on the short story, in the same way. Because it is practically out of the question for any one to realize the present-day possibilities of vaudeville is no proof that its dignity is inferior to that of the "Divine Sarah." The variety stage was good enough for Robert Hilliard, Albert Chevalier, and, above all, Mrs. Fiske, to name a few, and though the last-named two commanded very meagre appreciation in those ventures, there was little complaint over discrepancies between the twenty-minute turn and the so-called "legitimate." It is appreciated that you do not point to any degenerating elements of vaudeville; in fact, due consideration is given to your lenient attitude toward its lower grade.

The fact that vaudeville does not occupy a corresponding level to that of the regulation stage lies not with the class of people who attend its performances—for they rank many people appreciating opera, and paying for it—but with the men who write the lines for the actors.

There never was, and there never will be, a playwright whose love for his art exceeds his love for his dollar. The few good sketches we have on the variety stage to-day have been written for the greater part for presentation at the various clubs. A good sketch brings to its author at most little more than a hundred dollars. A stenographer can earn the same with less effort. The classic (classic in vaudeville traditions) "The Bells," and the modern "Sign of the Rose," illustrate a standard; the Mayor's banishment of a certain puerile piece, that has had enough notoriety, emphasizes it. The chief regret should be, not the position of Bernhardt, but the fact that she has not a complete vehicle to appear in—her fragment of "The Eagle" cannot fail to be mystifying to many, who know no work of Rostand's other than his immortalization of the rooster. Temperance and Insurance.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have before me the following widely circulated statement: "The Daily Telegraph lately published the following statistics, which show the ages attained by those who refrain completely from the use of alcohol, those who indulge in it moderately, and those who abuse it:

	Years.	Days.
Total abstainers	51	22
Habitually temperate drinkers	63	13
Careless drinkers	59	67
Free drinkers	57	59
Decidedly intemperate drinkers	53	3

"These figures demonstrate very clearly that alcohol is beneficial to the system, and if taken in moderation 'is the best of all ways to lengthen your days.'"

It has been said that figures do not lie, but to one who has been an ardent advocate of total abstinence, for business, economical, and moral reasons, there appears to be something amiss with these statistics.

I have always understood that the large life insurance companies have considered a person engaged in the dispensing of alcoholic beverages as an extra-hazardous risk, preferring at all times the total abstainer. I also understand that the life insurance companies are now engaged in revising their tables, based on many years of experience, so as to accord to total abstainers the preference, as risks, to which they believe them entitled. Standard Gauge in the Subways.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I think it the greatest possible mistake to allow the Public Service Commission to spend the taxpayers' money for the purpose of constructing a subway which, by reason of its size, would prevent physical transfer between the two systems. It has been demonstrated by the experience of many years in all countries that a standard gauge should always be adopted, and, therefore the gauge of any new subways should be one similar to our own.

The more money expended per mile in construction means so much less construction. I do not believe that any Public Service Commission or body of officials should be allowed to spend the taxpayers' money and use the city's credit in the construction of what is an impracticable proposition and an extravagant one. Fixing Costs and Prices.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Is it not too bad that Mr. Untermyer should not have had the opportunity of reading your editorial, "Costs and the Law," in to-day's issue of THE TIMES before unburdening himself upon the trust question? It is almost tragic. Possibly Mr. Untermyer would be willing to prescribe for the fixing of cost of production as well as for fixing the selling price. The cost of production and the selling price of commodities being "fixed," the millennium will have arrived.

FLEET HITS TARGETS OVER SIX MILES OFF

NEARLY 500 SHOTS FIRED

Norwegian Vessel Gets in Firing Line —Haze and Target Towing Further Halt Practice.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22.—On Board U. S. S. Kansas, Southern Drill Grounds, by wireless, via Portsmouth, Va., Sept. 22—The bad luck of the sixteen battleships that have been mimicking war off the Virginia Capes seems to have been almost continuous. Under ordinary weather conditions the target practice, both by day and night, should have been ended by this time, but renewed troubles yesterday, according to Navy Department advices, may materially delay the conclusion of the Atlantic fleet battle practice.

Admiral Schroeder, commander in chief, in a dispatch received by the Navy Department to-day reported that while the first squadron finished the first run of day target practice, hazy weather and trouble experienced in towing the targets made it impossible to accomplish anything further.

Yesterday, nevertheless, the fleet demonstrated that no mark was too small for it to hit if it showed anywhere above the horizon. Eight of the sixteen battleships forming the first squadron, and headed by Rear Admiral Schroeder's flagship, the Connecticut, peppered four targets, each one-fifth the size of an ordinary warship at a range greater than 10,000 yards, or more than six miles. The Delaware, one of the two new Dreadnoughts, hit her target at the first salvo. The other ships of the fleet, including the Delaware's sister ship, the North Dakota, the Connecticut, the Louisiana, the Kansas, the Michigan, the New Hampshire, and the South Carolina, also found the range accurately.

The ships fired in two divisions, the first going to work about 2 o'clock in the afternoon and the second starting just before sunset. The target floats were towed in single file by one battleship, which was not shooting. Some of the shells dropped 500 feet astern, and gave a realistic imitation of actual battle to those on board. After the signal to commence firing had been given the ships had four and one-half minutes to fire. Nearly 500 shots, including 100 twelve-inch shell, were fired.

The Norwegian fruit steamer Belita, from Port Antonio for Philadelphia, appeared on the horizon midway between the first division and its targets. The division was steaming toward her just before the warships began firing. The vessel did not change her course and a few minutes after the firing had ceased the Belita sailed down the lane between them, interrupting the practice.

A Clyde Line steamer was the only other ship seen sailing in after the firing. No projectiles went near either vessel.

As far as known there were no mishaps aboard the fleet, and both officers and men were elated at the successful shooting.

RUSSIAN PRISONERS.

Cites the Treatment of Mrs. Breshkovsky in Answer to Khrouleff.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Andre Tridon gives in your columns a very rose-colored account of the treatment of convicts in Russian prisons. This account is in the form of an interview with Mr. Stephen Khrouleff, head of the Russian and Siberian prison system.

How common criminals are treated may be a question. Possibly, in dealing with them, Russia may have adopted advanced methods. But, as to Russian treatment of political prisoners, Americans have lately had one grim object lesson that they will not soon forget.

Mr. Khrouleff is reported as saying: "Since Aug. 9, 1908, even friends and acquaintances of the convicts may call upon them and converse with them." A little over a year ago, Mrs. Isabel C. Barrows traveled 5,000 miles for the sake of seeing Mrs. Catherine Breshkovsky, then in prison in St. Petersburg. Mrs. Barrows was not allowed to visit her, or even to communicate with her.

Since then Mrs. Breshkovsky has been sent to Siberia. Thousands of her friends in America and elsewhere have been watching out with breathless interest for news of her. A few weeks ago the news came. Mrs. Breshkovsky was in the prison hospital at Irkutsk, ill with scurvy. That is a disease due solely to deprivation of proper food.

In addition, it was reported that Mrs. Breshkovsky was being sent to some remote place under the arctic circle, inhabited only by a few degraded savages, in one of whose huts she would probably have to end her life.

If this is the treament meted out to so distinguished a political prisoner, whose age and rank and the international solicitude felt for her might have led the Government, as a matter of policy, to allow her decent food, what is likely to be the treatment of the thousands of obscure political prisoners who have no influential friends?

Fighting Preachers.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The editorial article in your issue of the 19th inst. in regard to the part played by the priest, Miguel Hidalgo, in stirring the Mexicans to the struggle for liberty in 1810, recalls the actions of a Virginian preacher in the American Revolution. In 1775 Peter Muhlenberg, a native of Pennsylvania, was a Lutheran preacher in Woodstock, Shenandoah County, Va. He was an ardent patriot, and preached resistance to the British power from his pulpit. In 1776, as soon as it became obvious that armed resistance was inevitable, he obtained a commission as a Colonel from the State authorities, and was asked by those authorities to raise a regiment among the Germans of the Valley of Virginia.

His last sermon was on the subject of the duty one owed to one's country, and is said to have had as a text, "Render unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's." He closed the sermon by saying: "There is a time for everything, and now is the time to fight," and throwing aside his robe, he appeared in the uniform of a Continental Colonel, and began recruiting his regiment among his parishioners on the green around the church. As an example of the "church militant" this is as striking an instance as that of Miguel Hidalgo.

California and Her Railways.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The ordinary Eastern man has no idea of how thoroughly a State can be dominated by a railway company until he begins to study what has been done here in California. I believe that if the people of the East knew how things have been here they would change some of their views as to direct legislation, initiative, referendum, and recall. The ordinary remedies were tried here year after year without effect. The new ones have proved effective and are now firmly imbedded in the policy of the State and have been adopted by every other State near by, and must, in the nature of things, be followed elsewhere, where similar conditions prevail. Not the radicals but the conservative business men are the ones back of these measures, because without them neither public nor private business can be properly carried on.

PERCY MACKAYE ON MENTAL DYSPEPSIA

A PLAY THAT WOBBLES

From Satire to Burlesque with Overplus of Language—Miss Crosman Redeems Poor Cast.

ANTI-MATRIMONY. A Comedy in Four Acts. By Percy MacKaye. Garrick Theatre.
Rev. Elliott Grey.....Walter Greene
Mildred.....Henrietta Crosman
Morris.....Gordon Johnstone
Mrs. Grey.....Marian Holcombe
Isabelle.....Grace Carlyle

Mr. Percy Mackaye's plays very often suggest that line of Eugene Walters about the rocket—lots of brilliancy, but it lacks direction. He begins beautifully, but he does sputter so. And recognizing an exceptionally brilliant mind and talent the question almost invariably presents itself, is it a mind and talent for the theatre? If not what then? Much of his new play "Anti-Matrimony," would read exceedingly well on the printed page—much better, decidedly, than it would act even in a better general performance than that at the Garrick Theatre last night. But, again, much of this play, beginning in a vein of nipping satire, and eventuating into sheer burlesque, would scarcely be regarded as good literature even by Mr. Mackaye's sincere admirers. For the author falls between two stools in trying to be intellectually witty on one side while attempting to make himself clear and theatrically appealing on the other.

Literary indigestion and moral dyspepsia form the themes which he satirizes, and at which he it said, he launches many a stinging shaft of wit. He introduces a pretentious young dramatist—an American, who has lived abroad and absorbed so-called broad views of life—a mystic and would-be disciple of free love. This Morris, who naturally prefers to be called Maurice, is, or thinks he is, a disciple of Nietzche and Ibsen, and he has induced his young wife, Isabelle, to concur in his idiotic notions. So though they have been legally married they return home pretending that their relations have not been legitimatized, and that their child has been born out of wedlock.

Naturally, Morris's mother, a rather prim and Puritanical old lady, is scandalized. His brother, a clergyman, and sister-in-law, a woman of good common sense, are temporarily distressed. But these two discover that there has really been a legal ceremony, and it only remains now to cure the young people of their silly pose. To this end the clergyman's wife pretends to be infatuated with Morris, and his doctrines; while her husband endeavors to engage the attentions of the young wife in his schemes for home betterment."

It is in the clash of the individualistic and the domestic ideals that the genuine humor of the play develops, and as far as this is concerned it is humor of a fine order. Mr. Mackaye is often pedantic and likes his own phrasing overmuch, and argument at times waxes exceedingly complex through sheer desire to be clever. But it must be admitted that much of the dialogue is brilliant. Yet the descent to a form of action that is nothing if not burlesque seems mean by contrast.

It is doubtful if the unhealthy doctrines of the so-called moderns have ever been more amusingly driven out of court than in some of Mr. Mackaye's well-turned speeches. On the other hand, it is a pity that cleverness is so often muffled in matter of no consequence. One is delighted at the keenness of the satirical insinuation in such a speech as that in which the young husband brings in a sprig of apple blossoms and tells of the bees that hovered near, with "every bough a commonwealth of natural lovers." And, again, it is delightful, after idealistic utterances on the duty of the State as regards children, to suddenly hear that the baby has swallowed a safety-pin, with the commen-sense inquiry of the sane woman as to whether the State shall remove it, the young mother being engaged meanwhile in obeying her husband's injunction not to bother herself about trivial domestic cares.

There is cleverness, indeed, to Mr. Mackaye's text, but when one comes to consider it in its entirety it does not make a play, not at any rate a play along any consistent model. Were it always brilliantly amusing in spite of its lack of form one might be glad to get the matter as it. But too much of it is tedious.

The acting is by no means all it should be, either, though Miss Crosman, finished and facile comedienne that she is, plays generally with charm and with spirit. She has lightness of touch, too, which the others lack, and she conveys rather more sense of understanding of what it is all about than do the people about her. The men especially are wooden and seem dense.

There is a highly amusing idea in "Anti-Matrimony," and it might contain a timely message for a lot of silly would-be "supermen and super-souls." But it is doubtful if many of them will have a chance to see it. For though there was more high-grade intelligence in last night's audience than will be found in the average theatre assemblage, the mirth was still by no means unrestrained.

MISS FARRAR WINS BERLIN.

American Prima Donna Receives Ovation on Her Reappearance as Manon.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Sept. 22.—Geraldine Farrar had a tumultuous reception at the Royal Opera House last night on her first reappearance as Manon after a long absence in America. The Crown Prince and Princess and a half dozen other members of royalty were present and led the cheers and applause after each curtain.

The American prima donna was in splendid voice, and, beaming with joy, responded to no less than twenty calls to the footlights.

Helena Frederick to Sing in Vaudeville

Helena Frederick, the former comic opera star, has about completed rehearsals of a condensed version of Offenbach's "The Tales of Hoffmann," which she will present in vaudeville under the direction of Homer Lind. The version was made by Randolph Hartley, author of the libretto of the American oprea, "Pola," and the musical arrangement has been done by Mr. Lind. The most important numbers of the full opera have been retained, and the adapter has supplied connecting dialogue. The first performance will be given out of town soon, and later in the Fall Miss Frederick and her company will appear at a local vaudeville theatre.

The pressure on the space of The New York Times renders it necessary for all advertisements to be in The Times Building by 6 P. M. daily to insure classification and position.

G. W. WATSON QUITS MINEOLA HORSE SHOW

Withdraws All His Horses Because of Alleged Poor Judging of Tandems.

PONY CLASS FOR CHILDREN

A Novel Feature Which Pleases Large Assemblage of Long Island Social Colonies.

The ninth annual exhibition of the Mineola Horse Show opened yesterday at the Mineola Fair Grounds, the opening day coming well up to the mark of previous years. Society from Hempstead, Westbury, Bayside, Glen Cove, Roslyn, Great Neck, and Locust Valley was out in large numbers to witness the judging. Automobiles and other conveyances were parked all around the inclosure, while numerous box parties were in evidence along the ringside opposite the judges' stand.

During the afternoon eleven classes were judged, including harness and saddle horses, hunters and jumpers, and children's ponies, some of which were very well contested.

A new and unique feature of this year's show was a pony class for children. In this event six ponies were sent into the ring carrying tiny youngsters in basket saddles, the youngest of which was Ogden Phipps, the 20-months-old son of Mr. H. C. Phipps of Westbury, and who after being sent around the ring for two circuits in care of a groom and nurse was awarded the beautiful silver mug donated by Mrs. F. R. Hitchcock. Mr. J. S. Phipps entered three ponies in this class, with three younger Phipps, Masters Howard and Hubert and Miss Peggy, in the baskets. The class took up quite some time of the judges, and after they were given the gate the spectators applauded the contestants.

Dissatisfaction was displayed by Mr. George W. Watson in the tandem class. Mr. Watson entered his stylish tandem pair, Florham Lady and Florham Leader. Only four entries were received in the class, the Florham Farm team being the only one that did not receive a ribbon. The decision did not meet with general favor, and Mr. Watson approached the judges and asked for an explanation.

Charles A. Baudouine, who did the judging of the class, informed Mr. Watson that his entry was lame, but when asked to point out the place he was unable and the owner said that he was quite sure that both of the horses were perfectly sound, and had they not been he would have kept them out of the ring. This action on the part of the judges caused Mr. Watson to withdraw all his harness entries from the programme for the remainder of the show.

Twenty-eight entries were received in the class for green or qualified hunters, and it was necessary to divide the competition into two classes. Four awards were made in each of these classes in accordance with the conditions and four horses were sent over the jumps in each class.

In Class A, the first division judged, the competition was stronger than in Class B. Gaylight, owned by J. S. Phipps, had a hard trial, opposed by Kingsley Swan's gray gelding King Edward, but the Phipps entry topped the timbers better on the last trial, and was victorious.

In Class B, Willow King, owned by U. D. Benner, took the jumps in masterly style, and cleared the bars perfectly, defeating his stable mate, Sunday Morning.

Clarence H. Mackay's team, Land o'Burns and Irish Lass, with only one other contesting team in the class for pairs of harness horses, annexed the blue in easy fashion. The Watson team was entered, but was withdrawn as the class was called.

Among the prominent persons present were:

A sextet from the Russian Symphony Orchestra will play during the entr'actes and on the stage during the first act, with selections chosen to indicate the Bohemian atmosphere the play is supposed to possess.

STEWART WILL FIGHT ENDS.

Court Decides How the Woman's Estate Shall Be Divided.

PATERSON, N. J., Sept. 22.—With the handing down of an opinion by Judge Francis Scott, sitting in the Surrogate's Court, this morning, in which the last will and codicil of the late Cornelia G. Stewart of Passaic is admitted to probate, what was one of the bitterest fought will contests ever witnsseed in this county is now a closed book.

The largest share of the estate, estimated to be worth between $30,000 and $40,000, goes to Lawyer Harry Myers, of Passaic, his wife and daughter, his law partner Henry O. Miller and Miss Mary Johnson, a nurse, who attended Mrs. Stewart during the last years of her life. Miss Johnson will receive $2,500.

George Burnett, of Amherst, Mass., a nephew, who contended undue influence had been used by Myers and his family, sought to break the will.

Strong Boxes Searched in Court for Second Thompson Testament.

In compliance with an order of Surrogate Ketcham in Brooklyn, lawyers for the estate of the late Robert H. Thompson, the aged millionaire paper manufacturer, produced in court yesterday the tin box in which a later will of the testator than that filed after his death was alleged to have been secreted.

The young widow, Mrs. Mabel Thompson, the second wife of the testator, was not mentioned in the filed will, under which practically the entire estate was divided between the two grown sons and married daughter of her husband.

Another strong box in the custody of the Nassau National Bank was also brought into court, but a careful search of the contents of the two boxes failed to reveal any document in the nature of a missing will.

ACTRESS' LOVE OF HOME.

Amelia Bingham Tells of Their Liking for Household Duties.

Amelia Bingham, the actress, was the principal speaker at the morning session of the Domestic Science Congress at the Pure Food Show yesterday. She caused something of a sensation by declaring at the outset of her talk that the most serious thing a woman could do was to be a fine cook and housekeeper. The subject assigned to Miss Bingham was "Women of the Home and of the Stage."

She spoke forcefully of the love actresses have for their homes and of their liking for household duties. She said that the modern mother was making a great mistake in not training her daughters to cook and sew, and that a woman should be ashamed to be so helpless as to seek positions as typewriters or anything else she could get when the duties awaiting her in the simple household lines should be natural and easy to follow out.

To-day's programme will include several demonstrations and lectures, and a woman's suffrage session, at which the speakers will be Mrs. Blatch, Beatrice Forbes-Robertson, Mrs. Charlotte Perkins Gilman, Max Eastman, and others. The New York City Federation of Woman's Clubs will have a session in the afternoon.

Actors Arrive for Irving Place Theatre

Seventeen members of the dramatic and comic opera stock companies for the Irving Place Theatre arrived in New York yesterday on the Graf Waldersee, from Hamburg. Rehearsals will begin to-day and the theatre will open on Sept. 29, with "The Smugglers," a comedy. Yesterday's arrivals represent the principals of the two companies, the actors for the smaller parts and the choruses being engaged in New York.

CARTER NOT CRITICIZED.

Denies Any One Objected to His Judging at the Newport Horse Show.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, R. I., Sept. 22.—Prescott Lawrence, one of the three committeemen of the Newport Horse Show, was asked to-day if it was true that James Smith, manager for Sumner Draper of Boston, had called to account William E. Carter, one of the judges, in a letter to Carter. Mr. Lawrence replied it was news to him, and added:

"Mr. Carter's judging was most satisfactory to the exhibitors and to the committee. I did not hear of any complaints."

Draper's entries in five classes were The Virginian and Apollo. He won $25 prize money and was No. 14 in the winning list of sixteen. Carter himself said: "I have not received a letter from Mr. Smith or any one else relative to my decisions in the ring of the Newport Horse Show. Please deny such a statement for me. I have been asked to judge at both the Louisville Horse Show and the National Horse Show in New York, and I have accepted both.

MAY BE NO TURKISH LOAN.

English Do Not Want to Encourage the Porte's Militant Policy.

LONDON, Sept. 22.—The question of a Turkish loan of $30,000,000, which, it was reported, was to be handled by a group headed by Sir Ernest Cassel, hangs fire. No contract has been signed for the placing of the loan in London, and English financiers do not believe it will be placed here.

The feeling in British government and financial circles is as strong as in France against encouraging Turkey's militant policy by enabling her to purchase German guns and warships, especially in the face of the existing strained relations of Turkey with Bulgaria and Greece.

Ryman of Newark, who for several years ran at Montclair an institution for the cure of drunkards and did cure a large number, is in jail here on a drunk and disorderly charge. He was arrested on Tuesday and committed in default of a fine of $6. Ryman admitted that he had never tried the beneficial effects of his famous treatment.

LADY DE ROTHSCHILD DEAD.

Widow of Sir Anthony de Rothschild Was a True Lady Bountiful.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Sept. 22.—The death is announced of Lady Louisa de Rothschild, in her ninetieth year. Lady de Rothschild was the widow of Sir Anthony de Rothschild, upon whom a baronetcy was conferred on the recommendation of Sir Robert Peel in 1847. Sir Anthony died in 1876, and the present Lord Rothschild, his nephew, succeeded to the baronetcy by special remainder.

Lady de Rothschild was known in connection with East and Jewish institutions as a veritable Lady Bountiful. She was also a well-known agriculturist. Her herd of Jerseys, which were her chief favorites, were dispersed April last, when fifty animals were sold, the highest figures being $1,100 for a bull and $1,025 for a cow.

At their beautiful country house, Aston Clinton, Sir Anthony and Lady de Rothschild entertained many distinguished visitors in days gone by. Matthew Arnold was among their greatest friends, and it was while hunting in Aylesbury Vale with Sir Anthony that the late King Edward, then Prince of Wales, first received the news of the death of Napoleon III. in 1873.

Lady de Rothschild was a link with a very old generation. Her father was born late in the eighteenth century, and married her mother, a daughter of Meyer Rothschild, in the year of the battle of Waterloo. This was his second marriage, and by it he had three children, of whom Lady Louisa Rothschild was the youngest. Her husband died in 1876.

Lady Louisa's uncle, Sir Moses Montefiore, was the celebrated philanthropist. He was born in 1784 and died in 1885.

"LITTLE DORRIT" DEAD.

Another Link with Dickens Broken by the Death of Mrs. G. M. Hayman.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Sept. 22.—A link with Charles Dickens has been severed by the death at Southsea of Mrs. G. M. Hayman, one of his close personal friends, who is said by her family to have been the original of Little Dorrit. She would have reached her eighty-first birthday next month.

Mrs. Hayman's father was a solicitor living in London, and was for years an intimate friend of Dickens. The novelist was a frequent visitor at his house and took keen interest in all the members of his family.

Mrs. Hayman's brother, who died while still a lad, is said to have inspired another Dickens character, Tiny Tim. The boy met with an accident while at play, being impaled on some railings, but he was a cheery little fellow in spite of the injury that made him a cripple.

Funeral of Gustave Barna.

The funeral of Gustave Barna, known to the Hungarians of New York as "Uncle Barna," was held yesterday afternoon at the Hungarian Republican House, 76 Second Avenue, and was attended by hundreds of Hungarians. There were no religious services, that being the wish of Mr. Barna; just a gathering of friends to say the last words over his body before it was interred in Union Fields Cemetery on Long Island. The floral tributes were many, four carriages being required to carry them to the cemetery. The Hungarian Gypsy Band played several selections, and Morris Cukor paid a beautiful tribute to "Uncle" Barna's memory. Among those present were Secretary of State Samuel S. Koenig, Dr. Frederick L. Marshall, Republican leader of the Tenth Assembly District, and William Blau, former Deputy Attorney General.

Frederick Ehrenberg.

Frederick Ehrenberg, aged 61 years, a landscape architect, well known in his profession, and author of several books, among them "The Fresh Water Aquarium" and a volume on horticulture, died yesterday morning at his home, 1,155 Boston Road, the Bronx, of apoplexy. He frequently contributed letters on landscape architecture and the conditions in the city parks to the columns of THE TIMES. Mr. Ehrenberg was born in Brunschweig, Germany. In 1900 he was one of the representatives of New York City at the Paris Exposition.

Improvement

The bond market shows indications of broadening, prices of investment bonds are slightly higher, and bonds are becoming scarcer. However, many safe first mortgage bonds are still obtainable to yield from 5% to 7%.

For instance, we offer a First Mortgage Steam Railroad Bond to yield 5.20%. The road is bonded at $8,000 a mile, and net earnings for the year ended June 30, 1910, were about 3 times interest charges. The country served is fertile and productive, and the road's freight revenue is largely derived from the transportation of agricultural products.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks Heavy and Quiet—Call Money Rates, 1¾@2 Per Cent.

REALIZING SALES THE FACTOR

Traders Secure Profits on Advance Following Minnesota Rate Case Decision—English Bank's Showing.

The failure of the news of the decision favorable to the Northwest roads in the Minnesota rate case to provoke any appreciable amount of outside buying made the stock market yesterday morning very sensitive to profit taking by traders who secured their lines immediately upon the announcement of the decision on Wednesday. Realizing sales of this kind were heavy and there was in addition a moderate amount of liquidation by third holders, who seized the first moment of strength and activity displayed by the market in many weeks to close out their commitments. Under the pressure from the sources described stocks sold off readily in the early hours, led by Great Northern, Northern Pacific, and St. Paul which had, of course, scored the maximum advances of the previous day. By noon, however, the pressure relaxed, trading grew dull, and prices slowly recovered some of the earlier declines. This was still the tendency of the market as a whole at the close, although the recovery was very irregular and accompanied by a constantly diminishing volume of dealings.

Discussion still centred very largely upon the Minnesota rate case decision, but it was noticeable that the extreme optimism which followed its publication on Wednesday was considerably tempered by the belated recognition of the fact that the findings are those of a master only and are subject to review by the Circuit Court of Appeals and may thereafter be carried to the Supreme Court itself. So far as it goes, however, there is no question but that the outcome of the case in its initial stages is particularly fortunate from the general railroad point of view, and judging from the meagre details which have come to hand it seems that it is good enough law to hold even upon the further examination which is sure to follow. Railroad men are naturally pleased with the verdict, and look with considerable confidence to its further progress in the courts. All the news from cotton and corn territory was of the best, with every promise of the harvesting of considerably larger crops than had been thought possible several weeks ago. Railroad earnings submitted in the course of the day were likewise a source of satisfaction, this being particularly true of the statements of the Chicago Great Western, the Western Maryland, and the "Panhandle." Judge Gary's additional statement regarding steel conditions was regarded as distinctly cheerful, and the only adverse feature of the day's budget was one affecting in some degree the local copper metal and shares market in the German cables reporting the prospect of a strike in the metal trades in that country, involving 425,000 workmen.

Conflicting cables regarding the outcome of the meeting of the foreign bankers in London on the cotton bills dispute were received, but hope still exists that the matter will be settled amicably, while in any event preparations are already under way for minimizing any money market strain involved in the continued dead-lock. The Bank of England reported a reserve percentage for the week far above the average at this time in recent years, and of course made no change in its official discount.

BOSTON STOCK MARKET.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Sept. 22.—United Shoe Machinery was the principal figure in the local market to-day on persistent rumors that the differences between the above-named company and the plant company had been settled. Fluctuations in the balance of the list were merely nominal and the undertone was inclined to be somewhat reactionary.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Advance Information.

Not the least interesting feature of the Minnesota rate case decision is the fact that not only its tenor but a good many details of the Master's findings were known in Wall Street as early as Monday morning. It is always a mystery how matters of this sort become known to limited groups of people, but they do, and in a majority of instances advantage is taken of the advance information to speculate profitably. One of the men who was told about the decision on Monday said yesterday that he was taken aside by a Wall Street man and informed that the roads would win; that high valuations would be placed upon their property, and that 7 per cent. would be named as a rate which they were entitled to pay on their shares. The auditor's curiosity was provoked by the definite character of this information, but to his query as to its source the only reply was that "some folks had come on from the West who knew the facts." The movement of prices early yesterday morning, following Wednesday's bulge on publication of the decision, suggested rather strongly that the folks who had come on from the West were securing at least their transportation expenses for the round trip.

Plans in Billions.

What a railroad man will say on the witness stand regarding the property with which he is connected, particularly concerning its finances, seems to depend a good deal upon whether the inquiry is one regarding the necessity for increased rates or for something else. This statement has no reference, of course, to the testimony made under oath, or even in answer to direct questions, but refers simply to the generalizations in which railroad men sometimes indulge at hearings of one sort and another. An example is afforded by what may be called the conversation of the Chief Engineer of the New York Central, who has been opposing before the up-State Public Service Commission the application of the Buffalo, Rochester & Eastern Railroad for permission to construct a line between Troy and Buffalo. Such a road was entirely unnecessary, said the engineer, because the New York Central was capable of taking care of twice the freight business offering, while improvements made since 1907, under way or contemplated, all for the purpose of providing enlarged facilities, involve an expenditure of $1,500,000,000, including the six tracking of the main line. The figures are those reported by yesterday's dispatches and not our own. They may be offered to Mr. Hill, who has had a busy time of late in keeping his calculations of the amounts of money needed by the railroads in the next few years up to date. Inclusion by him of the present item in his earlier estimates will call for a drastic revision of his total. Incidentally, the Chief Engineer of the Central lines mentioned the interesting fact that the Grand Central Terminal has cost $26,790,000 up to date, and will consume $100,000,000 before it is completed. In its last annual report the Central noted "deferred debit items" as an advance "Grand Central Terminal improvement, $15,117,250."

Rapid Cotton Movement.

The cotton trade is somewhat at sea regarding the exact and immediate effect which the bills of lading controversy is going to have upon near-by options, particularly those for October, and as a result the speculative position has been made highly interesting and somewhat exciting. If the larger movement of cotton to Southern ports is a trustworthy indication, one of the consequences of the possible deadlock in bills of lading after Oct. 31 is a present desire to get forward all the cotton possible. In spite of the fact that the crop is at least two weeks late on the average, daily receipts at the various domestic ports are running more than 40,000 bales a day compared with 45,000 bales the last year. Some of the bills of lading coming into this market in connection with the movement bear besides the railway certificate validating the signature of its agent, another certificate attached by bankers to the face of the bill certifying to the accuracy of the statements made in the bills so far as it covers conditions in the place in which the bank itself is located. This is, of course, a helpful factor in the financing, and may serve to impress the foreign bankers with the desire of bankers on this side to do what they lawfully can to make the bills safe. Presumably no financial responsibility goes with the bank's certification.

Plea for Something Over.

Vice President Gardner of the Chicago & Northwestern, at the Western rate hearing in Chicago yesterday, spoke up for the railroads' privilege to earn a surplus. The Northwestern would not go into bankruptcy within the next three years, he explained, if rates were not raised. "But," he continued, "I do think higher rates are essential to allow a reasonable surplus. Under present commercial conditions we can borrow money at 4 per cent., because our credit is good, and our credit is good largely because we've put so much surplus into the property." Vice President Gardner was asked what the road would do with the greater surplus which would be the result of higher rates. "Put it back into the property," he replied. "It isn't our policy to issue bonds or stocks against our surplus, but if the property were inventoried that surplus would be shown somewhere in the value of the property."

Securities Back of Government Deposits.

The process of wiping out the collateral security of State, city, and railroad bonds behind Government deposits, which after the panic period took the place very largely, under the privilege granted, of Government bonds is proceeding rapidly. The size of the deposits of Federal funds, too, has very largely decreased, but the Government money now with the banks is practically all secured by Government bonds. The latest figures from Washington show $36,000,000 of Government deposits, of which only about $2,500,000 are secured by State, city, and railroad bonds. The Government in January, 1908, held $215,945,000 of securities of this class for deposits, and at that time the Government had $249,500,000 deposited with the banks. The total of all the securities held was more than $295,967,000, of which only about $80,000,000 was Government bonds deposited as security.

THE COMMODITIES MARKETS.

A stimulus toward higher prices was received at the outset in the wheat market from Liverpool advices, which were decidedly better than anticipated. Private reports attributed the strength abroad to predictions of smaller Black Sea exports and to the Italian official report, which was construed as bullish. This report made the wheat crop of Italy 158,000,000 bushels, as against 185,000,000 bushels last year. On the other hand, advices from Argentina were favorable, but these had little effect on values. There was good buying during the morning, which was thought to be for the account of strong interests, and sentiment showed decided improvement. The market advanced to about ⅝c above the previous night's finals, with offerings rather limited. At the extreme advance there was renewed pressure from elevator interests, which resulted in the early gain being lost. Advices stating that there was a good cash demand for wheat, and that the flour business had shown a more encouraging aspect, resulted in some further new buying, with a good deal of attention attracted to reports of deterioration in the quality of Canadian wheat, owing to frosts in August. The fact that France purchased approximately half a million bushels of wheat on the Pacific Coast caused quite a little comment, as it showed that, notwithstanding the freer offerings of foreign wheat at prices under ours, importers show a tendency to disregard other offers, owing to the inferior quality. There were reports to-day stating that the Russian wheat recently delivered in France was wet and unfit for milling purposes. The close was firm at near the best of the day. Cash wheat quoted: No. 2 red Winter, $1.04⅝, elevator; No. 2 red, spot, nominal, new, $1.05, free on board, afloat, for export; No. 1 Northern Spring, $1.23⅝; No. 2 hard Winter, new, $1.07¼; No. 1 Northern Manitoba, $1.10. Sales include 500,000 bushels from the Pacific Coast for France.

A better feeling existed in the corn market, with less pressure to sell. Shorts were inclined to take profits, influenced by the strength in wheat, and also on predictions by private authorities of colder weather. The Price Current confirmed advices recently received to the effect that a large proportion of the crop is already out of danger of frost, and reports coming to hand now indicate that the damage would be apt to be to the quality rather than the quantity. Some reaction occurred on reports of free country offerings, but in the late trading the market turned firm again on better export demand. Cash corn quoted: No. 2, 61¼c, nominal, elevator, to arrive, cost, insurance, and freight, domestic basis; steamer, nominal, elevator, export basis. Sales include 160,000 bushels from Baltimore for forward shipment.

The oats market was quiet, with fluctuations narrow. Some steadiness was derived from the strength in other markets, but on the bulges commission houses continued fair sellers, with sentiment against prices. Statistics are bearish, and, although cash houses have been fair buyers, pressure was noticeable. Cash oats quoted: Standards, 39c; No. 2 white, 39½c; No. 3 white, 38½c; No. 4 white, 38c; natural white, 39@41½c; white clipped, 40@44c.

Provisions were irregular, with decided weakness in pork and other commodities somewhat easier in sympathy. There was no support and stop orders were readily caught, with sentiment bearish. An estimate of the stocks showed a decrease of 921 barrels of pork since the first of the month, 13,500 tierces of lard, and 1,583,000 pounds of ribs.

COTTON.

The trend of values was again toward a higher level in cotton, and although there were occasional periods of reaction these were shortlived, and the undertone continued firm throughout the session. The opening was at general advances, the market disregarding disappointing Liverpool advices and continued favorable picking weather with offerings limited. A fair amount of buying developed on the issuance of the National Ginners' Association report showing a condition of 68. This compares with their report on the first of the month of 70.8 and 60.2 on Sept. 30 a year ago. The Government last month made the condition of cotton 72.1. This condition of 68 is 1 point better than the ten-year average, and would point to a possible crop of approximately 12,000,000 bales. Interests are sceptical, however, in regard to accepting these figures, as it was pointed out that the growth this season has been a very irregular one, with the report having all the more influence, in that private advices coming to hand at present are claiming further deterioration in different sections of the belt. At midday there was some reaction on selling by Western interests, but pressure was not pronounced, and the market again rallied to near the best of the session. Members of the bull party continue large buyers, and their confidence on the bull side of the market has resulted in stimulating an outside following. It is estimated that the aggregate purchases the past few days, which could be termed new buying, amount to over 60,000 bales. The firmness of the Southern spot situation is also attracting quite a little attention in view of the disparity between the October option and prices asked in the South.

Southern spot markets unchanged to ⅛ advance.

COFFEE.

A sharp break in the French market on rumors that the French trade had more favorable advices from Brazil regarding new crop prospects exercised an unsettling influence here. The opening was irregular, with December 5 points higher on covering, but with other months 1 point higher to 1 point lower, and, while offerings were pretty well absorbed, the market gradually eased off to close steady, net unchanged to 8 points lower. Sales were reported of 63,750 bags.

After having shown a net advance of ⅛@¾t, Havre closed ¾t net lower, while Hamburg, after an early advance, closed at a net loss of ⅛ pfennig. There was no sign of any weakness in Brazil, and the morning cables continued Wednesday's private reports of much higher milreis prices and a sharp advance in the exchange rate, which was reported ¾d higher, at 18 5-16d. THE EUROPEAN MARKETS.

Happenings of a Day in London, Paris, and Berlin.

LONDON, Sept. 22.—Money was quiet and discount rates were steady to-day.

The stock market was a shade firmer, but business remained quiet. Home rails and industrial shares hardened and gilt-edged securities were steady; but rubber shares and mines were weak.

American securities opened a fraction higher and advanced for a time, helped by the Minnesota freight rate decision. Then realizing caused a reaction and prices declined below parity. Wall Street selling in the afternoon caused further losses, especially in Union Pacific and United States Steel, and the market closed easy.

Bar silver steady, 24 11-16d per ounce.

The rate of discount in the open market for short bills is 2½@2⅝ per cent.

The rate of discount in the open market for three months' bills is 2 13-16@2⅞ per cent.

IN THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

James Speyer's Contemplated Removal From Madison Avenue Likely to Lead to Other Murray Hill Changes—Private House Demand—Big Scarsdale Transfer —$1,000,000 Park Avenue Apartment.

The realty market showed a decided falling off in activity from the previous day. Real estate dealers and others who have been watching the steady encroachment of business in the Murray Hill section discussed with considerable interest James Speyer's contemplated removal from Madison Square as forecast by his purchase of a fine site on upper Fifth Avenue for his new home.

Although Mr. Speyer does not intend to abandon his present residence at 257 Madison Avenue immediately, his recognition of the fact that the time is rapidly approaching when it will be impossible to withstand the commercial expansion already so apparent in the blocks east of Fifth Avenue will undoubtedly carry great influence with some of his neighbors who have been doubting for some time whether to remain or prepare for the inevitable by choosing new home sites at an early date. Mr. Speyer's step, it is generally admitted, means that it will be useless to fight the inroads of business, and the effort made by George F. Baker and his friends to preserve the private residential character of the upper part of Murray Hill seems doomed to defeat.

The big corner at Thirty-eighth Street and Madison Avenue, for which the Bakers paid $1,000,000 to prevent the erection of a twenty-story apartment house a year ago, is more than likely to be used for that very purpose in the future, if not for an office building.

West Side Dwellings in Demand.

The demand for private dwellings on the west side is shown by the following leases negotiated by Slawson & Hobbs: 71 West Seventy-first Street, for Mrs. A. Livingston to Mrs. Moore; 341 West Eighty-fifth Street, for W. E. D. Stokes to Miss V. Starrett; 146 West Seventy-eighth Street, for Lucy Drexel to Fannie Hartwig; 62 West Ninety-fifth Street, for Charles Griffith Moses to Mrs. R. Gleason; 301 West Seventy-seventh Street, for Dr. H. J. Wildy to Miss V. Reynolds; 439 West Eighty-first Street, for Ethel Watts Grant to Charles Minner; 111 West Seventy-eighth Street, for Martin K. Goodkind to M. E. Glassin; 308 West Thirty-sixth Street, for Atlantic Realty Company to Mrs. C. F. Horing; 42 West Eighty-eighth Street, for Paula Wolfsohn to James W. Tanney; 154 West Seventy-seventh Street, for Hearn estate to Dr. Grostock.

Big Transfer in Scarsdale.

The so-called White property, consisting of about fifty-five acres, between the White Plains village line and the Hartsdale station, east of the Harlem Division and fronting on Walworth Avenue, has been transferred to the Scarsdale Estates, thus dissolving the last of the joint holdings of the Butler estate and the Scarsdale Estates, which was created nearly a quarter of a century ago by the late Welcome G. Hitchcock and Charles Butler.

Suburban Sales.

Lieutenant Commander D. V. H. Allen, of the United States Navy has purchased a valuable corner plot of ground in the new section of Great Neck Hills, at the corner of Highland Avenue and Shoreward Drive, on which he will build a house in the Spring.

Plans which were prepared by Architect William H. McElfatrick, call for a building to measure 86 feet frontage with a depth of 170 feet, containing a seating capacity of 1,400, of brick and strictly fireproof equipment.

M. Janpole is president, at a cost of $1,000,000. The building will have a facade of brick with limestone and terra cotta trimmings of the modern Italian Renaissance style. It will contain apartments for forty-eight families and will be equipped with four electric passenger elevators and a refrigerating plant, heating plant, vacuum cleaning plant and large laundry in the basement with steam dryers and all the latest electrical appliances for washing and ironing. George and Edward Blum are the architects.

The building will have a frontage of 75 feet and a depth of 86.11 feet with a facade of brick and limestone, and accommodations for forty-four families. The Sun Construction Company, of which Benjamin Neiberg is president, is the owner. Gronenberg & Leuchtag are the architects.

Receivers of Rents.

Justice Bijur of the Supreme Court has appointed Joseph Rosalsky receiver of the rents of 546 West Fortieth Street pending a suit brought by Catherine C. Murray, guardian, against Carrie Silverberg and others to foreclose a mortgage of $12,000.

Edward S. Frith has been appointed receiver of the rents of 202 East Ninety-seventh Street, a six-story tenement, pending a suit brought by Norman S. Walker, Jr., trustee, against Joseph Bernstein and others to foreclose a mortgage of $30,000.

Leon S. Altmayer has negotiated for a client a first mortgage of $11,000 for five years at 5 per cent. on the four-story tenement with stores known as 1,841 Third Avenue, between Seventy-sixth and Seventy-seventh Streets.

The partnership lately existing under the firm name of Peck & Pile has been dissolved by mutual consent. The business will be temporarily conducted by Harold W. Peck, in the City Investing Building.

The entire ground floor of the Cameron Building, Madison Avenue and Thirty-fourth Street, has been leased by Sidney S. Cohen to the Tangiers Development Company.

Jamaica Estates

THE splendid service of the Pennsylvania-Long Island Railroad System is now in operation. The average time from Herald Square to Jamaica is now twenty minutes and will later be reduced to eighteen minutes. Under the new schedule there will be 424 trains arriving and departing each week day at the Jamaica Station, to and from Herald Square, East 34th Street and Flatbush Avenue. Prices in our property will shortly be advanced, and we strongly advise those who are already familiar with our property to quickly make their choice; and we urge those who would be interested in complete information about THE ONLY REAL RESIDENTIAL PARK IN NEW YORK CITY to communicate with us at once before any advance is made. Beautiful plots can now be purchased as low as $2,000, including permanent sewers and all City improvements, and convenient terms can be arranged. For full information and handsome booklet address

THE FINEST RESIDENTIAL BUILDING IN THE WORLD

These apartments express every exclusive and luxurious feature of the finest private residence.

The rooms are all light—many of the suites having four exposures. In most of the suites all of the sleeping and living rooms face the street, none open on the court. The entertaining rooms, including a Living Room 19x30, Music Room 25x17, Library or Billiard Room 18x17, and Reception Room 15x21, are arranged around a uniquely constructed conservatory. Any number of large closets—one specially for millinery, etc., divided into glass-partitioned compartments—open off from the sleeping rooms.

A kitchen 13x20, probably the largest in any apartment house in New York, completely fitted out, and excellent accommodations for the servants, largely eliminate the servant troubles. Additional rooms can be rented.

Inspect one or two of the apartments that we have remaining for lease at $6,500 and $7,000—suites including eleven to fourteen rooms and five bathrooms—and you will immediately realize the many decided advantages of these apartments over all others in New York.

BUSINESS TROUBLES

JACOB SHAFFER.—Judge Holt has appointed Marshall S. Hager receiver in bankruptcy for Jacob Shaffer, manufacturer of men's clothing, at 23 East Fourth Street.

MORRIS ABRAHMS.—Judge Holt has appointed Robert Wilkinson of Poughkeepsie receiver in bankruptcy for Morris Abrahms, grocer, at Tannersville. The liabilities are $7,000, and the assets are $3,000, consisting of stock, $2,000, and accounts, $1,000.

ISIDORE WALDMAN.—Judge Holt has granted a motion to dismiss the petition in bankruptcy filed on Feb. 16 against Isidore Waldman, furrier of 23 East Fourteenth Street, by G. Gandig & Blum, creditors. There was never any adjudication in the case.

PROGRESSIVE SPRINKLING COMPANY.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against the Progressive Sprinkling Company, engaged in shrinking textiles for manufacturers at 304-310 East Twenty-third Street, by Jacob Jablowsol, a creditor for $360 money loaned. It was alleged that while insolvent the company transferred money to creditors to prefer them, and removed part of its property. The liabilities are $4,000, and the assets $1,700.

GOLDSTEIN, STRACHSTEIN & SIEGEL.—Judge Holt has granted a motion to dismiss the petition in bankruptcy filed on June 27 against Goldstein, Strachstein & Siegel, manufacturers of cloaks at 16 East Sixteenth Street, on application of Samuel S. Breslin, their attorney, who stated that the firm had made a settlement with creditors at 100 cents on the dollar, and they keep their real estate. They claimed an equity of $40,000 in the property before the petition was filed.

ABRAHAM H. NUSSBAUM.—Abraham H. Nussbaum, a musician living at 148 East Eighty-sixth Street, has filed a petition in bankruptcy, with liabilities of $721 and assets nominal. He has a trumpet, cornet, and eight other trumpets, value $100, which he says are exempt, copyright on a musical composition, called "Land of Freedom," value not given; a claim for commissions, amount not ascertained, and 2,000 pieces of printed piano music, value not given. The debts are to three creditors for money loaned, $361; breach of contract, $350, and typewriting services, $10.

HARRY KEMPLER.—A meeting of creditors of Harry Kempler, manufacturer of underwear, against whom a petition in bankruptcy was filed last week, was held yesterday at the New York County Lawyers' Association, and a committee was appointed to examine Mr. Kempler's books. This committee, composed of three creditors, after going over the books, recommended a settlement on a 25 per cent. basis, 10 per cent. in cash and 15 per cent. in notes. The meeting had been called by Meyer Boskey of 280 Broadway, counsel for Mr. Kempler. Mr. Kempler is in business at 114 Spring Street. The liabilities were estimated in the bankruptcy petition at $10,000 and the assets at $1,500.

HARRY B. GOETCHIUS.—Harry B. Goetchius of Interlaken, N. J., a mining stock operator, filed schedules in bankruptcy in the United States District Court in Trenton yesterday, with liabilities amounting to $209,825 and $2,041 assets. Only $2,165 of the debts are secured. His schedules $237,000 par value stock of the Bullfrog Jumbo Company and puts the market value at $1,060. About $100,000 worth of the liabilities arise from claims in stock transactions, the creditors being in many sections of the country. Some of the stock creditors are Howard Bunn of Rahway, $1,000; Mrs. Jesse Kunz, Elizabeth, $5,000; Patrick Foley, Elizabeth, $1,001; Alice Johnston, Elizabeth, $500, and George B. Tompkins, Paterson, $7,700. Among the other liabilities are a judgment of $20,000 obtained in the New York Supreme Court by Abram C. Clonney of Binghamton, N. Y., as executor of the estate of Charles E. Clonney, on a promissory note; a judgment for $5,000 in favor of Herman W. Hoops of New York, growing out of a sale of stock; $10,000 due the estate of Daniel E. March of Bridgeport, Conn., and $10,000 due the Colmar River Land Company of New York.

Judgments.

These judgments for amounts more than $100 were filed yesterday, the first name being that of the debtor:

PHILADELPHIA PRICES.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 22.—Profit taking was in order this morning, and the result was shown in a series of small recessions. Later the tone hardened, when New York prices developed a recovering tendency. There were some exceptions to the more or less general irregularity, however, notably Philadelphia Rapid Transit, which rose sharply, crossing 18 on a moderate volume of orders. About 2,100 Philadelphia Rapid Transit shares changed hands to-day, the stock closing at the best price. Lehigh Valley and Reading both reacted for a time, despite the wonderful showing made by the latter in the fiscal year just passed.

CHICAGO STOCK MARKET.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Sept. 22.—Local stocks did nothing to rouse the local Exchange from the apathetic stage which has characterized trading for many weeks. A few offerings of South Side "L" broke the price of that stock a point. Chicago Railways, Series 2, was higher on the favorable showing of earnings presented that company, in spite of its legal entanglements. Bonds were dull.

CHURCHMEN OBJECT TO A CITY CLINIC

APPEAL TO ESTIMATE BOARD

Hope to Prevent an Appropriation of $1,000 to Lease Willoughby Avenue, Brooklyn, Site.

One of the strongest protests which will be made at to-day's meeting of the Board of Estimate in City Hall will be that of the residents of Willoughby Avenue, between Stuyvesant and Lewis Avenues, Brooklyn, against the plan of the Board of Health to lease 815A Willoughby Avenue from A. Settle, its owner, as a Tuberculosis Clinic for the city's poor. The Board of Health wants an appropriation of $1,000 with which to lease the premises.

The Very Rev. J. W. Moore, President of St. John's College, which is immediately opposite the proposed clinic, and the Rev. J. J. Cloonan, the college's Treasurer, will appear in the City Hall Council Chamber to-day to protest against the danger which they believe the clinic will bring to their 600 day pupils and 100 resident students.

State Senator R. L. Gledhill, who lives at 825A Willoughby Avenue, only five doors from the proposed clinic, is coming down from Saratoga to join in the protest. The clergy of St. John the Baptist, the priest-teachers of St. John's Parochial School, and the officials of St. Joseph's Roman Catholic Orphan Asyum, who feel themselves responsible for the welfare of the children whom they teach, will also be present.

Undertaker Cornelius Sullivan, whose shop is at Willoughby and Lewis Avenues, will present a petition signed, he says, by the names of all the residents of the section within a radius of two blocks protesting against the city's plan. Ex-Municipal Court Judge Charles Dodd will also be on hand to tell what he thinks about the danger to life and property valuations which lurks in the Board of Health's scheme.

The Rev. Father Cloonan gave these reasons yesterday for his objections to the clinic:

"We have 600 children coming and going every day to this college. Twelve hundred children a day go to St. John's Parochial School next door. There are 800 children in St. Joseph's Roman Catholic Orphan Asylum, not to mention a congregation of 6,000 adults who attend our church. For the Board of Health to place a tuberculosis clinic right in the midst of all these young folk is a menace to the health of the coming generation.

"The purpose of a tuberculosis clinic, as I understand it, is to teach people how to keep from giving tuberculosis to others. A reasonable deduction from this axiom is that the people who come to this Willoughby Street clinic will not know how to keep from giving tuberculosis to our children. I shall certainly appear before the hearing to-morrow, and Father Moore and Senator Gledhill and ex-Judge Dodd will, too."

As the entire controversy over the proposed clinic site appears to rest on the question whether or not tuberculosis patients spread the disease, a TIMES reporter visited all the doctors on the block to see what they thought. Dr. A. F. Zahn expressed himself as quite sure that there wasn't so much danger to the neighborhood's parochial school children as the well-meaning priests fear.

"The site of the proposed clinic is a particularly open spot," he said, "since it faces the St. John College grounds. I'm sure enough air is constantly passing to blow any infection away."

HEIRESS SENDS FOR HUSBAND

Life Guard Howland Off for St. Louis, Hoping Mother-in-Law Has Relented.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., Sept. 22.—Summoned by a telegram purporting to be from his bride, Life Guard "Jack" Howland has gone to St. Louis. He hopes that his mother-in-law has relented and that he will be permitted to see his million-dollar bride.

Howland left Spring Lake yesterday afternoon. The telegram he received from St. Louis was sent by his wife's sister, at her command apparently, and was an answer to a letter the lifeguard had written his wife three weeks ago, but which he believed was only recently delivered to her.

Mrs. Howland was Miss Helen O'Brien of St. Louis. She inherited a fortune from her father. She was married to the handsome young lifeguard by the Rev. Thomas R. Taylor, pastor of the Baptist Church at Avon, a few weeks ago, but when her marriage became known to her mother she was hustled away from Spring Lake and has since been separated from her husband. Recently Mrs. O'Brien began an action to have the marriage annulled.

BLOWN OUT OF A CONDUIT.

Special to The New York Times.

MORRISTOWN, N. J., Sept. 22.—Town Electrician Frank E. Piersen and Thomas Higgins, his assistant, were blown through a manhole this afternoon by an explosion of gas in a sewer ejector chamber in James Street. Their eyebrows and moustaches were singed off and they suffered slight burns.

They were installing automatic switches for a signal system when the dynamo in the chamber suddenly started. A spark ignited a quantity of oil gas in the chamber and blue flashes played around the two men. They started to clamber out of the chamber when an explosion shot them out of the manhole.

FAILED TO GET BANK, LOST PROVIDENT LIFE

Suit in Kentucky Throws New Light on Promoters' Efforts to Buy Woodruff's Stock.

BIG FEES TO HORACE WHITE

Lieutenant Governor as Personal Counsel to Woodruff Was Also Interested in People's Mutual Deal.

Further light on the methods by which Hugh Tevis and a syndicate of Kentucky promoters sought to gain control of the Provident Savings Life Insurance Company has been shed by a suit instituted in Kentucky by J. V. Norman against C. C. Bickel, Floyd Day, George M. Boone, and C. C. McClarty for $18,700.

The syndicate endeavored to acquire the stock which Timothy L. Woodruff got from the Scott management in 1905 and sold to the Thomases two years later.

Lieut. Gov. Horace White was personal counsel for Mr. Woodruff in that and other deals which followed, and in 1908 received some $5,000 from the Provident Life for services in connection with Mr. Woodruff's handling of the stock in that institution.

The suit begun in Louisville is over an agreement between Tevis and Floyd Day, one of his co-promoters, by which Day was to provide certain sums to be used in the acquisition of the Provident Life stock. It also demonstrates that the Kentucky promoters, who were depending on the First National Bank of Louisville for their money, found that it was necessary to get control of that bank to obtain the support they needed.

On Aug. 10, 1908, the earlier contracts were canceled in consideration of which the syndicators were to pay $10,000 to Horace White of Syracuse. There was also the obligation of $13,300 to Tevis, on which the present suit is based.

Tevis, in April, 1909, assigned his claim to Norman. The claim of Horace White, as the record of Supt. Hotchkiss's investigation into the People's Mutual case developed, was eventually discharged out of the funds of the latter company, which the Louisville promoters used to facilitate their acquisition of the Syracuse company. All told, Horace White was to obtain $20,000 out of the People's Mutual deal, and it was explained at the time that this related, in part at least, to previous arrangements with Tevis and his associates. Supt. Hotchkiss forced the restoration of all the money that had been diverted from the People's Mutual.

The attempt of the Kentuckians to get control of the Provident Savings Company failed because of their inability to get the control of the First National Bank of Louisville and thus obtain funds with which to take up the Provident stock. The People's Mutual was the next insurance concern to which Tevis turned his attention. Meantime, the Provident Savings stock finally fell into other hands.

The Rev. Father J. A. Sullivan, rector of St. Aloysius's Church in West Side Avenue, Jersey City, returned a few days ago from the Eucharistic Congress in Montreal, Canada. Yesterday he sent a suit of clothes he wore while away to a tailor to be pressed. When the suit came back $200 in the inside vest pocket was gone. The boy who carried the suit to the tailor is missing.

PLAN TO CLEAN GOWANUS BAY

But the Merchants' Association Does Not Like the City's Proposals.

A conference was held recently in the office of Acting Mayor Mitchel at the City Hall on the question of devising means for the purification of the waters of Gowanus Bay and Canal in Brooklyn. Plans for a flushing canal for the purpose have already been filed with Borough President Steers of Brooklyn, and approved by Chief Engineer Fort of the Bureau of Sewers. Objections to them have been made, however, and presented to Edward Hatch, Jr., Chairman of the Merchants' Association Committee on Water Pollution.

Those present at the conference were the Acting Mayor, Borough President Steers, Mr. Hatch, and Frederick B. De Berard, representing the Merchants' Association; its engineering expert, A. J. Provost, Jr., and Mr. Fort.

The Fort plans call for the pumping of water from Gowanus Bay and Canal through the flushing tunnel to its northern opening into Buttermilk Channel, opposite Governors Island. Originally the plans provided for pumping water from Buttermilk Channel in the reverse direction, and the arguments of Mr. Provost and Mr. Hatch were in favor of a return to that solution of the problem.

If the engineers were allowed to carry out the present plan they alleged that sewage, which properly belonged in the lower parts of the Bay, would be diverted to points further up stream, which it would never reach without artificial aid, to the great detriment of valuable Brooklyn waterfront property.

Mr. Hatch said that not only would the plan of pumping Gowanus Bay up stream bring into the narrow Buttermilk Channel the effluent of the sewers discharging directly into Gowanus Canal, but it would add to this already huge volume of filth a large proportion of the 35,000,000 gallons of sewage which the prevailing westerly winds tend to force each day into Gowanus Bay from other parts of the harbor.

One of Mr. Fort's objections to a change of plan was based on the ground that if a downstream current were created in the canal it would interfere with shipping; but the advocates of the change held that such inconvenience, if any, to shipping, was unimportant as compared with the injury inflicted upon the waterfront, which would be deluged with the sewage deposits created by the establishment of an up-stream discharge.

NEW LAND FRAUD INQUIRY.

Ballinger May Push Investigation Which Will Dwarf Cunningham Affair.

SPOKANE, Wash., Sept. 22. — The Chronicle says to-day:

"An investigation of suspected Alaskan land frauds, which may exceed in scope and startling developments the famous Cunningham cases, is believed to be in progress by Federal officers in the Northwest.

"This investigation, which is said to involve an entirely new group of claims in charges similar to those brought against the Cunningham entries, is believed to have been instituted and actively pushed by Secretary of the Interior Ballinger.

"The list of entrymen involved is said to include many men of prominence in Spokane and its vicinity, as well as others of National importance.

"Secretary Ballinger's recent visit to Spokane, according to the rumors afloat here, was made in furtherance of the investigation now in progress by officials of the Land Office and the Department of Justice."
